"Breaking The Ice" with Bobby Breen at The Roxy Thursday, Friday, Saturday

Picture Introduces Irene Dare, Six-Year-Old Figure-Skater, in Elaborate Ice Carnival—Charlie Ruggles, Dolores Costello Featured in Support—Strong Cast

Boasting a story genuinely human in theme, richly enhanced by homely humor, with scenes laid in the contrasting backgrounds of a quaintly rustic section of Pennsylvania and the entertainment world of Chicago, and with an elaborate and beautiful sequences of an ice-skating carnival as its show-piece, Bobby Breen's latest and by far most pretentious picture, "Breaking the Ice," approaches screen presentation. It will be seen at the Roxy Theatre, for three days, beginning tonight.

Featuring the world's youngest ice figure-skater, Irene Dare, and Charlie Ruggles and Dolores Costello, at the head of a supporting cast of brilliant names, the film takes rank easily as Bobby Breen's most important vehicle.

Bobby himself, whose glorious singing voice has enriched four previous pictures, emerges in "Breaking the Ice" as an entirely different screen personality. The boy is strangely revitalized. Many of the mannerisms which he had been taught to adopt in his previous work are gone, and he stands out as a dominant character, a scrappy hero, who takes his own life's adversity with a song on his lips and dynamite in his fists.

Another factor which lends importance to the picture is its size and quality. Plain is the fact that this is the costliest of all Bobby Breen features to date. The sets are elaborate, and the songs the boy sings are the best he has ever had.

It is interesting to observe that Victor Young, the noted orchestra leader, is responsible for the musical setting, and that Frank Churchill, in collaboration with Paul Webster, wrote three of the five songs Bobby sings. Churchill is the man who composed those unforgettable numbers in Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

The picture numbers among its supporting cast such stellar players as

Charlie Ruggles and Dolores Costello, and Robert Barrat, Dorothy Peterson, Charlie Murray and Billy Gilbert. But the big surprise is little Irene Dare, the six-year-old figure skater who is known throughout the middle-west as the "Baby Sonja Henie."

"Breaking the Ice" is little Miss Dare's debut in motion pictures and it is fortunate that she found a picture and a producer worthy of her unique talents. This child is a marvel at skating. With the least amount of effort she somersaults on ice, whirls, spins and dances to the accompaniment of a full orchestra of forty.

Film critics, always skeptical of new child discoveries, seem unanimous in their belief that she may become a really big child star of motion pictures. This same thought must have occurred to the producers, for they have given her an elaborate sequence said to have cost $100,000.

"Breaking the Ice" is a distinctly different Bobby Breen vehicle—better in story, larger in scope, superior musically, and by all odds the most entertaining film yet credited to the boy singer.

Edward Cline directed, from a screenplay by Mary McCall, Jr., Manual Seff and Bernard Schubert, and based on the story by Fritz Falkenstein and N. Brewster Morse, Sol Lesser produced the picture for RKO Radio distribution.

Senior Basket Social

The senior basket social held last Friday was enjoyed by a medium-sized group of people. The decorations in the gym were attractively arranged, Hallowe'en figures and black and orange streamers giving the impression of a dome-shaped ceiling. As special features, a tap dance was given by Wilma Drake and Bernice Haga, a banjo medley by Clifton Guerin, and the Lambeth Walk was demonstrated by all those who were willing to attempt it. Ross Jenkins auctioned the baskets which, with the pop and check booths, netted the seniors $16. Babe's Melody Kings provided music for the dance.

Physical Examinations

Dr. Stark and an assistant county nurse gave examinations to pupils of the first, fifth, and ninth grades in the Riverton school this morning (Thursday, Nov. 3). These examinations are being given to all students in the county in these grades.

Red Cross First Aid

Mr. Robinson has enrolled in the Red Cross first aid class at Coquille. Classes meet every Wednesday night for two hours. At the completion of twenty hours of instruction, he will receive a Red Cross first aid certificate.

Laura Pullen Passes

The Riverton high school students were grieved to learn of the death of Laura Pullen, who was a member of the Riverton class of 1938 until she transferred in her senior year to Myrtle Point High, where she graduated last spring.

Mabel Church Quits

The last few minutes of the English II class Tuesday, Oct. 25, were spent in an informal farewell party for Mabel Church, who found it necessary to discontinue school in order to help her parents with the work at home.

No School Friday

There will be no school at Riverton November 4, as the annual Coos county teachers' institute is being held on that date. However, don't forget "A Ready Made Family," which will be given Friday evening in the Riverton gym.

Louise Carlson Milani

Louise Carlson Milani (graduate of 1938) and her recently-acquired "Mr. Milani" were week-end visitors at the home of Mrs. Milani's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Carlson. The Riverton students were agreeably surprised to see them at the senior basket social. Mr. and Mrs. Milani make their home near Forest Grove, Oregon.
