Greyhound Lines Publicize Marine Corps Women's Reserve

A little over eleven months ago the first American woman donned the attractive uniform of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve. Today, thousands of girls in Marine forest-green with scarlet markings are working in control towers and link trainers, driving transport vehicles, rigging parachutes, and performing other highly specialized duties formerly handled by male Marines. Every Woman Marine has released a man for the fighting front, and thus has participated in glorious American Victories such as those on Bougainville, Tarawa and New Britain.

In pointing out these inspiring accomplishments during the first historic year that women have worn the uniform of this distinguished branch of America's fighting forces, Colonel D. M. Randall, the officer in charge of the Western Procurement Division, U. S. Marine Corps, stated that an important contribution to the success of the Women Marines' recruiting program has been the splendid cooperation of newspapers and advertisers. An example of this cooperation is seen in this issue of the Coquille Valley Sentinel. The advertisement of Pacific Greyhound Lines is devoted almost wholly to Marine Corps Women's Reserve recruiting. This message to women is running in more than 500 newspapers throughout California, Oregon, Nevada, Utah,

Arizona, New Mexico and parts of Texas.

"We greatly appreciate this cooperation," Colonel Randall said. "This contribution to our cause is particularly appropriate coming from Greyhound, as members of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve depend greatly on this nationwide travel system for transportation to and from training camps and the points throughout the country where they are stationed."

THE MARINES, TOO, DEPEND ON GREYHOUND

Like men and women in all branches of the armed forces, the Marine Corps Women's Reserve depends on Greyhound for transportation. Greyhound buses serve Camp Elliott, San Diego, and other Marine training centers, as well as Marine bases from coast to coast. Other special services are also performed by Greyhound, often on a moment's notice. For example, buses are often requisitioned from regular schedules to transfer wounded between hospitals. In spite of shortages of buses and experienced personnel, the whole Greyhound organization is concentrating its efforts and resources to provide adequate transportation for all who must travel.
