Woman's Club Starts

Its 1937-38 Program

The Coquille Woman's club held its first meeting of the fall in the Guild Hall Tuesday afternoon, with the new president, Mrs. J. Loy Stacer, in the chair. The room was tastefully decorated with hanging vases and bouquets of pink asters, button zinnias, sweet peas, snapdragons and other mixed flowers. The meeting started with the singing of the club song, followed by the pledge to the flag, both led by Mrs. Leona Bryant. The club voted to subscribe one hundred percent for the "Oregon Club-woman." This magazine is to specialize in the arts and important features of club work.

The Coos County Woman's Club meeting will be held in Coquille Tuesday, Oct. 12, for an all-day session, starting at ten o'clock a. m., with Mrs. Neil Banks, of North Bend, county president, presiding.

A motion was made that the club get behind the "Community Concert Association" project and that each member be a publicity agent. This is for the purpose of having artists forming the Columbia Broadcasting Co. appear in concerts in the county.

Mrs. Stacer appointed the following ladies as chairmen of committees this year: Membership, Mrs. D. D. Dale; Educational, Mrs. C. W. Kline; Civic, Mrs. Frank Rover; Finance, Mrs. L. M. Jolly; Health, Mrs. L. M. Jolly; Library, Mrs. Hal Pierce; Courtesy, Mrs. James Watson; Welfare, Mrs. J. R. Bunch; Press, Mrs. R. E. Boober; Song Leader, Mrs. Geo. Bryant; Music, Mrs. M. O. Hawkins. Mrs. C. W. Kline, program chairman for this meeting, introduced Mrs. Mildred Tyrrell, who sang two lovely solos: "To a hilltop" and "I know a lovely garden." She was accompanied by Mrs. Hawkins.

Mrs. Kline then presented Clarence Osika, who gave a splendid talk on "Safety in the Schools." The National Federation of Women's Clubs is stressing "Safety and Law Enforcement" this year. Mrs. O. C. Sanford is the state chairman on this committee. Mr. Osika emphasized the fact that the driver is the most important part of driving safely and then the facts: first, of knowing how to drive; second, knowledge of traffic laws; third, judgement of hazards of the road; fourth, freedom from physical defects are absolutely necessary. He said that the schools are giving fifteen minutes each morning for four weeks to preach safety to the school children.

After this worthwhile program, a social time was enjoyed, followed by dainty refreshments served by the following committee: Mesdames R. A. Wernich, Earl Leslie, G. A. Ulett, J. A. Berg, L. H. Hazard, M. O. Hawkins and G. A. Bryant, to these ladies: Mesdames Harold McCue, J. D. Gillespie, E. C. Ashworth, W. H. Mansell, C. V. Smith, Frank Martin, L. E. Phipps, C. W. Kline, T. T. Denison, M. Labor Meetings Past Week

Labor meetings were held again in Coquille last Friday and on Monday night, the first being an A. F. of L. get-together of the lumber and sawmill workers of that union and the other a combined meeting of both A. F. of L. partisans and International Woodworkers of America followers.

At Woodmen Hall Monday's meeting presented a "disinterested" speaker, A. L. Jameson, of the Beall Pipe and Tank Corporation, who spoke on "Co-operation" in regard to the present labor situation. Jameson had been requested to speak at this meeting after he had made another address previously to local district truck drivers.

Recorder Frank Leslie opened the meeting and introduced Jameson. The hall was nearly filled to its small capacity and the meeting continued without disturbance.

Mr. Jameson stated that labor is in a predicament from the Atlantic to the Pacific. He quoted Abraham Lincoln in saying, "If we only knew where we were going we would better know what to do."

According to Jameson, labor has no path to follow, and the road is all the more uncertain now that the ranks are split. He continued on to say, "Labor is split, but whatever it is split over I don't know."

As an example, Jameson pictured the Oregon lumber industry in a deep trouble unless the longshoremen and the teamsters settle troubles. Jameson stated that Oregon hops are sold to eastern breweries and that these firms have products in the midst of jurisdictional battles.

In closing Jameson appealed to local labor to think before listening to organizers. "In unionism there is strength," he said, "but in individualism there is not."

Friday night the A. F. of L. presented five speakers to a divided crowd in the Community Hall, A. F. of L. members selecting the north bleachers and the International Woodworkers of America, C. I. O. affiliate, took the opposite side.

Perry Ashcraft, president of the local Timber and Sawmill Workers Union under the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the A. F. of L., presided.

Ashcraft presented H. C. Tripp, president of the Central Labor Council in Marshfield; C. A. Paddock, temporary president of the Oregon-Washington Council of the Timber and Sawmill Workers; Joe Hennessy, organizer and member of Marshfield's plywood local; M. A. Lovay, special representative from San Francisco, connected with the International Association of Machinists; a member of the electricians local in Coquille working in the Smith Wood-Products plywood plant; and H. A. Minter, of the Coquille A. F. of L. plywood local.

Tripp pleaded for the speakers to forget personalities, but before the addresses were completed this had been forgotten. C. A. Paddock connected many C. I. O. leaders with communism, while at the conclusion of his talk Minter had hurled remarks at L. M. Jolly, I. W. A. organizer, who was sitting with his group on the south side.

Jolly's attempt to answer the challenge that "your name suits you quite well. You are a Jolly liar," was stymied by the closing of the open meeting by Ashcraft. C. I. O. leaders and followers were refused permission to ask questions or to present their case. They appeared desirous of answering accusations.

The A. F. of L. speakers reiterated their stand that their group had maintained labor's commanding position, that the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners had faithfully represented the timber and sawmill workers, and that opportunists had broken the ranks.

After the open meeting the A. F. of L. members met in closed session.

City Police Court Cases

Carmel Sanders served three days in jail and then paid the balance of $4.00 on the fine assessed by Recorder Leslie last Saturday morning. He was locked up the night before.

John Burke, of Myrtle Point, was quite penitent when he appeared before the recorder last Saturday and as it was his first offense here the judge gave him a $10 suspended fine.

John Alexander Murphy was arrested by Marshal English at three o'clock last Monday morning for disturbing the peace. The marshal tried to get him to go home, but he persisted in wheeling the Noster Grocery vegetable truck, which had been left outside, up and down the sidewalk. He paid the $10 fine assessed by the recorder.

"Bacon" Sanders was in again Tuesday night, this time for fighting with Jack Broshears who was also arrested, but pleaded not guilty and after hearing the evidence Recorder dismissed the case against him on Wednesday.

According to the testimony Sanders had interfered with Broshears' picket duty in front of the Steak House, of which "Red" Lucas is proprietor and which has been picketed for the past two weeks. As soon as Broshears was relieved, about seven o'clock

Tuesday evening, Sanders continued his talk and Broshears knocked him down. Bacon came back for more and was felled several times before the police stopped it.

Sanders is serving out a $30 fine handed him by the judge Wednesday morning.
