Coquille Hi Ag Notes

The rating of each school participating in Stock Judging at the Pacific International stock show at Portland, has just been received by the local chapter of Future Farmers of America. There were 80 schools representing teams from Oregon, Idaho, Washington, California and Montana. Competition is very keen and a placing in the first half is considered good.

Coquille chapter placed 53rd out of the 80 teams entered. Their score of 2003½ is only 312½ points below the winning team. Classes of animals judged were: a class in swine, a class in Jerseys, a class in Holsteins, a class in beef and a class in sheep.

In the individual class rating Coquille's record was much better. The team placed 5th in Oregon and 6th among all states. In the beef classes the Coquille boys placed 24th among the 80 teams competing. Harold Neal and Clifford Norris, both of Fairview, placed 6th and 7th respectively in judging sheep.

The 6th annual father and son's banquet will be given at the High School at 7:30 o'clock this (Friday) evening. The boys are inviting their dads and friends and expect a large crowd. Last year there 138 present and this year they expect nearly 200.

Notes of Interest About the Coquille Schools

Do not forget the faculty play, "Oh, Doctor," is soon to be presented. Lester Wilson as "Sheep Kennedy," portrays "a regular boy of early teens." Red-headed and freckle-faced, "Sheep" is responsible for an accident while attempting to pull a tooth. "Lola," who is characterized by Grace Ellingsen, is the victim of Sheep's dentistry. Result, a fractured arm as well as a missing tooth.

Mr. Lane's class in Senior English has been keyed up the past week over a debate. With interest running high the question, "Shall the Contract System be Abolished," has added much to a noticed increase in Student Body spirit.

The Juniors are to be commended for their issue of the Hi-Times. Under Miss Gould's guidance the students have become somewhat versed in the trials and tribulations of the newspaper field. A project of this type is one that the newer education emphasizes as having considerable influence in the youth's future citizenship.

If visitors are interested in the vocational aspects of the school, they are welcomed in the Commercial Department. It is extremely interesting to notice the efficiency with which beginning and advanced students are taught in the same class of typing. This measure was made necessary in order to take care of the overloaded conditions in the department. The students are looking forward to entering a team in the state typing contest.

Students are becoming enthusiastic over the prospective tryouts for the debate team to be held in December. Under Miss Hill's tutelage the question, "Resolved that the federal government should adopt the policy of equalizing educational opportunity throughout the nation by means of annual grants to the several states for public elementary and secondary education," promises to be a lively

Dave Carey Family Reunion at Powers Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Carey, of Powers, enjoyed a very pleasant day Sunday, Nov. 11, when all their children, except one son, Jack, gathered at their home for a family reunion. The weather man was very kind in providing a warm, sunshiny day so that the bountiful laden table could be spread outside. Mr. and Mrs. Carey have passed their golden wedding anniversary and are still enjoying very good health.

Those present to take part in the glorious event were: Mr. and Mrs. Dave Carey, of Powers, and the following children, Frank Carey, of Powers; Mrs. Nettie Clancey, of Eureka, Calif.; Mrs. Chas. Bellshaw and Mrs. W. R. Northrup, of Myrtle Point; Mrs. J. A. Johnston, of San Francisco, Calif.; Mrs. G. M. Goodwin, of the Hawaiian Island, besides the following relatives and friends: Chas. Bellshaw and daughters, Alice and Mary Anne, W. R. Northrup and sons, Wilmer and David, all of Myrtle Point; J. A. Johnston, of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Sherrard, of Coquille; and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Glenn and daughter, Helen, of McKinley.

Fine Program for Teachers

Teachers will enjoy an interesting program at Millington school Saturday, Nov. 17th. Mrs. Inez Chase, president of the association for childhood education, will preside. The program has been worked out by Gladys Durrand, of Flagstaff school, with the help of adjoining teachers. Esther Meyers, of Marshfield, will give report of project covering nature study and civics. Ann Maler, Marshfield, will report on music and rhythm in primary grades. Teachers will be led in a round table discussion in third grade geography and spelling. All interested are invited. Each visitor will bring his own lunch; coffee, cream and sugar will be provided.

Pictures at the Liberty The Coming Week

What is said to be the best music of five well-known melody makers will be heard in "Down to Their Last Yacht," when that glamorous musical extravaganza comes to the Liberty Theatre tonight and Saturday. Believing that even the best of the modern composers fail to create sure-fire song hits at every attempt, the producers engaged an unusual number of tuneesters, and selected only the cream of their output. Chief among those who contribute song to the production is Ann Ronell, noted as author of the radio lyrics for the sensational success, "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf." Others are Will Jason and Val Burton, composers for "So This Is Harris," which recently won the Academy award, and Cliff Friend and Sid Mitchell, a well known song writing team. Mary Boland has the principal featured role in "Down to Their Last Yacht." The picture is a musical satire on impoverished aristocrats and the vulgar newly-rich stranded on a primitive island peopled with voluptuous natives.

Many motion picture casts have boasted peers—even a Duke or so—but RKO-Radio goes them all two better by co-starring a King and Queen in the current musical comedy, "The Gay Divorcee," which comes to the Liberty Sunday for a three-day run. Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, the stars, were recently crowned, by public acclaim, as the "King and Queen of Carleoc" because of their interpretation of the fiery, exciting dance in "Flying Down to Rio." In "The Gay Divorcee" the great terpsichorean pair present two grand new dances, one called "Day and Night," originated by Astaire and called "the dance of moods," another, the hit of the show, called "The Continental."

The latter creation, staged by Dave Gould, who staged the "Carleoc" in

"Flying Down to Rio," has already become the rage with movie folks, who call it "The Joy Dance" because it is said to combine beauty and sport, and is also well within the capabilities of young and old. The play, a brisk and rollicking comedy built around a 100-mile-an-hour romance involving Astaire, Miss Rogers, Alice Brady and Edward Everett Horton, was adapted for the screen from the stage play which ran a full season in New York and another six months in London, starring Astaire.

Eight persons, friends, enemies, lovers, trapped in a penthouse high above New York City, battle a hidden and ruthless foe in the picture, "The Ninth Guest," showing as the preview this week end. Penthouses have superseded drawing rooms as locales for murder—on the screen, at least. Usually the penthouse is used as a locale merely because penthouses are smart; in "The Ninth Guest," the penthouse is a necessary part of the plot, for the situation could not arise in a drawing room. The eight are invited guests to a mysterious party high atop a large down-town skyscraper. When assembled, they are told by a voice over the radio that they are in rapid succession to meet death. Escape is impossible. The nearest help is forty stories below, on the street. Before the action of the picture is finished six of the eight guests have been murdered or driven to suicide.
