Seek Dr. Kerr's Appointment as Head of State Schools

Appointment of Dr. W. J. Kerr, president of Oregon State College, as head of the new Oregon system of higher education is being sought through an effort of the alumni of the state college who are asking those in sympathy with such an appointment to communicate with Chairman C. L. Starr, of Portland, or others of the State Board of Higher Education. An open campaign backed by the O. S. C. Alumni Association board of directors is being carried on with the full knowledge of the Board of Higher Education, each member having been sent a request that the appointment of Dr. Kerr be made.

In advocating the appointment of Dr. Kerr, the alumni group says that his selection would make unnecessary the expense and delay involved in searching for an out-of-state executive who would necessarily have to start with little knowledge of Oregon's needs educationally or her tax problems. Dr. Kerr, they say, has proved in his 25 years as head of Oregon State College that he can make a tax dollar perform its greatest service. The alumni are pointing to Dr. Kerr's national reputation as an executive, builder and constructive educational leader and declare that he is held in high respect throughout the state for his character and moral influence over students.

Dr. Kerr, say the alumni, is fair-minded to an exceptional degree and his appointment would assure an impartial administration by the best available executive in the United States.

Soil Testing Equipment Here

Soils in Coos county can now be tested for the presence of available phosphates with equipment which has just been received at the County Agent's office from the Soils Department at the Oregon State College. This test was developed by the Experiment Station at the University of Illinois for a simple means of determining whether an application of phosphate fertilizer should increase crop yield.

It has been possible for a number of years to test soils for acidity at the office and it will now be possible to determine by these tests how much lime is necessary to correct the acid condition in certain soils, also the amount of phosphate fertilizer necessary to bring the soil to a productive state.

Most soils in Coos county show an acid reaction and are materially benefited by the application of limestone, according to County Agent Jenkins. It is also true that most of the soils so far tested have shown a lack of available phosphate, Calcium and phosphorus, two elements furnished by limestone and phosphate fertilizer are two important elements in crop production and are the two most important and most used elements in the dairy cow's diet. Crops grown on land deficient in these elements could be expected to be lower in them and stock fed such crops should have additional minerals provided. Many dairymen in this section are feeding a mixture of equal parts of sterilized bone meal flour, limestone and salt with very good results.
