Red Cross Surgical Workers In Fine New Location

After thrice having been requested to move their headquarters, the Red Cross Bandage Rollers are now located permanently, thanks to the generosity of their leader, Mrs. J. R. Bunch. On Wednesday twelve of the "regulars" met for an all-day session and potluck luncheon in the Play House on the grounds of the J. R. Bunch home. So much was accomplished during the day that if a few more can be added to the number, a change will be made to do away with the two afternoon meetings a week and hold the one all-day session instead. Close to one thousand bandages were made on Wednesday. The Red Cross room had to be vacated to house the Farm Security Association, formerly located in the Laird Building.

Howdy Folks:

We heard the definition of an expert the other day. He is an ordinary Home-Towner a long ways from home.

I decided the reason I've never run across one was because I never traveled much.

One thing about the boys in our shop, they're not afraid of work; one of them even went to sleep under a car that warm day this year.
