

Letter From Rev. T. R. Jackman--Will Be Here Sunday

The Sentinel received the following letter Wednesday morning from Rev. T. R. Jackman, in which he reiterated the previously published statement that he and Mrs. Jackman will be home for Easter services at the Four-square church on Sunday--Easter. The letter was written in Paris, March 28:

I expect that we will be home nearly as soon as this letter will reach you.

We are sailing on the Statendam April 1st. However, we will be stopping over in Wisconsin for a day's convention.

Today was very interesting as we visited the battlefields, driving over 250 miles. It is wonderful how nature has effaced the scars of war. The fields that were once torn by shell and trenches and strewn with barbed wire entanglements are now dressed in all the beauty of spring.

There are only a few places left by the government to show us how the entire countryside looked during the war. We went through some dug-outs, trenches and barbed wire entanglements today, also a tank deserted by the Germans.

The entire journey has been truly interesting and educational. Each country has given its share to make our trip profitable.

Palestine, of course, was the country we enjoyed the most.

We are leaving in the morning for London by airplane. Takes off from the same field that Lindy landed on.

Our visit in London will be short but we will be glad to be back home to Coquille for Easter Sunday. I will be bringing the morning message, speaking on "The Prince of Life." Mrs. Jackman will speak in the evening on "Life in the Midst of Death."

We have a little souvenir from the Holy Land for those attending the Easter Sunday evening service.

Young Democrats to Convene

Plans for a full ticket of young democratic candidates in the state and local elections next year will be made at the first annual convention of the Young Democratic League of Oregon in Portland, April 15th, according to Ben Flaxel, of North Bend, and Miss Lucille McLain, of Marshfield, state councilors from this county, who will attend the convention.

The state-wide convention will be the first to be held by any political party in recent years. All young people between the ages of 18 and 40 are invited to attend.

Domination of the Young Democratic Clubs of America by national headquarters is expected to provoke heated debate, the local representatives report.

A contest is also scheduled over the question of a six-year term of the President of the United States.

On the convention program are a luncheon Saturday noon, sponsored by the Multnomah club, a business session at which officers will be elected, and the annual Jefferson Day banquet and dance in the evening. The Portland Hotel will be headquarters for the convention.

Reforestation Plans

"We are going ahead with detailed plans for the actual placing and use of the first quota of 2500 men to be called under the recent reforestation act for the Civilian Conservation Corps of unemployed," announces F. H. Brundage, acting regional forester during C. J. Buck's absence in Washington, D. C.

"Because of climatic conditions, accessibility of the work, and camp facilities, these first 2500 men will be used solely on eleven national forests, all except one of which are located on the west side of the Cascade range," said Mr. Brundage. Camp locations have been selected, and federal forest officials are now making plans for assembling tools, equipment, camp equipment, and tentage, so that as soon as the men are available, the actual forest work may start without delay. The first forest work planned on these eleven national forests will consist of felling of dead standing trees or snags, improvement of public forest camps, construction and repair of forest trails and fire protection roads, and construction of simple protection structures such as cabins for use of patrolmen.

The first work to be undertaken by the U. S. forest service, after they receive the first quota of men, will be handled from camps of about 200 men each on the following national forests in Oregon: Mount Hood, Willamette (Cascade and Santiam), Umpqua, Siskiyou, Rogue River, Siuslaw, and Deschutes (the only east side forest in this first list) national forests. There will also be work in four national forests in Washington.

The first quota will be limited to men between the ages of 18 and 25 years, it is said. The details of just when this first quota will report to the proper local department of labor or war department authorities are not available at the Portland forest office at present.

To Scrutinize Careless Drivers

Reckless and drunken automobile drivers will be under closer scrutiny of state officials after June 9, as a result of changes made by the state legislature in the operators' code, reports Hal E. Hoss, Secretary of State.

Every person convicted of operating a motor vehicle because of incompetency, driving while intoxicated, recklessness and hit and run drivers, regardless of the court having jurisdiction in the matter, will be reported immediately to the Secretary of State for appropriate action in the matter of license suspensions or revocation, changes in the law require. These citations of "traffic violations are required from all Oregon courts, which will include courts in every city and town. Previously only justice courts, district courts and circuit courts were required to forward the information.

"The fact that each municipal judge, or city recorder, is forced to make a report of all serious traffic violations upon which convictions have been recorded, will practically double the effectiveness of the curb on outlaw operators," explained Secretary Hoss. "Many serious traffic violations have come under the jurisdiction of these courts and the convicted drivers have continued to operate their automobiles because the state was unaware of the fact and could not suspend or revoke the operator's license. The new law will eliminate that condition," Hoss said.

An additional help to the enforcement of the suspension or revocation of drivers' licenses is the new provision in the law requiring each convicting magistrate to take up the licenses of those found guilty of serious offenses immediately and forward the cards to the state department.

