U. S. Marine Corps Enlistments Now Open

The United States marine corps offers opportunity for enlistment for a large number of young men from the Pacific northwest during the months of June and July, according to Postmaster Marvin O. Hawkins.

The enlistment term is four years. Applicants must be U. S. citizens, between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five years, with no dependents. They must be of good habits and character and be able to furnish character references. Minors must be able to obtain their parent's consent. Opportunities for service are open in Marine Corps aviation; Marine guards for battleships, heavy cruisers, and airplane carriers of the U. S. fleet; foreign shore stations; and the various posts and stations throughout the United States. All men enlisted must undergo their recruit training at the marine base in San Diego, before becoming eligible for transfer.

Applicants may obtain desired information from their local postmasters or writing direct to the recruiting office, 208 U. S. Court House, Portland, Oregon.

Calling cards, $0 for $1.00.

Dr. Stark Resigns As Co. Health Officer

Dr. Gerald E. Stark, county health officer, has tendered his resignation to the county court as such and on July 1 will become associated with the Belle Knife Hospital, having his office in the same suite of rooms that Dr. James Richmond has on the ground floor of the former F. & M. bank building.

Dr. Stark was engaged in private practice here before becoming the county doctor, and he has built up a very enviable reputation as a physician and citizen.

The county court, in requesting the appointment of a new health officer by the state board of health, requested that he be a man of the same calibre as Dr. Stark.

The Hardys Are Back Again At The Roxy Sunday, Monday, Tuesday

SIXTH of the series in two years, "The Hardys Ride High," latest exploit of the popular screen family, comes to the Roxy Theatre Sunday for an engagement of three days.

The familiar Hardy Family cast continues with Lewis Stone as the Judge, Mickey Rooney as his son, Andy, and Fay Holden as the wife and mother. Cecilia Parker portrays the young daughter, Sara Haden is Aunt Milly and Ann Rutherford again is Poly Benedict, the Carvel sweetheart of Mickey.

New faces appear in the cast as the family comes into a temporary fortune and moves from the mystical town of Carvel to Detroit, there to live for a brief interlude in the luxury of millionaires. Virginia Grey portrays a cabaret glamour girl who attracts Mickey on his first venture into the night life of a city. John King, a protégé of Ben Bernie, is a young man about town, the legal heir to a fortune which the Hardy soon renounce.

Others in the cast, largest yet assembled for a Hardy picture, include Minor Watson, John T. Murray, Halliwell Hobbs, the Hardy's first butler, George Irving, Aileen Pringle, Marsha Hunt, Donald Briggs, William Orr and Truman Bradley. "The Hardys Ride High" was directed by George B. Seitz, who has directed all of the five previous pictures in the series.

The story brings an inheritance of $2,000,000 to Judge Hardy from an ancestor of the period of the War of 1812. The family promptly flies to Detroit to take over the estate. Mickey responds to his new status with boyish enthusiasm, and in evening clothes and silk-hat visits his first night club. Meanwhile, Aunt Milly, played by Miss Haden, encounters a middle-aged business man, portrayed by Watson, who appears to have matrimonial intentions. However, he merely wishes to sell her some real estate. Mickey goes to call on the glamour girl and is so overwhelmed that he turns and runs away.

Only Judge Hardy and his wife keep their balance in the new-found wealth. He discovers evidence, which he is at liberty to destroy, proving that he is not the legal heir. True to his ideals, the Judge reveals the evidence and renounces the fortune. The family return to Carvel, none the worse for their adventure, excepting for an accumulation of bills run by Cecilia and Mickey. They arrange with the Judge to pay these from their allowances.
