

Chrome Shipment by Independence Mine

mine that could produce 150 tons per day, he wired, and he will shortly investigate this possibility with the mine owners. According to authorities, the Independence mine ore which has been uncovered is all high grade. In all probability there is a vast deposit beneath approximating at least 100,000 tons or more, which would not have been found had it not been for the outcropping of the high grade.

There are five men regularly employ the deposit up for removal. tual operation commencing, more will be added to the mining staff. Juel Gunderian has been awarded the contract for hauling the first order of 600 tons to the dock at Marshfield and he will use two trucks on a possible day and night shift in making the first shipment ready for market.

According to Frank Fish, in charge of the actual mine operations, a bull dozer has been placed in operation at the mine to clear off the top dirt and size the deposit up for removal from the deposit.

Several local business and professional men of this city and Marshfield have interests in the mine and it is expected that it will develop into an outstanding industry for Coos county. The mine is expected to produce that will take every ton that can be secured for shipment.

Cynthia Finds Her Heart

WHEN the Chiltons moved into the city, and left the old house, occupied by strangers, the young people breathed sighs of relief that the dullness of country life was to be succeeded by the wider life of the city.

Even Mrs. Chilton was stirred by the change, though sometimes, when Cynthia and Robert had gone gaily away on pleasure bent, she would dream of the old days before her husband died. She had seen more of her children then and had shared the lonely evenings. Of course, they told her incidents that happened at the office where they both worked, but sometimes she wondered if they were any happier for the larger salaries they received; certainly expenses were doubled. Cynthia looked pale and tired and had lost her rosiest.

One night they came in, Robert with an unaccustomed scowl and pretty Cynthia with dark circles under her eyes. "I knew that big stiff was no good," growled Robert flinging into a chair. "Robert, you've repented that so many times, and I'm tired of hearing it," protested his sister, bending to kiss her mother.

"Tell me about it, dear—what does Rob mean?" CYNTHIA brushed her tears away and told the story that had marred her perfect enjoyment in the business world. There was Sidney Fox—Mrs. Chilton remembered him as a fair, handsome young man with a tiny tuft of mustache and a jolly way with him. He had paid much attention to Cynthia, and Mrs. Chilton saw the shy glad look in her daughter's eyes, she thought regretfully of Roger Moore who had worshiped Cynthia since babyhood.

"Why, Mother," said Cynthia's trembling voice, "he asked me to marry him last week, and I wanted to wait a little longer—to be sure just where my heart was—and while I waited for him to ask me again, the red-gold head hung in shame, "it was told as a great joke that he had been engaged to a girl in Chicago all the time, and everybody in the office knew that he had left to be married—all except Robert and me."

At the supper table Robert announced that he was going to change his job. "There's a man in Washington market who needs a young fellow to keep books and I can get forty for it—I won't work for that sly old Fox."

"Will you like the market as well?" asked his mother.

"Don't I sneak down there as often as I can?" confessed Rob. "I like the smell of green vegetables and fruit—the apples make me think of the orchard back home—Gee, Mother, why did we ever rent it? I wish we could go back—I had a letter from Jim Jones and he says his folks don't think our place is big enough for them—he says his married brother in Terryville is coming to live with them—"

MRS. CHILTON looked up eagerly. "Oh, I hope so, dear—I do hope we may be able to go back to the old place again—I have never been really happy since we left it."

"Mother, dear, I know you have been lonely here with no friends—little brother," Cynthia addressed Robert, who looked panic-stricken at sight of his mother's joy. "I'm afraid you and I have been very selfish since Dad went."

Rob laughed relievedly. "Gee, but I've been homesick, but I kept thinking this is lots better than Marbury—Cynthia's so pretty she'll marry a bank president and I'll have a big job in the city."

"They all laughed at Rob's ambitions, but Mrs. Chilton was thinking about how lovely it would be to rearrange the furniture in the old house, Cynthia was planning to get another school position. Rob rattled on. "I'm going to keep chickens and run a truck farm. Saturdays I'll work in Hoskins' store until I don't have to any more. Mother, Jimmy says to tell you that Roger keeps our cemetery plot all fixed up, and the other day he put some pansies on Dad's grave. Roger's a good sport, believe me."

Cynthia looked startled at the mention of Roger and what he had done, and that evening her mother wrote to Jimmy Jones' father about the old house, and begged him not to mention it for the present. It was late summer when the Chiltons left the city; Cynthia was glad because the impossible Sidney Fox had returned and her position was intolerable. The day she came home from the office for good, she sighed happily.

