Coquille School News

Lincoln Building

Last Saturday morning the County Spelling Contest was held in the Lincoln Building. Robert McGilvery, Violet Dornath, and Jack Martin represented our school but none won any places in the contest.

In the declamation contest that took place in the high school gymnasium Saturday afternoon our representative, Robert McGilvery, rated joint winner for first place with the representative from Empire. According to this plan each school is to keep the silver cup, presented by the Marshfield Civic Club, one-half year.
Coquille will have it from now until October when it will be sent to Empire. The cup was offered two years ago to be won first by Coos River who lost it last year to joint winners from North Bend and Marshfield.
Any school which can win the cup three consecutive years retains it as permanent property.

hostess for the Emanon club at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mabel Loveland. A magic show was given, with George Ulett, Jr., in a swallow-tailed coat and a black mustache as the magician. His tricks were clever and many and thoroughly enjoyed by ance. Some amateur motion pictures of the Smith Wood-Products plant taken a year and a half or so ago by visitors from England.

EGG LAYERS IN CONTEST

International Competition at A Century of Progress

Courtesy American Poultry Journal

An aerial view of Chicago Century of Progress which will include an International Egg Laying Contest. The artist's sketch in the right foreground shows the detail of the Poultry Exhibit. Here 3,000 of the best birds of the laying breeds, specially fed and housed, will compete for individual and pen honors every week for 5 months—May 28th to October 29th, 1933.

Millions of city folks along with millions of their country cousins will have the opportunity to see at first hand the operation of modern poultry plants at the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, May 28th to October 29th.

More than 3,000 of the best producing hens in the country will be entered in an International Egg Laying Contest under the auspices of the National Poultry Council.

The American public is not consuming the number of eggs annually that our Canadian neighbors are, according to the poultry officials. Harvey G. Wood, Manager of the International Egg Laying Contest at the Century of Progress, states that Canadians eat 88 more eggs per capita than do U. S. citizens.

"One of the purposes in conducting this exhibit," says Mr. Wood, "is to make millions of new friends for the poultry industry. Also we want to demonstrate in a practical way what good quality in eggs really means."

In this effort to grove the producing ability of hens kept under proper conditions and fed according to proper feeding methods the official Rules Committee of the Contest has decided upon an official Egg Laying Mash and Scratch Grain which must be fed to all birds entered. After an exhaustive search for a feed that would meet all requirements the committee selected Purina Breeder Egg Chowder and Purina Hen Chow.

Thus the exhibition of the poultry people will not only be recreational but informative, and as such will be one of the most valuable exhibitions at the Fair.

One of the best spaces on the ground has been reserved for the exclusive use of the poultry men.
Over 100 modern poultry houses each divided into two pens housing a total of 26 females and 2 males each will form the Poultry Exhibit.

At the very entrance to the Poultry Colony will be exhibition pens in which will be housed unusual breeds of chickens so that every visitor can become acquainted with the many varieties and breeds of harnyard fiddies.

Every week a model hatchery will produce more than 5,000 baby chicks on regular schedule. These will be packed and shipped to any point in the United States via Uncle Sam's Parcel Post Service. The wisdom of getting offspring from known producers at the Contest will be apparent.

A Broiler Plant where chickens are fattened for market will produce special frites to be sold to visitors.

It is more than a Poultry Show that is getting under way now at top speed for the Century of Progress. It is a demonstration of the value of accumulated research headed by our Agricultural Schools and turned into practical commercial service under the untiring direction of the research division of commercial feed mills.

The same feeds that will be available to the country's best hens at the Century of Progress International Egg Laying Contest are available in exactly the same form to poultry raisers in every part of the

IN THE GOLDEN TEMPLE OF JEHOI

China of the eighteenth century will be presented at A Century of Progress Exposition in the golden temple of Jehoi. The temple at Chicago's 1933 World's Fair will be a faithful reproduction of the original, built in 1767 at Jehoi, summer home of the Manchou emperors from 1714 till the abdication of the dynasty some twenty years ago.
Pictured above is one of the great brown and gilded wooden Buddhas, with attendant figures, which will stand within the temple.

There were followed by refreshments served to Misses Gertrude Tway, Jeanette Pook, Edna Robinson, Meadames Margaret Mullens, Mabel Loveland, Messrs George Ulett, Jr., George Ulett, Sr., who was present the latter part of the evening and explained some of the pictures, and little Gerald Lambrecht and the hostess.

Calling cards 100 for $1.00.

T. Morris Dunne, of Portland, who succeeds the late Chas. T. Early to a member of the industrial accident commission is another of Oregon's successful business men. He also brings to his new job a wealth of experience as an insurance man which should stand him well in hand in dealing with the complex problems now confronting the commission.
