Chas. A. Sprague
Inaugurated Monday

In the presence of the 90 members of the Oregon legislature meeting in joint session in the Hall of Representatives in Oregon's new $2,500,000 capitol and before an audience which packed the Hall to its capacity and overflowed into the spacious corridors of the state house, Charles A. Sprague, Salem newspaperman, was inaugurated as Oregon's twenty-second governor Monday afternoon. The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice John L. Rand of the Oregon supreme court.

Immediately after taking the oath, Governor Sprague addressed the assembled lawmakers in a message in which he urged them to keep "government the servant and not the master of the people."

The most pressing problem before the state, Sprague said, continues to be economic: how to increase the income of the people and provide for its fair distribution.

On the subject of taxation Sprague declared that his study of this problem had convinced him that it was not so critical as has been advertised, while he would like to see the tax load borne by property owners lightened, Sprague declared that he saw greater hope for relief in the stimulus to commerce and agriculture and industry which will lift the level of income and thus lighten the pressure of taxation.

He declared himself as opposed to the imposition of any new taxes by this session, especially sales or gross income levies, and said that it was his conclusion that Oregon's present tax structure, placing reliance on property and income taxes is sound. If the legislature will apply rigid economies in appropriating money the revenues will be adequate for essentials of government during the next biennium, including increased sums for public assistance, he said.

With relation to the problem of relief Sprague declared the time has come when we need to coordinate more fully the various phases of the social security program. Emphasis should be put on rehabilitation and return of individuals to self-support, he said. He expressed the hope that Oregon would promptly increase its contribution to the needy aged so that the maximum of $30 a month would be available to all persons in need of that amount.

On the subject of labor Sprague voiced a plea for "a season of labor peace." All parties have suffered severely from the prolonged disputes that have wracked Oregon the past four years, he said. He complimented Governor Martin upon his masterful handling of the purge of labor goons and promised that "the gains thus made will not be relinquished during my administration." While he felt that the recently enacted "picketing" measure was defective in its drafting and too drastic in its terms he urged that since it had been approved by the voters it be allowed to "pass to the test of the court and of experience." Sprague said he had in mind a plan of his own for dealing with labor problems which he might submit to the legislature later in the session for consideration.

He urged the lawmakers to give serious consideration to the demand on the part of the cities for a share in the gas tax funds, although expressing it as his opinion that the state highway department needed all of its revenue for its own program for the time being.

Recommendations contained in the governor's message called for amendment of the public utility district law to provide for the issuance of revenue bonds and for contributions by these districts in lieu of taxes now being paid by private utilities; enlargement of the prison annex for the accommodation of "the more worthy mature inmates and of youthful first offenders;" sale of fortified wines in state liquor stores only; abolition of the state bakery board; readjustment of salaries of county officials on a population basis; readjustment of the terms of appointive officials to prevent packing of state jobs by retiring governors; establishment of some pension system for public employees.

Native Of Jamaica To Speak Here

A wire has just been received that Lieutenant Hall will speak in the Church of Christ, Coquille, Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. Lieutenant Hall, a native of Jamaica, and for years a member of the U. S. army, returned to his native land to preach the gospel and more than a thousand conversions occurred within two years.

He will bring to Coquille a lecture of one hour's duration, illustrated with pictures that he took in Jamaica. He has been greeted by packed houses as he has given his lectures in the United States, in churches, high schools, before civic clubs, etc., and he is continually urged to give return engagements. A wire has been sent in an attempt to secure him for this coming Sunday morning at the church. There will be no admission charge and all are welcome.

Some will remember Luke Elliott, brother-in-law of Mrs. C. C. Farr, who about a year ago gave a lecture here concerning his work in Jamaica, where he is now the assistant of Lieutenant Hall. Mr. Elliott recommends Lieut. Hall unconditionally.