"There, Mother, that episode is ended. I am so ashamed of the whole thing—I never want to have another man make love to me—never!"

"Some day, your heart will tell you the right man—the real man who is worthy of you."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"MORTALS and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Nov. 13.

The Golden Text was, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (II Cor. 5:17).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (I John 3:2).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals are egotists. They believe themselves to be independent workers, personal authors, and even privileged originators of something which Deity would not or could not create. The creations of mortal mind are material. Immortal spiritual man alone represents the truth of creation" (p. 263).

Child's Vocabulary At one year a child may have a vocabulary of three words, at two years around 300, and at six, nearly 3,000.

Oregon Products For Thanksgiving Table

Oregon farms and forests may well contribute not only the bounty but the beauty as well for the Thanksgiving table.

For the holiday centerpiece, for instance, a well-polished, perky little pumpkin on a small inverted bowl in the center of the table, and arranged informally around it a purple egg-plant, table queen squash, red and green apples and peppers, and purple top turnips, tapering off each end with a large bunch of grapes. Autumn leaves and bright berries may be used to fill in the chinks and make a border.

Another centerpiece may be made from 20 apples wrapped in copper-colored cellophane, arranged in cone shape with a tall orange colored candle in the center. Stiff cardboard or wood is used as a base and in the center is inserted a cardboard candle holder for the candle and for tying the covered apples in place. Small autumn leaves fill in here and there, while large ones may form a border to cover the base.

Favors for the Thanksgiving table may be made by attaching a gathered semi-circle of brown crepe paper to the base of a small pine cone to represent a turkey. His neck and head may be made of a small pine cone covered with brown paper to which a bit of bright red-orange paper is attached on top to represent a comb and at the breast for wattles. Feet can be made of the same material.

A buffet service is convenient for serving a Thanksgiving feast to large numbers. The following menu is suggested for this purpose: sliced roast turkey, duck or chicken, dressing and giblet gravy, scalloped potatoes, candied carrots, jellied cranberries, celery curls, tomato aspic served on individual lettuce leaves arranged on chop plate, mock plum pudding with caramel sauce.

A mimeographed leaflet, H. E.-684, prepared by Miss Lucy Case, extension specialist in foods and nutrition at O. S. C., and which may be obtained free from Julia Bennett, home demonstration agent, Coquille, contains recipes and suggested menus for Thanksgiving and other holiday dinners.

Could Throw No Curves If he lived on the moon, a base ball pitcher could throw no curves. There would be no air resistance to give a break to the ball.

chie Pomeroy, a typical mama's boy wanted by Mrs. Bixby for a son-in-law, Charles Hawkins; Andrew Grimes, a would-be detective who complicates matters considerably, Farrel Bailey; Helen Maxwell, Betty's very excitable girl friend, Jean Laird; Ruth Adams, Betty's calm and dignified girl chum; Howard Wills, a very helpful young man who does his good turn daily.

Between acts Miss Pageler, musical director at the high school, has arranged two numbers; one, an instrumental sextet; the other, a vocal sextet.

Members of the junior class who have been selected to aid especially in the play production are Bud Miller, class president and business manager; Emerick Hultin, stage manager; Mary Jane Dunn, promptress; Vesta Duncanson, wardrobe mistress; Dick Sproul, entertainment between acts, and John Salimena, property manager.

Admission for the play will be 35 cents for adults, 25 cents for high school students, and 30 cents for junior high school students.

Teachers' Institute At Bay Last Week

Teachers of Coos county, as well as northern county, and Reedsport, gathered for institute Friday. The teachers showed by their vote that they preferred to remain in Coos county again next year for county institute. The vote was also taken as to whether they would prefer Marshfield or Coquille as place for next year and they voted to return again to Marshfield. Officers elected for the county were as follows: Mrs. Alice Finnie, Marshfield, president; C. W. Ellison, Bridge, vice-president; Audrey B. Dodson, Bunker Hill, secretary-treasurer.

RED DEVILS AT MYRTLE POINT FRIDAY MORNING

The last game on the Red Devils' football schedule is to be played at Myrtle Point tomorrow (Armistice Day) at ten o'clock in the morning. The switch to a morning game will materially reduce the attendance from Coquille but Myrtle Point authorities did not appear to like the officiating at the game here and could only get Hod Turner, of Roseburg, to referee at a morning game.

C. H. S. won from the Bobcats in their first game by a 20 to 0 score. No championship is involved in the outcome, but there is the natural rivalry and attempt on Coquille's part to even up for the defeats of the past few years.

The only other game in the county is that between North Bend and Marshfield Friday afternoon.
