

Loggers Won Best Game of the Year Here Sunday

Two flaming hot baseball contests, that's what the fans of Coos county witnessed; and in the first Coquille's Loggers were victors, 5 to 1, but losers in the second, 4 to 3. Behind the highlight pitching of Bob Wiltshire, the Loggers rode to their win and it was with Jack Andrews on the mound and hurling as fine a game that Jack was the victim of errors that meant defeat. The House of David was the opposition last Sunday and Monday.

It might have been Mr. Wiltshire, or it might have been Glenn Murray or Marion Fischer, who could be heralded as Sunday's hero, but they were only three of the nine Coquilleites who played their best ball of the season to topple the bewhiskered stars of Michigan on Sunday. The Loggers, collectively and individually, took the fight away and from the first frame to the last were in the ball game and ahead.

Glenn Murray's home run with two on in the first put the issue on ice as it turned out. This was the second incentive and only inspired the Marshfield youth, for it was Marion Fischer, who started a beautiful double play as the game got underway, who ignited the spirited fuse. Following this play which retired the House team, Art Pulford almost beat out an infield hit, but was an out at first. Fischer reached second on a bad throw to Tucker, classy long-haired first baseman, by Anderson, and Stewart walked, putting men on first and second. Otto Kolstad flew out, but this merely set the stage for Glenn Murray. The Murray blow soared to deep left center and rolled to the fence for the circuit route.

The three scores were enough, but two more were added, one in the seventh and one in the eighth. Ray Woodyard, in the seventh, got a life on an infield error. Wally Marsden followed with a sacrifice and Dan Moran with a looping hit over the infield that went for a two base blow, advancing Ray to third from where he scored on Wiltshire's fly to left field.

Fischer scored in the eighth. His single was followed by like blows by Bill Stewart and Glenn Murray.

The House of David was dangerous only in the second inning when her lone score crossed the platter. Wycoff made the run from second base on Anderson's single. He had previously singled and reached the keystone sack on a passed ball.

In the ninth Hansen doubled with one away, and Tucker was hit by a pitched ball, but Wiltshire buttoned up his pitching arm to strike out Wycoff and force Cliff to pop fly out. Before than Speisman, in the third, had singled and gone to second on a passed ball. Aside from the men who scored these were the only two House runners to reach the middle sack.

Errors Lost Beautifully Pitched Game by Jack Andrews

The Monday game was not as rapidly played as the Sunday fray, but it was every ounce as exciting and bitterly fought. A home run was the deciding blow, it coming in the eighth frame.

Atwell, the fiery shortstop, was the Israelite who blasted the ball over the left field fence, the first time the trick has ever been turned and the longest hit on record for Athletic Park. Atwell met one of Jack Andrews' fast ones straight on the nose and the pellet lofted to the skies where a friendly breeze aided its travels over the barricade.

Prior to this, each club had counted three runs, the whiskers being aided by Logger errors in gaining two of their countens. Three successive misplays were highly detrimental in the third inning, as two of the visitors crossed the plate with the aid of one lone bingle. They scored another run in the sixth without any such assistance, two hits putting Doc Tally over.

Coquille scored once in the third and twice in the sixth, hits and not errors producing the counters.

Jack Andrews pitched one of the flossiest games ever played in Coquille and had his own error and four others by his mates not occurred he would have emerged victorious with a 2 to 1 score. Jack really had the House team eating out of his hand in a more remarkable exhibition of curve ball pitching than Bob Wiltshire had shown on Sunday, good as the Eugene lad was. And it was their inability to hit his slants safely that caused a part of the House team to make such a disgusting exhibition of themselves.

Male Quail Does the Setting
The following story, clipped from the Ferndale, Calif., Enterprise, must come under the heading of out-of-doors stuff, so we refer it to Lans Leneve, who writes Out-of-Doors Stuff for the Sentinel, for comment:

By some freak of nature a full grown male quail belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lytel, of Petrolia, has taken over the household duties of his able-bodied mate, hatched a brood of young quail and now cares for them as Mrs. Quail should be doing.

Mrs. Lytel, who has been raising quail for the past several years, noticed several months ago that the male had a tendency to set while the female was not particularly interested. Allowing the male to do the "setting," it developed that he had acquired the mother instincts and his mate was acquiring the male characteristics.

Mrs. Lytel states that it happens, occasionally, when a female quail is killed, that the male takes care of the brood but that such an occurrence as this is of extreme rarity.

