

Miss Violet's got Rhythm

Miss Violet Parsons, she gives piano lessons, so I'm tryin' to talk her language.

"Miss Parsons," I says, "drivin' a car nowadays is like doin' that 'Big Apple' dance. It's all stop and go. I bet you stop and start a dozen times a day, going around givin'

"Will wise year in may your car, your oil all drains off the movin' parts in your engine. Then you start up. Right there a lot of wear happens.

"That is, unless you use an oil that 'snaps into it'- flows fast, you know, whenever you start.

"Now, we got that kind of oil. Here it is right here," I says, showin' a bottle of Golden Shell.

"And it's only a quarter. "Gosh, Miss Violet, it just makes music in your motor! . .' "All oil just looks gooey to me," she comes back.

Miss Parsons ain't mechanical, you see. But I ain't musical, so that makes us even, I guess. Anyway, Miss Violet's got rhythm in her motor since she took my advice and bought Golden Shell.

Disney "Firsts"

Walt Disney has pioneered every orward step in the history of present-day animated pictures.

The first animated sound picture in the film industry was his Mickey Mouse, "Steamboat Willie, made in 1928. ers and Trees," which raked in awards both in the United States and abroad.

The first animated picture to show an illusion of third dimension was "The Old Mill," recently completed, and which was a testing ground, in this respect, for the first nimated feature, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," produced in Technicolor.

All of these developments have taken place within the last ten years, since Disney started his now-extensive studio in the back of a garage, with his brother and two assistants as the staff.
