

W.C.T.U. Institute at Myrtle Point Friday

The Coos County Institute of the W. C. T. U. was held Friday in the Brethren Church at Myrtle Point, starting with a morning session at 10:30 a. m. There were 30 in attendance. Devotions were led by Rev. F. H. Barr, of the Brethren Church, the subject being, "The Power of the Minority," which was well given and most helpful. Mrs. W. H. Phillips, of Marshfield, gave a report of the devotional talks given at the state convention in Eugene this fall. Mrs. Pearl Cardwell, of Coquille, gave a short review of "The most interesting session to her at the state convention," which proved to be the memorial service and the two-minute talks by the various county presidents. Mrs. Farr gave the response to the address of welcome, at Eugene. Mrs. Farr enjoyed most the music by six junior girls and their teacher from the Children's Farm Home at Corvallis.

The flower mission and relief work was the subject of a talk by Elizabeth Johnson, of Marshfield, who is county director of that department. She displayed a beautiful picture given her by the state director for the most outstanding work done by any county in the state.

Mrs. A. N. Peterson, of North Bend, took her talk from Elizabeth Anderson's "Personal Recollections of Frances E. Willard, at the 1889 Convention of the W. C. T. U. in Chicago." She said that her cameo-cut features, serene blue eyes, auburn hair, slight, graceful, almost girlish figure, made a most attractive platform presence. Her sense of humor, sparkling, kindly wit and quick repartee, all oiled the machinery of the great convention and the dullest speech was transformed when Miss Willard summed it up, her quick intuition sensing what the speaker tried to express. On occasion at the first World's W. C. T. U. in Boston when that gracious English woman, Lady Henry Somerset, made her first visit to this country, she responded to Miss Willard's appreciative introduction and said that "the words just spoken were those of a kind and loving heart, who sees in another only the reflection of what she is herself." This remark explained one secret of Miss Willard's power as a leader. She looked for the good and found it. She saw and developed qualities in her followers that they did not themselves suspect they possessed.

Coos county sent $45.30 in cash to the Children's Farm Home for Christmas, also boxes of toys, clothing, etc., to the value of $85.00.

- Goals for the new year include:
1. Two new unions to be organized.

Transfer of the parole power from the governor to an independent board of three members appointed by the governor is recommended in a report on prison problems in Oregon just completed by the Prison Industries Reorganization administration, a federal agency. The report also recommends the establishment of a combined state adult probation and parole service and the establishment of work camps for the employment of selected prisoners and parolees at a small compensation "to enable them to make a start when released into society." The report, based upon a survey of the state prison, also recommends the development of a number of specific prison industries for the employment of prisoners. These include a printing plant and bindery, a metal stamping plant, cannery, clothing shop, machine shop and other smaller industries. Expansion of the dormitory facilities at the prison annex for the accommodation of an additional 100 prisoners and the erection of an institution for women prisoners on a farm away from the penitentiary are other recommendations contained in the report.

H. O. Tenney, Milwaukie restaurant man, has leased the cafeteria located in the basement of the new capitol and will operate the eating place during the legislative session. Tenney's bid for the cafeteria, which he must equip himself, was said by Secretary of State Snell, to have been the best of several offered.
