Walter Robison, of Glenside, California, arrived Sunday to visit his father, Price Robison, who has been in poor health since he suffered a stroke in December, which was followed by flu in January. Mr. Robison happily planned a big chicken dinner and a gathering of his clan in honor of Walter for Monday noon. The brother and sisters were notified. Mr. Robison had his breakfast in bed so he could be well rested by noon. Mrs. Robison settled him in bed and then returned with a drink of water for him to find that he had had a paralytic stroke and that his entire left side was helpless. The doctor was called and Mrs. John Myers as nurse but his weakened condition and advanced years make recovery practically impossible. He has not taken nourishment nor regained consciousness since the seizure. All of his children, including Mrs. Clarence Schroeder, of Corvallis, who arrived Monday night, are at home.
