

Open Class Awards for Stock at the Fair

It was a very fine lot of stock—cattle, hogs and sheep—shown at the Coos & Curry County Fair last week. In fact it was one of the best exhibitions of that kind ever made in the county and proves that the quality of Coos county stock is being materially improved.

Twin Tips

CONNIE pulled on her sensible little hat and glanced down to see that her low-heeled walking shoes were clean and tidy, put her check book in to her bag with a little flutter of the heart and started off to inspect a small farm in New Jersey that had been advertised in the morning paper.

And in a tiny flat, at the opposite side of the city, a sturdy, well-set-up man, cast a swift look at himself in the mirror to see that his tie was straight, felt in his inner pocket to make sure his check book was safely placed and went out with a slight feeling of elation. He was going to New Jersey to inspect a small chicken farm that had been advertised in the morning paper.

And these two from the opposite ends of the city caught the same ferry boat across the Hudson, boarded the same train for the suburban village on the outskirts of which lay the farm and arrived at the local station at the same time.

As a matter of fact there was only one snorting taxi beside the wooden platform, and both Connie and John McGuire went swiftly toward it.

"I want to go to Orchard farm," said Connie and looked up and into the steady eyes of the man whose words almost echoed her own.

The taxi driver scratched his head. It was McGuire who sensibly settled the question. "I'll sit outside with the driver if you don't mind—since our destination is the same."

Each hoped the check book, so joyously brought on this trip, would be sufficiently indicative of wealth to allow the purchasing of Orchard farm—should it prove the ideal spot.

"Oh," exclaimed Connie to herself as the taxi stopped. "What a heavenly place!"

"Ideal" was McGuire's inward comment, "but a bit far from the station. I'd have to motor everything in." And by "everything" McGuire referred to the hundreds of dozens of eggs and chickens he hoped to be producing for the city restaurant.

"I suppose you want me to wait," said the taxi driver.

The situation was certainly funny but somehow Connie and McGuire took it all very calmly and entered the old farmhouse and asked the price.

Connie's face fell and so did McGuire's when they heard that price. Five thousand dollars was more than either had bargained for. Each had saved three thousand five hundred dollars.

"I wanted to raise poultry and make butter and jams to sell to the tea-room where I work," lamented Connie. "I have it all fixed up with the owner—she will buy all I can supply."

"And I had fixed up with my boss," confided McGuire, and tried not to show his keen disappointment. "I'm so fed up with carrying trays of food to people that I don't see how I can go through with it," moaned Connie, "and this farm is simply the place I've had in my dreams for years. Some one else will surely get it before I save enough to make up the difference."

"You've said it," groaned McGuire. "I've gone to bed nights just planning a place like this and thinking of getting up at dawn while the dew's on everything and the sun coming up behind that hill and feeding the chickens and the cows and lighting the kitchen fire. Instead of that it means carrying dinners to business men for another year or two."

They both agreed and sighed heavily as they emerged from the house after giving the caretaker a tip for showing them all over the small farm.

"If you don't mind I'll sit inside on the way back," said McGuire, "perhaps we can cheer each other up a bit."

And inside the taxi there was a tremendous amount of conversation going on. The two farm seekers had become very intimate regarding their financial status.

"If we could just have pooled it," laughed Connie, "it would have been easy, and we'd still have two thousand dollars to buy stock and carry us along until things got going properly."

McGuire turned and looked very steadily into Connie's honest eyes and had a brainstorm.

"How would you like to pool in with me? I'll buy the farm, start it going and get everything in fine shape in a month and maybe—maybe—" McGuire hesitated a bit and Connie's eyes fluttered downward, "we might sort of get better acquainted and—well, you never can tell, we might—"

Connie laughed softly because he was getting so mixed up with a problem that was as plain as the nose on Kathie's face.

"Don't be silly," she said laughing. "I don't think there's any 'might' about it. I liked you the very minute you were so thoughtful about sitting outside on this taxi."

"And I liked you the minute you let me come along—it almost looks like what folks call 'love at first sight.' My name is John McGuire," he added, "what's yours?"

A Modern Monument to Pioneer Struggles

A NEW ROOSEVELT INVADERS THE WEST

"Connie—Connie—Weldon." "I say—Connie—shall we tell this driver to take us back so we can put down a deposit for—our farm, and what do you say to calling it Twin Tips Farm?" "Fine," said Connie, and McGuire called out to the driver.

Combination of Names The town of Kanova derives its name from three states, "Kan" from Kentucky, "O" from Ohio, and "Va" from Virginia, yet it is in West Virginia.

Cannel Coal's Properties Cannel coal is a grade of bituminous coal believed to have originated from materials different from those ordinarily termed bituminous coal. It is characterized by its high percentage of volatile matter and its burning readily with a long flame. Cannel coal is used in the manufacture of illuminating gas and as a domestic fuel for open-grate fires. It is also used for steam production, like ordinary bituminous coal.

"Minnesota" In the Sioux language minne means water and tonka means large and round.

Extreme Northern Park The furthest north of all the national parks of the United States is Mount McKinley park, entrance to which is by automobile from the Alaskan railroad station at the base camp on the Savage river. Wild game abounds—mountain sheep, caribou, moose, fox, bear and smaller animals.

Disraeli's Advice Disraeli was once asked by a young peer to recommend a course of study to qualify one for speaking so as to gain the ear of the house of lords. "Every morning," said Disraeli, "practice speaking aloud before the tombstones of your nearest graveyard."

Exposition to be Better Than Ever

Western livestock exhibitors will have a better chance of winning cash prizes and awards this year at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition's competition for the $75,000 premium list, provided by the state, Multnomah county and breeders' associations, according to O. M. Plummer, General Manager of the Pacific International. The Exposition will be held in Portland, Oregon, October 18-22, inclusive. While the show is expected to be even more complete than in the past, eastern exhibitors will have smaller representations than usual. This will leave the awards open almost exclusively to western entrants.

Besides the Dairy and Beef Cattle Shows which always occupy an important place in the Livestock Exposition, an unusually fine collection of pure bred animals in all other divisions, including sheep, goats, heavy draft horses, dogs, poultry, rabbits, fish and game will be exhibited. There will also be the usual Industrial Show, Dairy and Land Products Show, Wool and Mohair Show, the Boys' and Girls' 4-H Club exhibits and Smith-Hughes Vocational Education exhibits and activities.

In addition to these, this year's Exposition offers as a new and thrilling entertainment feature the country's leading rodeo, McCarty-Elliott, with their complete string of bucking horses including the famous "Midnight", the mount that "has never been ridden". At least twenty-five championship buckaroos and women riders will compete for the $10,000 in prize awards, in the Exposition's big arena, the first indoor rodeo held in the Pacific Northwest, giving the public a close-up view of all events. The rodeo will show at eight matinee and seven evening performances.

This is the twenty-second annual Pacific International Livestock Exposition, the Pacific-west's great educational event, and its way of drawing the spotlight of the world on it as a country outstanding in agricultural products.

Reduced round trip fares to Portland for the Exposition, October 18-22, have been announced by all railroads.
