B. P. W. Trip Up The Rogue Sunday

Coquille-minded Business and Professional Women club members and their friends turned over in their warm beds at five o'clock Sunday morning, shut off their alarm clocks and jumped enthusiastically out into the cold foggy morning to prepare for their jaunt up the Rogue river. Gathering extra coats, dry socks and a sandwich or two, that later were found unnecessary, they departed for Gold Beach, where three boats waited to carry them on their nautical journey up the treacherous, mysterious river.

The three launches kept close to one another all the way in case misfortune should befall. As is inevitable, two of the boats stalled a couple of times, a minor mishap that left passengers undaunted. They jumped out of the boats and seemed to relish the icy water that tingled their ankles. Though the trip up river takes several hours, the time was filled with fun and excitement. A doe and her two fawns gaze nonchalantly at the passersby. Hogs, rooting along the river bank, were, according to the Indian guide, who gave Marje Knight an impromptu lesson in nature lore, digging for clams.

After a comparatively calm ride, the Lowerie farm hove in sight. There a wonderful dinner, served family style, with a complete vegetable garden transplanted to the dining table and every conceivable kind of cake, pie and meat was enjoyed. Perhaps this accounts for the fact that the trip down river, which usually takes 45 minutes, was a bit longer.

If you want to hear the details of the trip just ask any of the following fortunate people, who would all be happy to repeat the excursion next Sunday: Blythe Saylor, Hazel Hanna, Jennie Price, Gladys Gano, Dale Claver, Marjorie Child, Edith Walton, Lois Fenn, Norene McKeown, Lydia Holstein, Ellen Braxton, Rolo Saylor, Chuck Hanna, Beverly Norton, Mabel Gould, Eunice Barrow, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Smith, Gertrude Ulett, May Fenn, Les Child, Keith Roland, Emily Smith, Marjorie Knight, Gladys Mays, Alberta Brandon, Alice Henderson, Ellen Kendall, Gertrude Mehl and Sue Cooper.

The Birthday club celebrated doubly Friday afternoon, when its members met at the Charles Lewis home to extend greetings to Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Ivan Shuck. Both honored members were given presents by the club. Birthday cake and other refreshments were served to Mesdames S. S. Harndenbrook, Enyard, John Sanders, Jack McLarrin, Charles Culbertson, Gordon Epps, William Gaffey, Earl Goodman, Carol Helvie, Ralph Hurlbutt, Charles Lewis, Eadie Oddy and Ivan Shuck.

Only the prompt action of Hugh Hastings saved Jim Dawson from serious injury last week when he had a tussle with his bull. The beast had escaped from the corral and turned on Dawson when he tried to drive it back. Hastings, hearing the commotion, grabbed a pitchfork and managed to irritate the animal enough so that Dawson could get away from him before he had suffered more than a couple of broken ribs.

Red Dust, the most entertaining dog of all times and who has appeared before President Roosevelt in a request performance at Washington, D. C., will be one of the stars on "Funzapoplin," the big nightly variety show at the Oregon state fair in Salem, September 1 through 7.

Three Improvements Needed at Park

"Spike" Leslie stated this week that there are three projects he hopes to see put over at the local ball park, and they are all needed.

One of them is the removal of about a foot of top soil where excavation for the new Community building is to start soon, which can be placed on the football field after the season is over this fall and a grass field prepared for next year. This will be to the west of the baseball diamond.

Another of his projects is the erection of bleachers along the west side fence, which will face and be near the football field and leave the south side of the park for football practice.

His third project is the installation of lights so that night games may be played there.

The first two will be easier of accomplishment than the third but Coquille fans would very much like to see all three brought about.

For a Birthday or "going away" gift, use monogrammed stationery. This service of imprinting the name or monogram on each sheet is furnished at Norton's at a small additional cost.
