

Society and Clubs

Christmas and the holidays provide a social atmosphere quite distinct from all other seasons of the year. It's the time when those dear to you come home and the family is together once more—the days of yore are once more recalled and every one is happy in spite of the burdens and worries that may confront one in everyday life. And so it is, another Christmas. And we look forward to seeing our friends and dear ones once more at home. It shall be a grand holiday season.
