

Demonstration On Canning Starts Next Wednesday

The Public Canning Demonstration to be given at the Liberty Theatre on Wednesday, June 28th, beginning at 1:30 p. m., is under the sponsorship of the Coos County Nutrition Committee and is open to all homemakers who care to attend.

Mrs. Vivian Freeman, Northwest authority for the past ten years on all methods of home canning, will conduct the demonstration. In addition to demonstrating various recommended food preservation methods, she will bring late information from the National Food Preservation Conference at Chicago and the recent six-state meeting in Portland about new methods and procedures and what the homemaker can expect in the way of canning equipment this year.

Mrs. Freeman will demonstrate the various methods as recommended by the State Nutrition Council. These recommendations are much the same as those adopted nationally and now included in a new USDA popular bulletin, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables." Oregon homemakers are advised, however, to depend more on publications of Oregon State College, as these take into account local conditions.

The six processing recommendations agreed upon at Portland follow:

1. That the hot water bath method be used only for acid fruits, rhubarb and tomatoes.
 2. That the steam pressure cooker be used for processing all non-acid and low-acid food products such as vegetables, meats, poultry and fish.
 3. That the open-kettle method be used only for such products as jams, jellies, preserves, pickles, and relishes.
 4. That oven canning is unsafe and not recommended for any product. The results are too variable since the method is dependent upon the correct working of heat control devices and uniform distribution of heat within the oven.
 5. That the steam-bath method is not recommended since it often results in inadequate processing.
 6. That the pasteurization method is recommended for fruit juices. For best quality, fruit juices are packed at temperatures not exceeding 180 degrees F.
- Where pressure cooker time tables include a choice of either a 240 degree or 250 degree cook, the lower temperature is recommended for a quality product, except in the case of green leafy vegetables.
- Time will be reserved for a canning question and answer forum. Homemakers are invited to come prepared with any and all canning problems.
