

Fred and Ginger Dance Again in "Care-free" Coming to Roxy Thurs., Fri., Sat.

Irving Berlin's New Music Revue's Famous Duo in Spectacular, Tunesful Tale of Doctor Who Plays John Alden to the Girl He Loves—New Ballroom Dance, "The Yam," Introduced

Bringing the world-famous team of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers together once more, RKO Radio's "Carefree" presents a glittering, joyous and song-filled film romance embellished with Irving Berlin's melodies, startling dance routines and a deftly-handled story.

Because Ginger keeps breaking off her wedding date with Ralph Bellamy, the latter asks Astaire, a psychiatrist, to fix up any lurking inhibitions the lady may have on the subject of marriage. The pretty patient complicates matters by falling in love with Fred instead of with Ralph.

When the psychiatrist fails to respond, the actress starts a hectic series of madcap adventures, the doctor meantime falling in love with her himself, only to find that he has a new resistance to overcome. How the seemingly lost cause is won at the last moment makes for the uproarious climax of the picture, which is said to be both the funniest and most entertaining of all the Astaire-Rogers vehicles.

The two stars, with cleverly drawn sketches on the picture, and the actress, have unusual opportunities to display the talents that made them the world's premiere dancing duo, and Ralph Bellamy as the lawyer forms the third corner of the tumultuous triangle in what is perhaps his finest role to date.

The brilliant supporting cast is headed by Luella Gear, noted Broadway comedienne, and Jack Carson, hailed as the comedy "discovery" of the year, along with Clarence Kell and Franklin Pangborn. Four of Irving Berlin's catchiest tunes, "The Night Is Filled With Music," "I Used to Be Color Blind," "The Yam" and "Change Partners," are featured in the picture, and all four are in the top rank of popularity in the nation's song lists. There is a choral feature also by Robert B. Mitchell and his St. Brendan Boys.

The dance numbers of "Carefree," following the Astaire-Rogers tradition of introducing spectacular routines into vehicles, are unusually diversified. They include the Golf Dance, a solo novelty by Astaire; the "Change Partners" routine, a sensational romantic ballroom dance; a dream fantasy number, and "The "Yam," a colorful but simple ballroom routine, the first dance the two stars have ever presented which can without revision be performed by the general public, and which has caught on widely.
