Bare Facts From Bear Creek

"The Column that's Different" (By Lans Leneve)

At a meeting recently held by officials of The American Legion, at Portland, a protest was lodged against the idea of bringing the Japs to the Pacific coast from various relocation centers. Several high government officials and New Dealers like Ickes, of the Department of the Interior, have advocated such a move for some time. It is a cinch that real, red-blooded American citizens do not crave the society, nor wish to rub elbows with any of "the monkey race." This business of winning the war is too serious to have attention diverted from it, in order to keep an eye at the same time upon the treacherous Jap. The sooner they are entirely gotten rid of, so far as America is concerned, the better and cleaner country we will have. That business of "loving thy brother," wasn't meant to apply to skunks in the first place.

Al Morey, employed at the Harrington Ray Logging camp on upper Bear Creek, suffered a severe cut on his hand, inflicted by a saw last week. The accident did not occur in the woods however, but near the Morey home, where Al was sawing some extra wood to keep the home fires burning.

Ernie Krewson, of Brewster Valley, was on Bear Creek last week, relative to securing some farming equipment for the haying season. Mrs. Krewson and son accompanied him on the trip. Ernie told of searching for a friend living at Coquille and finding him, of all places, residing in the same house that Ernie lived in with his parents, back in 1899.

Several of the younger kids of Bear Creek, members of "The Cubs," are enjoying a holiday at one of our coastal resorts.

Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts from Coquille, stopped at Bear Creek last week while enroute to Croft Lake for an outing. One of the boys connected with the Game Law Enforcement of the State Police, and a certain red-haired state patrolman have evidently, from reports received, been expecting "an outburst" in this column regarding bird dogs and Chinese pheasants. For their special benefit, we will state that the bird dog chewed his leash and escaped and that the pheasant died of old age while awaiting their return. If they should happen, to locate any lame ducks or homeless skunks at any time, they may bear the fact in mind that we are still big-hearted enough to fall for most anything.

Mr. Avery defied the Union, aroused the ire of F. D. R. and was tossed out. But John L. Lewis defied the president and the government but was not molested, nor was the army called out in his case. The answer is obvious—John L. Lewis controls more votes than does Montgomery Ward. We mean he did. Right now we are not so sure about it.

Two old friends, Levi Bunch and Don Fish, called Sunday. Don now resides at Klamath Falls. Levi and the writer are still planning an Alaskan trip that was interrupted by the outbreak of the war.

Last week a small covered wagon, drawn by one horse, came clodding down the highway. On the side of the wagon was printed: "Buy More War Bonds." On the rear was printed: "One horse power—gas rationed." The wagon was equipped with automobile wheels and tires. We are wondering just what sort of complications the driver would run into if he had to apply to the OPA for new tires for a horse-propelled vehicle?

The Boys Scouts of America is beyond doubt the finest organization of its kind in existence. Parents who have boys of Boy Scout age owe it to their sons to see that they join the Scouts. It is truly a builder of American manhood and a one hundred per cent pure, clean American organization.
