Farmers Picnic at Norway

A large attendance of dairymen, farmers and others were present in the Norway grove last Sunday for the annual farmers' picnic, sponsored this year by Pomona Grange and the Coos County Dairymen's Association.

The basket dinner at one o'clock was the first event of a pleasant afternoon which included a program arranged by Beth Culver, of Bridge, Pomona Grange lecturer; speaking, horseshoe pitching and other games.

Ray Gill, master of the state grange, was present from Portland and urged the passage this fall of the two state power bills and the state bank bill, all of which are sponsored by the Grange.

Prof. Roger Morse, of the O. S. C. extension service, talked on dairying. He urged all dairymen who have not done so to have their herds cleaned up and freed from Bang's disease infected animals. The federal indemnity law will expire next July and the farmers were urged to have affected cattle killed while they could still collect from the government for their loss.

John Steinbeck, after of the Tillamook county power district organization, and Ray Maxwell, told of the efforts and success achieved in getting the district formed. He said there were nine counties now organized to avail themselves of power from Bonneville when that Columbia river project is completed.

Fingerprints Disclose Identity

Kermit Shaw, Coquille police officer, who is making the study of fingerprinting a serious business, shows the Sentinel a copy of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's law enforcement bulletin in which is described how a man found in the high Sierras after he had been dead five months, was identified because the bureau had on file a print of his thumbs, and there was still sufficient flesh on his fingers to make identification positive. It required surgical operations and a good soaking of the hands in a caustic solution to bring out the lines, but it was accomplished.

All of us are inclined to think of fingerprinting solely as a means of detecting criminals, and that is its largest use at the present time, but it may also be a means of relieving the uncertainty of loved ones when a person has disappeared.

In the above mentioned case the man was a communist who died of starvation during the winter.

Fire at Barbour Home Wed.

The Roy Abbott house on South Heath street caught fire on the roof about 7:30 Wednesday evening, supposedly from a spark and by the time the fire department arrived was blazing fiercely, both on-top of and underneath the shingles.

The department arrived promptly and the fire was quickly extinguished with a single stream of water, but before it had damaged most of the roof.

The house is occupied by Jerry C. Barbour and family. He is employed on the logging train crew. His wife, who was canning corn, had stepped over to a neighbor's and did not know the house was on fire until notified by a friend.

The assistant chief of the fire department estimates the loss on roof and household equipment, from smoke and water, at $250.

Cashed Three $15 Checks

A check artist was working in Coquille after the bank closed last Saturday. It was not forgery but a case of no funds. Three checks for $15 each were cashed by unsuspecting local merchants, two drawn on the bank here and one on the First National of Marshfield. W. M. Brown was the name signed with Art Webster, as payee. The crook had skipped before payment at the bank was refused Monday morning.

HOW THE BANKS AID THE GOVERNMENT

Normal and Emergency Needs Met by Advances of Commercial Banking Credit

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — The American commercial banking credit system is an absolute essential in the financial operations of business and government, Harold G. Moulton, President of the Brookings Institution of Washington, D. C., said here recently in an address before the Graduate School of Banking conducted under the joint auspices of Rutgers University and the American Bankers Association.

If the flexibility and expansibility provided by commercial banking credit were eliminated, Dr. Moulton declared, "it is scarcely too much to say that the economic system itself would shortly be destroyed."

"Normally the amount of credit extended by commercial banks to the government is small in amount and for the purpose mainly of financing temporary requirements in anticipation of tax collections or bond sales. But in periods of war and acute depression, when the financial requirements of government expand with great rapidity, the expansion of commercial bank credit is on a tremendous scale. Such is the case at the present time."

How Public Needs Are Financed
"The purchase of government securities by individuals and by the commercial banks provides the government with the means by which its manifold activities are financed. The Treasury obtains the funds, with which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other government credit agencies finance their operations, through the sale of securities, largely to commercial banks. These funds, in turn, have gone to the assistance of distressed banks and other financial institutions, to aid industrial and agricultural enterprises, to finance new public and private capital construction, and to provide relief to the unemployed."

Dr. Moulton declared that it is not true that the world depression was caused by a breakdown of the American banking system "which did not, in fact, occur until the depression had been under way for more than three years." He added:
"Nor is it true that the world maladjustments existing in 1929 can be explained simply by undue extensions of commercial banking credit in the preceding years. These maladjustments involved world agricultural, industrial, commercial and financial relations."

FARM ACCOUNTING REVEALS LESSONS

Principles of Sound Business Management That Apply to All Farms

An analysis made of detailed records kept by a group of Wisconsin farms revealed several important lessons and the principles of sound business management derived from them apply equally well to other farms, says an article in the Bulletin of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association. The article says:
"Investment costs, including interest, depreciation, repairs, taxes and insurance, are approximately two-thirds of all farm costs. Furthermore, these costs are largely independent of the production program of the farm."
"This means that if a farmer cuts his production of crops or livestock, he increases his investment costs per unit of product produced, as a smaller number of units must then carry as large an expense load as before. This illustrates the importance, from the standpoint of costs, of operating a farm at or near capacity."

"Investment mistakes are more costly than many others because they cannot easily be corrected. If a farmer pays too much for his farm, his investment costs will be abnormally high as long as he owns it. If he constructs a $4,000 barn when a $2,000 barn would have served his purpose, he will have excessive barn costs, year after year, during the entire service life of the structure."
"This emphasizes the importance of a knowledge of investment values and the specific investment requirements of individual farms."

Determining Real or False Economies
"In working for greater economy, it is essential that the farm manager be able to distinguish between a real and a false saving. This can be done only through a careful estimate of the contribution to income, over a period of time, of each item of expenditure. Only if more is saved in expense than will be lost in income, can a contemplated cut in expense be designated as a real saving."
"For example, dropping dairy herd improvement work may result in a yearly expense reduction. The question to decide is what effect the dropping of this work will have on the present and future income from the dairy herd. If the estimated loss in livestock receipts due to a lowered efficiency in feeding and breeding is greater than the original saving, then it would obviously be a false economy."
"Substantial savings can be effected on many farms through the use of more home grown garden produce and farm cured meats. Why pay out money for products of this kind that can be produced much cheaper at home? The money saved from the family food budget can be used for the purchase of many things that will make the farm home a more comfortable and pleasant place to live."
