

Uncensored Film Reveals Might Of Fance Today

Scenes From Seized Nazi Movie Shows In Latest March of Time Issue Here

The lines of battle in the conflict between Democracy and the Nazi ideology today are vividly drawn in the latest dramatic issue of The March of Time which comes to the screen of the Roxy Theatre for three days, beginning Sunday.

Entitled "Uncle Sam—The Non-Belligerent," the film presents a lively picture of the current World War II and its effects upon the U. S. people. Besides showing the roaring fires and widespread destruction in London, the film includes scenes aboard German naval ships, German artillery firing across Channel into British towns 100 miles away, U-boats at work, England as seen from a German bomber, a British convoy as seen from a Stuka dive-bomber attacking it.

Taking the movie-goer into the heart of occupied France, this newest March of Time also shows how Europe's 85 million subjugated people have been formed into battalions of labor slaves and are today being worked to the limit of their endurance to build the new and great Nazi Germany. French prisoners are seen rebuilding railroads and bridges under military guard; soup is being rationed to grim-visaged French children; captive Parisians are listening tearfully to the newest regulations prescribed by their Nazi masters and broadcast over loud-speakers in the streets.

These extraordinary pictures, filmed by official German Army cameramen, have never before been shown in the U. S. The March of Time obtained them exclusively from the Canadian Film Commissioner, after British censors had control officers had seized them from German couriers en route to South America.

In addition to the German films, March of Time's "Uncle Sam—The Non-Belligerent" offers a clear picture of the fight now in progress between U. S. isolationists and interventionists. Shown are Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Verne Marshall of the No Foreign War committee, President Roosevelt, and several average citizens representing a cross-section of U. S. opinion. Such speaks his reasons either for helping Britain or not, and George Gallup comments upon the ballots in his recent poll which showed that 60 per cent of the American people favor aiding Britain even at the risk of war.
