Harry Hunt, manager of the Coquille Shingle mill, drove to Corvallis Sunday where he took his son, Jack, who is a second year student at the state college there. On his way back, he stopped at Salem and other places on business. Mr. Hunt is quite dubious about the effect of the new tariff regulations as being of any help to his business or any other northwest lumber enterprises.

Buffalo Round-Up Tuesday, Dec. 6

Tuesday evening, Dec. 6, will be the final Round-up of the big Buffalo Hunt that has been in progress for the past two weeks around Pioneer Methodist church. The round-up party will be held in Pioneer Hall, where a lively series of contests will settle all controversies as to the champion riders, ropers, and bull-dog artists of Coquille. Substantial prizes will be given for the person guessing nearest to the total number of buffaloes rounded up, and for the one bringing in the most buffaloes. More than one hundred Indians have been riding hard for the past two weeks on constant look-out for every stray buffalo in this section. In case anyone asks where the hunting is good, tell them to look on a nickel. No state-hunting license is required for this big hunt.
