BLIZZARDS
IN THE MOUNTAINS
MAYBE!

But—

Uninterrupted service is the ideal of every electric service company, and it is a continual battle with the elements to provide it. Many a stormy night when you are cosy and warm inside your house, with cheerful lights and an entertaining radio, our linemen are working desperately out in the storm because the service must go on

Sometimes, of course, the elements win. But these occasions are so infrequent, and service is in most cases so quickly restored that we feel justified in calling to your attention how nearly we do approach our ideal of uninterrupted service.
