Next Week at the Liberty

A riotous laugh picture showing the inner workings of Hollywood studio and social life.

This aptly describes the "Cohens and Kellys in Hollywood," which will be shown at the Liberty Theatre here starting Sunday evening. This picture presents as its stars George Sidney and Charlie Murray, the screen's most popular comedy team, and heroes of a long succession of films dealing with the adventures of the Cohens and Kellys. In fact this is the sixth in the only series of features which have ever been successfully developed.

In this hilarious picture Kelly's daughter becomes a featured screen player through a happy chain of circumstances, and when the Cohens follow their Irish friends to the film capital they find the Kellys have "gone Hollywood" with tremendous enthusiasm. Subsequent events find the shoe now on one foot and now on the other, with changes taking place on the proportions of a veritable riot of merriment. Many of the scenes give intimate glimpses "behind the scenes" in the Hollywood studios.

Game Law Violators Fined

Sergeant C. A. Hearing reports the arrest Sunday of three men—F. H. Albro, J. L. Wilson and E. L. Simpson—of the Ten Mile country, who were fishing on Camas mountain Sunday. They had no licenses, but did have a lot of too short fish. They were fined $25 each in Roseburg justice court, Monday.

Allen Terry, of North Bend, was fined $100 and costs by Justice C. E. Maybee, last Friday, for hunting deer on Kentuck Slough with a spot light.

C. E. Aber Died Sunday

Clarence E. Aber was born in Urbana, Denton county, N. Y., May 22, 1856. He was united in marriage to Kate Peterson, of Clifton, Kans., Dec. 26, 1884. To this union five children were born, three sons and two daughters: Harry and Delno Aber, of Coquille; Wilbur Aber, of Eureka, Calif.; Mrs. C. B. Young and Mrs. Robert Rutherford, of Coquille.

Mr. Aber joined the Church of Christ at about middle age and has been a member since.

With his family he moved from Kansas to Oklahoma in November, 1908, and in the spring of 1914 they came to Coquille, where they have since resided.

After an illness of one week, suffering from heart trouble, Mr. Aber passed away Sunday morning, July 24, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Young, where he recently has made his home. He leaves to mourn his loss, his widow and five children, eleven grand children and a number of relatives in the east.

Funeral services were held at the chapel Tuesday afternoon. Interment was in the Masonic cemetery.

Card of Thanks

We express our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us at the time of the sudden death of our dear husband and father and for the comforting words of T. B. MacDonald, who conducted the funeral services.

Guy Weekley Killed in Accident

Guy E. Weekley, of Myrtle Point, 34 years of age, was instantly killed on upper Rock creek last Saturday morning when the truck with which he was bringing logs down from the Sandy Weekley camp upset and his head was crushed.

In shifting gears on a steep incline the truck stalled and began to roll backward. Fred Rookard had jumped out to attempt to block the wheels, but when he saw the truck was going to miss the bridge at the bottom he called to Mr. Weekley to jump. The latter evidently was hoping to save the truck and did not do so, and was thrown out as the truck tipped over the 12-foot bank of the creek, striking his head on the rocks.

This is the third death in the Weekley family from logging accidents in the last few years. Lee Weekley, Guy's father, and a brother of Guy's, Glenn Weekley, met death at different times while engaged in logging and trucking.

Funeral services were held at the Dora cemetery Tuesday, conducted by T. B. MacDonald.

Mr. Weekley leaves a wife, one son, Edward Lee, aged 10; three brothers, Thomas, Sandy and Roland, all of Myrtle Point; and five sisters, Mrs. Estella Miller, of Medford; Mrs. David Pike, of Marshfield; Mrs. Lloyd Mast, of Lee, Mrs. Vernon Harper, of Springfield, and Mrs. Harold Adams, of Seattle.

Pat Geaney Wins Suit

The case of the Coos Bay Lumber Co. vs. Pat Geaney, which started Thursday morning of last week, was given to the jury Saturday evening. A unanimous verdict for the defendant was brought in after the first ballot.

Messrs. L. A. Liljeqvist and H. A. Slack were able to prove to the jury that the fire which Mr. Geaney set in August could not have been responsible for the burning of the railroad trestle on Cunningham in the middle of October.

Heavy rains shortly before the burning of the trestle were proved to have fallen. H. L. Hansen, weather observer at McKinley, testified to the amount of rain which had fallen and to the prevailing wind for several weeks.

The lumber company claimed that the fire had smoldered in a log dump for two months.

Here is Simple Way to Avoid Nervous Trouble

In one of his addresses, Dr. Charles H. Mayo said: "Every other hospital bed in the United States is for mentally afflicted, insane, idiotic, feeble-minded or senile persons. That's why. It is worry that breaks down the brain, not work as such."

In this connection we are reminded of the prescription which a physician gave to a highly nervous patient whose life was made miserable by a constant procession of fears and forebodings. The physician sealed the prescription in an envelope, told the patient to take it home, to treat it confidentially, but to use it freely in as large doses as was necessary. This magic seven-word prescription which has worked wonders with many people read: "The things you fear most never happen."—From How to Live.

Inventor of the Polka

The Etude says that the Bohemian dance, the polka, was invented about 1830 by Anna Slezak, an upper servant in the family of a rich farmer. As the room in which she danced was small, she shortened the steps, from which the dance was named polka (half). Received enthusiastically in Paris, the word was changed to polka.

How Kings Came by Title

Up to the time of Charles V, when a king of France, England, or Spain, was addressed, he was styled "Your Grace," wrote David A. Wells in "Things Not Generally Known." "But Charles," he continues, "wishing to place himself in a higher rank than other monarchs, demanded the title of 'Majesty,' a distinction which did not long continue, for the other sovereigns of Europe quickly followed his example."—Detroit News.

Egyptian Monarch Was First Wheat Dictator

The first recorded wheat dictator was Henku, monarch of Egypt, who apparently considered it his most worthy claim to fame, having "I was lord and overseer of southern grain!" engraved on his tomb. A study on food control for forty-six centuries was made by Mary G. Lacy, librarian of the United States Department of Agriculture, and this is the most ancient deed of price fixing which she unearthed from the dusty tomes.

The story of the pharaoh and his treasurer Joseph, who ran the first recorded wheat corner, is known to all Bible readers, but he was in 1700 B. C., centuries later than Henku. The Egyptian method of control was by the monarch owning all the land, similar to the government ownership in the Soviet union today.

China as early as 1122 B. C. had a system of crop and price control, chiefly concerned with rice. The government bought the surplus after inspecting each field and deciding how much each farmer might keep. It bought at a normal price in surplus years and sold at the same price in short years, protecting the farmer in one and the consumer in the other.