Summer Enrollment Large
Enrollment at the University of Oregon summer session neared the 600 mark at the end of the second week, when the total climbed to 576. Since there is no penalty for late registration, several students are expected to complete registration in the near future.

This is a marked increase over the total of last summer, when the number reached 450. Other state institutions holding summer sessions also show an increase, it is stated. With 580 students enrolled early in the Portland session, special and regular student late enrollments are expected to bring this total to 800.

Ferry Tolls Figures
While it is possible that tolls never will be charged on the five Coast highway bridges, construction on which is practically ready to start, nevertheless a scheduled has been adopted to comply with the federal public works administration requirements, as follows:
Automobile and driver 20c.
Each additional passenger 5c.
Trucks under three tons 60c.
Over three tons 90c.
Bus and driver 90c.
Each additional passenger 5c.
Local traffic will have advantage of commutation tickets.

Two County Charges Die
Fred Knutson, a county charge, 65 years of age, was found dead Wednesday morning at the place on which he lived, north of the Masonic cemetery. Little is known of him here except that he has many relatives living in Minnesota.

Fred Westbrook, 75, who died at the county farm last Saturday morning, was buried Tuesday at Bandon in the K. P. cemetery. He had been at the farm four years. A son, Ben C. Westbrook, resides in St. Paul, Minn. The addresses of another son and a daughter are unknown.

UNDER THE BLEACHERS
(By Mark Seeley)

If the fans are never agitated to such a show, they will be satisfied, anyway. The games on Sunday and Monday in which Coquille's Loggers fought tooth and nail with the House of David were big enough menus to fill all stomachs in a southwestern Oregon. For genuine excitement and old-time competition the two-day stand was chuck-a-block.

As if they were rivals of traditional history, the whiskers and the Loggers fought like two young wildcats. Theumps had many sorry times, the poor things, and with all this continual starting of upheavals, the players got in the best baseball looks seen in our old ball orchard for some time. Sunday's encounter was the slickest exhibition seen in years, while the last contest was not far behind. Thrills and excitement prevailed.

The fact that a supposedly weak local team rose to such a playing pitch was the highlight. The pitching of Bob Wiltshire and Jack Andrews of the Loggers and of Nuser of the House of David was far above bush league standard, while Speisman, the other long-haired hill artist, also gave a creditable showing. Each lasted the route without effort, and the total number of hits garnered from their deliveries in two games was a mere twenty-six. The eighth hits off Speisman on Sunday was the high mark against an individual hurler.

To Coquille's outfield, composed of Art Pulford, Glenn Murray, Wally Marsden and Bob Thompson, is due no end of praise. The spirited play of Marion Fischer on Sunday was, perhaps, the best individual performance, rivaled by the hurlers, Andrews, Wiltshire and Nuser, and Glenn Murray. But to be fair both clubs were on their toes, and with an impartial feeling we write that the Loggers were the best, at least on Sunday and Monday.

The Coquille team play on Sunday was something that you read about, but seldom see. On this day, the Loggers clicked beautifully as a unit of nine men—catcher, pitcher, infielders and outfielders.

Bad Man Atwell, the deep-lunged House of David shortstop, made a publicity hog of himself by swatting a pitch over the left field fence in the eighth inning on Monday. The run was the deciding score.

The House of David team that played Coquille is the original organization and the one that hails from Benton Harbor, Michigan, where the Israelite settlement holds forth. The team that played the Portland Beavers is a spur of the originals and was organized by a dismissed booking agent of the Israelites and on its roster are no long-haired players. It is a fast team, however, one composed entirely of professional players.

At one time there was only one House of David team, and the one playing here was one of the descendants of the original. Tucker, Tally and Andrews played on the first team and have been seen in Coos county in 1927, 1928, 1933 and 1934.

It will be very unlikely that an opportunity for us to pass on to you such a tremendous saving on any electric range will ever be possible again. We have certainly never had anything like it in the past. Recently in the Westinghouse factory stock inventory, a few ranges of this particular model (which was originally manufactured as a special Christmas offer to sell for a price more than twice what we are asking) were shown to be all that were left in stock. The factory close out order made it possible for us to buy some of them for our customers. They have not yet arrived but we have a sample for display purposes only which you may see at our store. If you want one of these ranges it will be necessary to place your order at once and even then we cannot promise delivery. We were only able to get a few . . . and a policy of first come first served will have to prevail. This range has everything . . . finest quality porcelain and chrome plate finish . . . fully automatic, even including timer clock . . . condiment jars, mirror, towel rack and smokeless broiler pan are included!