Camp Fire Girls Notes

The Otokoon Camp Fire group met at their guardian's home Tuesday, April 11, where a regular business meeting was held. Many girls received national membership cards and leather honors for renewal of memberships. The girls are also planning to take up leather work as a project.—Audrey Taylor, Scribe.

The To-ha-he girls met at Miss Hassler's home Tuesday, April 11th. They talked over their cooked food sale which they are having Saturday, April 15th, in front of Thrift's grocery store. Miss Yvonne Lee Kern finished her beautiful handband Monday. The To-ha-he group received their Camp Fire membership cards Tuesday. The secretary, Joan Weekly, was absent and Lorraine White was appointed to take her place. Reporter, Jane Kramer.

Mortgage Adjustment Com.

Following the organization of the Coos County Voluntary Farm Mortgage Adjustment committee which took place in Coquille recently, its services are now available on any cases which it is requested to act, according to E. D. Webb, of Coquille, who was selected as chairman of the Coos county committee which was appointed by the State Farm Mortgage Adjustment committee.

In order that the services of the committee may be made convenient to everyone in need of them the committee has arranged to make the office of the county agent headquarters of the committee activity and information on the procedure in obtaining the committee's services may be obtained from that office or any member of the committee.

The organization of the local committee follows the organization of a State Farm Mortgage Adjustment committee a short time ago. Similar committees have been appointed in each county in the state.

It has been emphasized by O. M. Plummer of Portland, manager of the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, who is chairman of the state committee, that these county committees have no local status but are prepared to lend every aid on a voluntary basis towards bringing satisfactory adjustment between farmers and mortgage holders in order that unnecessary loss or hardship may be avoided for both in cases where the parties are unable to make satisfactory arrangements independently.

Members of the state committee, at a regional conference, reported that they had word that similar credit councils or committees in other states have already proved highly beneficial even where comparatively few cases are actually handled. Most creditors and debtors, it was pointed out, are ready to do the fair thing if information is available on which to base such a settlement.

In addition to Chairman Webb and Secretary George Jenkins the Coos County Voluntary Farm Mortgage Adjustment committee consists of R. H. Lawhorne, McKinley; M. M. Schmidt, Norway, and Henry Brownson, of Bridge. The county committees were selected from a group of names sent in from each county to the state committee, which consisted of representative of farm organizations and bankers' organizations.

Why Children's Diseases Spread

(Oregon State Board of Health)
It is a great mistake to treat even light cases of measles, chickenpox, mumps, scarlet fever or any other of the communicable diseases of childhood as though they did not amount to much. Treatment of that sort makes it possible for these diseases to spread and cause serious outbreaks among children whose impaired resistance makes them easy victims to any form of infection.

Some of the most serious outbreaks we have had of scarlet fever, as well as of other diseases in different parts of the state, have been traced to mild cases—that is, to cases too light for the doctor to be called. In some instances the children have continued to go to school and to associate and play with other children. In others after they have been kept at home for a few days suffering from what was believed to be just an ordinary cold, they have returned to school and have scattered these germs around among their schoolmates. Eventually a group of cases—sometimes very serious ones—have developed from the carelessly handled mild case. The result was another epidemic that could have been prevented.

There are several things worth remembering in connection with children's diseases. Nearly all of these diseases begin with a digestive upset or with symptoms closely resembling those of the common cold. Accordingly it is a wise thing for mothers to regard every digestive upset and every common cold with suspicion until you are sure it is not the beginning of something more serious.

Your doctor is the best judge of the seriousness of such symptoms and you will save suffering and anxiety if you put the child to bed, send for your doctor and follow his advice.

The old idea that children's diseases are of no consequence and that all of the children in the family may as well have them at the same time went into the discard long ago. Nearly all of these diseases are particularly hard on babies and on children who have not reached the school age. Measles is especially dangerous for very young children. Whooping cough and other diseases have equally as bad records. Accordingly, great care should be taken to protect babies and other young children from all these diseases. This does not mean that it is safe to expose the older children to them. All children should be protected at all times from needless exposure to communicable diseases.

Children who contract any of these diseases need special care, to protect them against possible dangerous after effects. This is as true of the mild cases as of those that are serious. Measles often opens the way for pneumonia. Deafness and eye trouble may frequently be traced to some carelessly treated disease in early childhood.

A place where a stranger does not feel strange

Kidney diseases and damaged hearts often have their beginnings in the same way. There is a wide difference between coddling and intelligently safeguarding to prevent disastrous after effects.

The recognition and reporting of communicable diseases is the first step towards control. For this reason parents have a definite responsibility to secure competent medical opinion. Isolation of cases is most effective as a control measure early in the outbreak. Immunization of susceptibles gives the greatest assurance against epidemics. Selective isolation, however, must be used in diseases for which effective immunization is not yet possible.
