What is America Fighting For? The Right to Own Property! (One of the Essentials of a Democracy) American principles are precious and worth fighting for. One of the most sacred is the right to own property, to enjoy your own home, to live by the land that belongs to you, to reap the rewards of your labor. The right to property ownership, and the protection of that right, has been America's inspiration in building the greatest nation on earth. This principle has stimulated the thinking and working of America's genius. It has inspired the sweat and toil of Americans who knew they would have an inalienable right to the fruits of their labors. Respect for the property of others has formed the very foundation of our American way of life. In this land of the free, this passion for liberty, this right of a man to stand on his own feet and with his own efforts create security for himself and his family will bring to this nation of ours ultimate Victory!
