IT WAS FILMED IN OREGON AND WASHINGTON

"God's Country and the Woman" at Liberty Sunday

With virgin forests of the Northwest as its background and a feud between rival lumber companies as its theme, "God's Country and the Woman," Warner Bros.' picturization in natural colors of the James Oliver Curwood novel of the same name, comes to the Liberty Theatre on Sunday with George Brent and Beverly Roberts in the stellar roles.

"God's Country and the Woman," which was screened almost wholly in the big woods district of Oregon and Washington, is said to be the last word in natural color photography.

The story revolves about the fact that Brent has a brother, Robert Barrat, who heads a lumber company and whose hatred is aimed against Beverly Roberts who owns a rival company. He is engineering a crooked deal which will make the girl pay unreasonable royalties for transporting supplies across his territory—when the younger brother arrives on the scene—and plays hob with his plans.

Brent upsets the deal, denounces his brother, and starts back to the city. Barrat has him shanghaied and brought back to the woods—with the idea of forcing him to become a lumberman.

Then begins the terrific conflict between the brothers—and the strange romance with the beautiful girl of the timberlands.

"God's Country and the Woman" presents many spectacular scenes—among which is the flight of a runaway log train plunging into a gorge and forming a gigantic log jam—and the dynamiting of the jam to set free timber that must be at tidewater by a certain date.

It is said that more than a hundred movie technicians journeyed twelve hundred miles from Hollywood to a point near Longview, Washington, to build a railroad of their own for the runaway scene. They were forced to lay cable for more than a mile to carry electric current into the forest for the cameras and sound equipment.

One of those who saw a Hollywood preview of "God's Country and the Woman" made the remark that the color is as natural as the talk, and that the gorgeous forest scenes are the nearest approach possible to a trip to the Great Northwest. Snow-capped mountains, blue or cloud-heaped sky—tumbling waterfalls—giant trees in their glory or falling by the woodsmen's axes—tones of flesh and of costumes—of fire and the debris hurled by dynamite—all appear in the subdued but satisfying beauty as though seen by the natural eye with no other medium.

"God's Country and the Woman" is declared to be not only the most difficult color picture ever filmed but the most beautiful.

Bank Opens Installment Credit Loan Department

Establishment of an Installment Credit Loan department by the Coquille Branch of The First National Bank of Portland was, made public this week by E. D. Webb, manager. In their first week of operation the new departments are receiving excellent public response, according to Mr. Webb.

Similar departments have been opened in the 34 other branches of the Portland bank. Through this department bank credit is made available on a monthly repayment plan to wage earners, salaried men and women and other individuals having steady incomes and satisfactory credit records. Establishment of this Installment Credit Loan service is being announced by The First National in an extensive advertising campaign in Coquille and throughout the state.

unexpected expenses, financing the purchase of an automobile and many other daily financial needs of our customers and other residents of this district now may be provided for in our new Installment Credit Loan department," Mr. Webb said. "We are pleased to bring to Coquille this added bank service. Banks have often been considered as limiting their lending operations to large borrowers. We believe installment financing at a reasonable rate of interest is an important service the bank should extend to individuals."

"Loans made under this plan will enable borrowers to have the advantage of paying cash for automobiles and other purchases. Certainly this plan will increase the helpfulness of this bank to the great majority of bank customers."

Supplementing the statewide newspaper advertising are billboards, radio, direct mail and other media. Mr. Webb attended a meeting in Portland on February 27, when plans for establishment of the Installment Credit Loan departments were discussed by branch managers and officers of the bank.

Townsend Club Weekly Meeting

When the Coquille Townsend club met in regular session Tuesday evening in the W. O. W. hall those attending experienced another of the good times the members always have. The Townsend orchestra furnished enjoyable music during the evening under the leadership of Clyde Gage. During the business session the members discussed several plans for the coming months and the first one to materialize will be the Townsend cooked food sale to be held tomorrow (Saturday) in Nosler's Grocery. Members are asked to bring their contributions as soon after eight o'clock as possible. Buy your dessert and salads from the cooked food sale and save the bother of making your own.

After the business the members indulged in singing old time songs. Levi Bunch proved to be a very efficient song leader and all present enjoyed the social hour.

It is planned to have entertainment every meeting. Next Tuesday evening there will be three out-of-town speakers. Each one will give short talks on subjects of his own choosing. Other plans are being made also and members not present will miss a fine meeting.

County Arrests Past Week

Ben Fuller was arrested at Marshfield on Tuesday for officers in Idaho, where he is wanted on a rape charge.

John W. Heard, on Wednesday, was brought to the county jail from Marshfield where he was charged with obtaining property under false pretenses. He gave a no good check for $250 in payment for a used car, and was captured at Newport. Bail was set at $2,000.

Capt. Bown Talks to Club on Highway Safety

miles without an accident. In 95 per cent of accidents the driver is the cause of trouble, and not the tires or the brakes. Next comes the pedestrian and the jaywalker.

In 1936, 38,000 people were killed by autos, one every 15 minutes, in the United States, and the average personal injury is one every 31 seconds.

The bus driver above referred to gave as his motto that he "never gussed with the other fellow and never had the right of way."

The major problem of the police is the speed maniac, and in all the cases investigated by police the speed fiend is unable to tell what he was going to do with the time he saved.

Twenty-seven per cent of all crashes are caused by passing with insufficient clearance or while approaching the crest of a hill.

To secure sane and safe driving the captain listed three points—mass education in the schools and at home, adequate policing of highways to regulate traffic, and the securing of support for an impartial prosecution of reckless drivers. A criminal, involved in almost any crime, can be convicted, but it's extremely hard to secure conviction in a drunken driving case the captain said.

Frequent inspection of a car and its tires, brakes, etc., were mentioned as a necessity, for safe driving, and for the other fellow a proper adjustment of lights. Glaring headlights are the greatest cause of accidents at night.

In answer to a question Capt. Bown said that statistics showed that in 92 per cent of all accidents a man was the driver. That includes boys. Women and girls are responsible for but eight per cent. Nearly all accidents involve drivers between the ages of 25 and 60.

In 80 per cent of all accident cases the passenger car is involved, commercial cars in only 12.8 per cent.

While it is generally believed in Oregon that this state has no maximum speed law, the captain said any speed in excess of 45 miles per hour can be treated as excessive under the basic rules of the road in this state.

Three reckless driving convictions in twelve months or less makes it mandatory on the presiding judge to revoke a driver's license.

In closing Capt. Bown gave utterance of last year's highway slogan—"Quit killing; let's live and let live."

Geraldine Holcomb registered on Monday from McMinnville, Oregon.

Band Uniforms to Arrive
Superintendent Lane has received word that the high school band uniforms may be expected shortly after March 12. The uniforms were ordered last December but, because of clothing strikes in the east, have been delayed. The band, in uniform, is expected to make its first appearance at the Rotarian dinner of April 3.

School Annual Falls
All plans for a school annual were suspended by order of the student council which met Monday. Only ninety-five students had signed as willing to purchase a copy and to make expenses 130 purchasers would have been necessary.
