POWERFUL DRAMA "CRIME SCHOOL" AT ROXY TONIGHT

SOMETIMES amusing, sometimes tragic, and always exciting, "Crime School," the Warner Bros. picture opening at the Roxy Theatre tonight, contains a powerful indictment of unthinking, brutal, out-modern methods of dealing with juvenile crime.

Effectively utilizing the talents of the six New York boys who became famous in both stage and screen versions of "Dead End," as well as such adult players as Humphrey Bogart and Gale Page, the latter a beautiful newcomer to the screen from radio, the new Warner picture makes a strong case for its basic theme—that the old type of boys' reformatory is in fact a "Crime School."

The newer methods of dealing with juvenile offenders—designed to prevent their developing into adult criminals—are effectively contrasted with the old by basing the story on the determined fight made by an idealistic young official to introduce his ideas into a reformatory of the old type.

The story, written by Crane Wilbur and made into a screen play by him and Vincent Sherman, makes the six "Dead End" boys the storm center around which this fight rages. Bogart, for the first time in his screen career playing a hero, is the idealistic commissioner and he plays his role not only with sympathetic understanding but also with the vigor and aggressiveness demanded of a character who successfully battles not only stupidity and prejudice but also political hypocrisy and crookedness.

Remarkably true-to-life performances by the six boys have much to do with making the production both entertaining and moving. Lew Seiler, the director, evidently knew just when to let the boys take the bit in their teeth and when to rein them in. That he was a good choice for director is proven by the picture itself, and therefore it is not surprising to learn that he spent his own boyhood in an environment similar to the home neighborhood of the boy characters in the picture.

Ecadrians Meet With Mrs. Axtell

Mrs. J. E. Axtell was hostess to the "Ecadrians" and a few extra guests for one o'clock luncheon Monday. It was also a surprise shower for "Grandma" Bosserman. The ladies looked very attractive with unique centerpieces emblematic of the occasion and cute place cards carrying out the motif. After the "surprise" was over the ladies spent a very busy afternoon "hemming." Even Mr. Osika added his bit to the party. Those present were: Mesdames J. L. Aasen, Frank Thrift, F. A. Robb, E. M. Kay, R. E. Boober, Geo. Battey, Earl Nessler, Clarence Osika, Hester Holverstott, T. S. Stevens, J. L. Smith, Geo. Johnson, W. E. Bosserman and the hostess.

Services At The Tabernacle

The revival meetings which Evangelist N. W. Jennings is conducting at the Gospel Tabernacle (Assembly of God) will close on the coming Sunday. Good congregations heard the evangelist this week and last. Monday was a big day with delegations from ten other churches present for the fellowship meeting. Mrs. Henry Carver spoke in the morning while the afternoon was given to reports from the various ministers and a missionary message by Mrs. Faye Patterson from Java. Rev. Mr. Jennings brought the evangelistic message in the evening.

There will be a special meeting Saturday night for the benefit of the men on evening shift at the mill. The evangelist will have charge of a decision meeting in the Sunday School at 9:45 and will speak at both morning and evening services as well.

Next week there will be the regular services of the church with the pastor, R. D. E. Smith, officiating. Prayer meetings are on Tuesday night, Bible study on Friday.

No Recommendations Yet Made For More Water

Furthermore there would only be about three months in the winter when it would be safe to empty the reservoir while working on the fill, and it would require at least two winter seasons to come anywhere near doing the job.

Another objection to the engineers' report is that the additional storage would not provide much more than 15 million additional gallons and when the dam was raised the city would have to begin at once to seek a new source of supply. The cost of raising the dam and other expenses incidental to the job is estimated at over $30,000.

Nor was the North Fork source, to be secured by pumping the water to an elevation of 627 feet and letting it run down Rink creek to the reservoir, given very serious consideration by those who looked at it.

The North Fork is flowing, but the pool from which it was proposed to pump looked stagnant, and there is much stock above that point which has access to the river.

If Coquille must purify its water, as would be necessary if taken from that stream, it might better put in a purifying plant and pump directly from the river above town. That is what will be done if the town ever attains the size of a city and the water from the river can be made just as pure as that of Medford which comes from the base of Mt. Pitt without ever being exposed to the light.

A third possibility was recommended by J. E. Norton at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Tuesday noon. The state board of health has condemned the water from the well drilled across the highway from the Smith plant a few years ago, as being polluted by drainage from the surrounding residence district. Mr. Norton's idea was that several wells might be drilled not far from the river, above town, and a water supply secured in that way. Whether several wells can be depended upon to furnish sufficient water for a town of 4200, without enormous expense for pumping, is something that only the boring of such wells will tell. That one would not is almost certain.
