It is Our Duty to Conserve on Fuel and Repair Parts You as the Owners and Operators of Internal Combustion Engines

—and—

We with the only equipment in Coos County that will scientifically and accurately correct the valves of gasoline and diesel engines.

It seems anyone can make any kind of a statement in an advertisement, for instance some time ago we announced we had bought all of Bosworth Motors special Ford tools, and the very next week another party ran the same adv. and elaborated on it. "Nevertheless we have the tools."

Therefore we invite you to visit our shop if in doubt of any statement you see in our advertisements.

Many questions come up regarding valve correction, some of which we will try and answer.

Question—Is valve correction the same as valve grinding?

Ans.—"No." Valve correction leaves the valve face and seat true and concentric with the stems and guides, while grinding or ordinary methods of reseating, leaves them farther misaligned. Due to the patented arbors and chuck, only the equipment built by Cedar Rapids Engineering Co. will correct valves.

Question—Why do most new cars need valves corrected at 10 to 15 thousand miles?

Ans.—Because they are often not true to start with, and if they were, the seasoning of the motor causes them to warp.

Question—How long will they run before needing another correcting?

Ans.—Usually when they need sings, which varies from 35 to 60 thousand.

Question—How many times will a block stand to be machined in this manner?

Ans.—I've only worked at this work 26 years and never saw one to that point yet.

Question—How can I tell if my valves need correction?

Ans.—One way you won't miss once in a hundred times is if you have 10,000 miles on the speedometer or if the valves have never been corrected.

Compression readings or vacuum tests tell nothing regarding valve action, until they are in the advanced stages of decomposition.

Question—What are advantages of correction?

Ans.—Longer life for the pistons, rings and cylinders.

Better performance and economy.

Easier starting.

And if you drive a heavy truck, you will slip over some humps where now you must shift.
