Mr. Borleske has just completed twenty-five years as coach and director of athletics at Whitman College and has been honored by his own community which has changed the name of Stadium Field to Borleske Field. Borleske in his undergraduate days was a football star and has also played professional baseball.

Leslie M. Scott For State Treasurer

Leslie M. Scott, republican candidate for state treasurer, has made a notable name for himself as a journalist, historian, executive and civic leader. The large primary vote by which he was nominated indicates the esteem in which he is held by the people of Oregon.

Mr. Scott's father, the late Harvey W. Scott, was the great pioneer editor of The Oregonian, but the son never traded on the distinguished family's name, rolling up an impressive record of achievement in his own right.

He earned the money for his college education by going to work, at the age of 16, as a reporter on The Oregonian. For a time, he was editorial writer and associate editor of that paper, and for the past twenty-nine years he has been director and vice-president of The Oregonian Publishing Company.

Mr. Scott's executive and financial ability has found an outlet, also, as a director and treasurer of the Oregon Historical Society, and as chairman of the State Highway Commission. In the latter capacity, during the years 1932-1935, he was instrumental in the development of many new highways throughout Oregon, and also helped to substantially reduce the commission's debt.

Hope It May End Quickly

The following is from a correspondent to the Sentinel who holds the same hope as we all do—that operations at the plant may be resumed soon:

Should our neighbors, whom we like and admire, become involved in domestic difficulties, we would be sorry. Since we like man and wife equally, it would be difficult for us to take sides with either of them. Their children, we should consider unwitting victims of the marital tragedy.

The trouble now existing between the union and the Smith Wood-Products company is to us like a matrimonial disaster. Our sympathies are with both parties to the conflict, for we know that each is suffering. The cost of living does not cease when the pay check fails to arrive; neither do taxes, interest and depreciation on expensive equipment cease when the plant is idle. Each has a disastrous effect, but the burden falls heaviest not on union members, nor on the plant. It is our town that is hurt most severely.

In the Minor Mention column of this issue are several items which tell of plant employees, who with their families have moved to other towns. We hear on the street that over sixty families have left here. The men of these families are workers; industrious, ambitious people who refuse to remain static. They have lost patience with a community where strife exists between company employer and union employee.

If this strike, which is but fifteen days old, has already driven away such a number of desirable families, how many more good people will leave us if it continues longer.

It is our wish that each party to the disagreement reflect that concessions in this instance will add to the stature and dignity of the conceders. The situation is too serious for concessions to do less than that.

Children change so rapidly that we're sure you'll thank us, later on, for urging you to have us make a Portrait of your child as he or she is today.

Increased Taxes

The FUD'S in Washington State have increased the tax burden of the farmers, home owners and industries in the past six years by more than $800,000.00 through the levy of new FUD taxes.

In addition to this, taxes have been increased again by the removal of private utility property from the tax rolls.

LOWER RATES

The residential rates of the Washington FUD'S are as much as 63% more than you pay in Coos County when taxes are eliminated. . . .

If this is what a Coos FUD will do for us, we want none of it, so for the SECOND TIME THIS YEAR, we are going to
