

Victory Keynote Of B. P. W. Banquet

Seventy-five Coquille women took their places around long rows of tables arranged in V-formation on Monday evening in the Pioneer Methodist banquet hall when the Business and Professional Women honored their mothers and the mothers of the nation. This annual Mothers and Daughters banquet is the most important occasion and highlight of the club year. Symbolic of war time, with the emphasis placed on victory, every decoration detail was patriotic. Each unit repeated at continuous intervals around the length of the tables consisted of a colorful global map of war activities; a red white and blue candle grouping; clever combination menu and place cards and individual candy baskets, all carried out in the national colors.

Ida Oerding, retiring president, was in charge and opened the meeting with a salute to the flag and the national anthem by the gathering, followed by the introduction of guests.

Mrs. Frances Holmstrom, poetess and guest mother, responded to the president's words of welcome briefly. At this time she offered the reading of "Viking Blood" from her own book of poems, an ingenious composition, expressing the mixture of farmer and explorer in the life and minds of her sons. She also released an unpublished verse with which she closed. It was as follows:

SONS
Those mothers from whom their sons have been taken
Have reason to mourn and pine.
But I am neither forlorn nor forsaken.
For I gave mine.

An impressive skit was presented with Cheri Mae Hartwell as script reader, Florence Hallock, background vocalist. "Great Mothers of the Nation," artistically portrayed in costume were: Puritan mother, by Hazel Hanna; Revolutionary mother, Eva Stevens, Betsy Ross, Hazel Hanna; Civil War mother, Mary Todd Lincoln, Ethel Roop; Spanish American War mother, Clara Barton, Mary Virginia Morris; World War I, Joyce Owen; World War Today, Clara Bosserman, and Greatest Mother of us All, Viola Newton.

Ida Oerding announced two awards made to the local club at the state convention last week-end at Eugene. The Evangeline Philbin cup donated by a former state president and made each year as an award to the club showing a report of the greatest community accomplishment, in this case it happened to be the war effort, the list of which was published in last week's edition of the Sentinel. The other award was for the Scrapbook which showed the best publicity in the state for the past year. This was judged also for neatness, continuity of reports and amount in inches. Clara Stauff's outstanding work in music and arts was mentioned during the session of the executive council. The committee in charge of the banquet was the executive board:

Ida Oerding, Florence Hallock, Eva Stevens, Cheri Mae Hartwell, Florence Barton. The ladies of the church should have special mention for the delicious course dinner and their excellent service.

Group singing was led by Mrs. Beyers, accompanied on the piano by Inez Rover. Members and guests attending were: Ida Oerding, Aurora R. Willard, Jennie Rose, Annie J. Robinson, Miranda Way, Harriett Whitney, Gertrude E. Ulett, Grace Withnell, Mary Morris, Allie Best, Alice Lafferty, Ethel Roop, Emma M. Pierce, Bess Maury, Helen Beyers, Ruth Beyers, M. ### O. E. S. Entertains Job's Daughters At "Mother" Program

Last Thursday evening, Job's Daughters and parents were entertained and honored under good of the order at the regular meeting of Beulah Chapter, O. E. S. A clever and entertaining degree, featuring "Mother," was presented by various members, under the direction of Mrs. Clara Bosserman. There were 13 Job's Daughters present, several parents and the Guardian and Associate Guardians, Donna Dean Bosserman and Dave Rackleff.

Following the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed with refreshments served in the banquet hall. The table was decorated with red hawthorne and snowballs, centered with a bowl of roses flanked by red tapers.

Baptist Church Mission Society Meets

The Women's Mission Society of Emanuel Baptist Church met Wednesday evening of last week at the church rooms.

President Alice Holverstott opened the meeting with prayer and Mrs. John Stone gave the devotional, using the fourth chapter of St. Mark. A short business meeting was conducted, after which Mrs. Wm. Knight presented a program on Baptist Home Missionary Work: "Among the Indians," "The Chinese Mission in Portland," and on the work being done for the service men and among defense workers. The special interest letter was read about Margaret Cuddeback, an Eugene, Oregon, girl, who is interned in Shanghai, China.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. R. W. Kuenzli to: Mesdames Ned Griffin, C. Parrish, Ben Walton, John Stone, H. Ross, Ford Liday, Alice Holverstott, Wm. Knight, E. Riley and Mrs. Riley, Sr.

Grace Withnell New Head of Junior Women

A heretofore unpublished report of importance to club life in Coquille is a potluck dinner held May 3 in the Guild hall, at 8:30 p. m., at which time there was installation of officers in the Junior Women's Club. Beautiful corsages presented at the dinner were made by Vi McBride and Gertrude Swinney. Incoming officers are: president, Grace Withnell; first vice president, Vi McBride; secretary, Dorothy Harris; treasurer, Yvonne Kern; parliamentarian, Lucille Walker; historian, Donna Dean Bosserman.

Beautiful Recital Friday Evening

Piano and voice pupils were presented in recital at the Pioneer Methodist hall last Friday evening, May 14, by Miss Aileen Wilson. Preceding the program Miss Wilson made a short talk on music, stating, "There must be no blackout of music during the ordeals we are now facing in a war-torn globe, for music is a living idea, it is a human expression, an ennobling hope."

Of the thirty young people taking part, ten were from Bandon. Illness prevented two vocal students from appearing. There was a good attendance, in fact more attended than had been expected. One could not but be impressed with the assurance of such young beginners. Almost the first half of the program were numbers by Williams for beginners and there was hardly a breakdown. All of the work one noted was clean, firm and clear, with good pedaling, which showed thoroughness of training.

Emphasis should be made on the songs of Sandra McCurdy. She was the only girl who sang and she did so with much poise and the manner of an artist from the start, some of her tones were clear and yet it was just the voice of a little girl.

Donald McLarrin played one of the more difficult numbers, "On the Death of a Hero," by Tchaikowsky. This, of course, was outstanding. He has a sturdy way of playing and a manner of entering into it which was liked.

Two sisters from Bandon were interesting. Both are the outstanding artistic type, showing in their playing a depth of interpretation. They were Kathryn Owenby, who played "Deep Purple," by Peter DeRose, and Ruth Owenby, whose number was "Prelude in C Sharp minor," by Rachmaninoff. The first number was played beautifully and the second number, a favorite with so many, was most pleasingly done.

A statement from another teacher on Miss Wilson's teaching technique was that she inspires the student to catch the spirit of the composer and make the work his own through re-creating rather than imitating. The Owenby sisters brought this out through their good control and interpretation.

The recital was all beautiful and everyone helped with his or her fine work to give an evening of good entertainment. Baskets of pastel-colored snapdragons, arrangements of snow balls and spring flowers and ferns dressed the stage into a bower of loveliness.
