Well, the holiday season over, we now begin to turn our thoughts to spring and already a good many of us are planning our flower beds to hide the ravages of the recent cold spell. Of course the exact amount of damage cannot be told at this time and I am in hopes that spring will show up less damage than is anticipated. However, it is a foregone conclusion that many of us will plant more annuals this year than ever. In fact the growing of annuals on a larger scale is a movement that seems to be sweeping over the entire country and well it may, for there are no prettier blooms than those of our annual flowers and they ask nothing more than do our perennial borders, that is to keep the old blossoms cut off that they may cheer us that much longer.

I have noticed for some time that the annual is once more to come into its own; magazine after magazine have had articles devoted to this class of flowers, and usually give lists of the most worth while varieties. In the last number, January 1933, of the American Home is a fine article on this subject. So lets get out our catalogues and some of these rainy evenings make out a list of what seeds we will want and then send for them early so as not to have to wait for them when we should be planting them.

The advertisements of the new catalogues are beginning to make their appearances in the various magazines, but many of us have our old standbys. However, it is well to change sometimes and get new strains. Annuals are our best cut flowers. Do not forget that.

Now for more "flowers in April."
Flowering Evergreen Shrubs.

Influenza

(Oregon State Board of Health) Influenza is a highly communicable disease. It comes on suddenly with a fever lasting three days. There is a feeling of great depression and a marked lowering of physical vigor.
Bronchitis and pneumonia may rapidly follow, especially when the victim attempts to return to his work too early. Failure to give in to so short an illness and the natural tendency of the vigorous male to "fight-it-off" when indisposed undoubtedly accounts for the fact that while more females are attacked, the death rate is usually higher among males.

Influenza spares neither age nor sex. The strong and the weak, the rich and the poor are apparently equal in susceptibility. Influenza occurs at all seasons but it has a decided preference for cold weather. Worldwide epidemics occur in regular cycles.

As with so many serious communicable diseases the first symptoms are those of a common cold. In influenza, however, there is much greater degrees of debility and depression.
Many who have the disease in a mild form do not go to bed but continue to mingle with their fellow-men and this contributes largely to its spread.

Even in the simple form of influenza there is usually a feeling of chilliness and of weakness; there is a rapid rise of temperature to about 103 or 104 degrees; and there may be some cough, some hoarseness and soreness of throat. Less often nausea, vomiting and diarrhea accompany the attack or it may begin with a sharp nosebleed.

The most serious complication is pneumonia, which may develop in a few days after the onset. Other complications are sinusitis, empyema, tonsillitis, pulmonary edema, pneumothorax and a persistent cough which may last for months. Simple, uncomplicated cases of influenza do not die.

Influenza deaths in Oregon 1922 to 1931 were as follows:
1922, 387 deaths 1927, 268 deaths
1923, 241 deaths 1928, 363 deaths
1924, 123 deaths 1929, 305 deaths
1925, 206 deaths 1930, 204 deaths
1926, 228 deaths 1931, 202 deaths

People die of influenza in Oregon in all seasons but the winter and early spring months are particularly dangerous. The signs and symptoms of a cold are always danger signals, especially when influenza is prevalent.
At this time every suddenly acquired cold should be regarded with suspi-verrucosus), blooms March to June.

Madrone Tree (Arbutus menziesi), white, blooms Sept. to Nov.

Portugal Laurel (Prunus lusitanica), white, blooms April to July.
California Cherry (Prunus illicifolia), white, blooms March to May.

Catalina Cherry (Prunus intergri-folia), white, blooms March to May.
Thunberg's Barberry, pale yellow, blooms April, May.

Torch Azalea (Azalea kaempferi), orange-red, blooms April, May.
Azalea hexe, scarlet, blooms April,
May.

Azalea mollis (Flame azalea in variety), yellow, orange, blooms April,
May.

Flowering Currant, yellow, blooms March to May.
Fuschia (Flowered gooseberry), scarlet, blooms March to June.

Deutzia gracilis, white, blooms April, May.
Deutzia lemoinei, white, blooms April, May.

Deciduous Flowering Shrubs Pearl Bush (Exochorda grandiflora), white, blooms April, May.
Spirea, Anthony Waterer, white-red, blooms June to October.

Japanese Flowering Cherry (Prunus serrulata), pink, white, rose, blooms April, May.
Flowering Crabapple (Pyrus floribunda), pale pink, rose, blooms April, May.

Bechtel's Flowering Crabapple, shell pink, blooms April, May.
Sacred Cherry of Japan (Prunus yedoensis), white, pink, spring blooming.

Japanese Weeping Cherry (Prunus subhirtella pendula), rose pink, spring blooming.

Persian Lilac (Syringa persica), purple, lilac, rose, blue, blooms April,
May.

Japanese Quince, in variety (Cydonia japonica), white, scarlet, pink, rose, blooms Jan. to April.

Red Bud (Cercis canadensis) rosy pink, blooms March to May.
European Red Bud (Cercis siliquastrum), purplish rose, blooms March to May.

Roses, many colors. Plant naked roots Nov. to March. Set out potted plants any time.

Flowering Vines Trumpet Vine (Big nonia meediana), orange-yellow, blooms March to
May.

Yellow Jasmine (Jasminum primul-inum), primrose yellow, blooms Mar. to May and intermittently.

If a susceptible person comes in contact with influenza he almost invariably contracts the disease.

Live outdoors as much as possible and avoid crowded places. Wear clothing suitable to the weather and avoid dissipation of any kind. Simple nourishing food is the most healthful.
Wash the hands frequently, particularly before eating. If you have influenza, however mild, go to bed and stay there until your physician says it is safe to arise. Remember that the exhaustion from influenza is usually out of proportion to the mild-ness of the symptoms, and great care must be taken to prevent injury to the vital organs.

How to Take Fingerprints The equipment for taking fingerprints consists of a tube of printer's ink, and an inking slab on which the ink is first distributed, a roller, and an inking plate on which the fingers are inked, and possible a card holder.
The last item is not absolutely essential, but can be of valuable assistance in holding the fingerprint card in place to prevent blurring. Best results can be expected from the use of black printer's ink for it dries so rapidly that fresh work can be handled immediately with very little danger of smudging.

How to Care for Screens Screen doors and window screens when being stored away for the winter should be thoroughly brushed and cleaned and perfectly dry. When the screens are taken out in the spring they should be brushed and cleaned before hanging and if a light coat of screen paint is applied before they are put up the screens should last indefinitely. In doing this any little spot that might have a tendency to rust would be covered and thus prevented from rusting or deteriorating.

How to Keep Piano Dry Pianos, kept in basements or halls that are heated only occasionally, are soon ruined by dampness if no precautions are taken to prevent it. To do this, lower an extension cord fitted with a 25-watt lamp inside of the piano, letting the lamp hang near the bottom and keeping it lighted when the instrument is not in use. If the piano is kept covered, a smaller lamp will be sufficient.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

the elephant may swim and the lamb wade.—Gregory the Great.
