News Notes From Powers

All fires in the Powers vicinity are under control at the present writing (Wednesday) and 55 men returned to Powers from the Eden Valley fire, where they had assisted in putting under control one of the worst fires that this section has had in years.

Bob Morris, who has been at the Maet hospital for some time, is improving rapidly. He will soon return home.

Luther Adams, who was injured by a falling snag at the Eden Valley fire, is still confined to the Maet hospital where he will probably be for several months. He is improving though and everyone considers him a very lucky man to be alive.

John Wilson, who was injured by a falling snag at the Eden Valley fire, had the small bone fractured in his left leg. He rode horseback for about thirteen miles after he received first aid at the fire camp.

Jack Greiner has been employed to teach the seventh grade and has taken up his duties. The boys are delighted to have a man teacher and the parents are delighted with the board's choice.

Friday evening the P. T. A. gave an old-fashioned party in honor of the teachers. Everyone had a very good time and found that they were not too old to play games. A nice lunch was enjoyed at a late hour. About 100 people attended.

All vacant houses are taken now and everyone is at work at the present time. The Coos Bay Lumber Co. is running a jitney to Eden ridge every morning. The new bridge north of Powers has the false work up and everything is going fine. The Forest Service has quite a crew on the trail work and fire protection. Powers was the last town in the world to feel the depression and it looks as though it would be the first one to see good times again.

Mrs. Clarinda Lee returned to her home at Langlois after spending several weeks visiting relatives and friends in Coos county.
