Boy Scouts Are Active War Workers

When one million Boy Scouts are asked to participate in war service projects, the result is astonishing, as figures of collections, distributions, production, and conservation, evidenced by the 1943 war service report of the Boy Scouts of America and received by the Oregon Trail Council this week, reveal.

The national report shows that the Oregon Trail Council, which serves Lane, Benton, Lincoln, Douglas, Coos and Curry counties, has participated in most of the fifty different war services reported by nearly five hundred similar local councils.

The major responsibility of the Boy Scouts of America during 1943 and one of the top jobs of local boy scouts was the fulfillment of the dispatch bearer obligation given them by the Office of War Information when the president of the United States officially commissioned Scout Dispatch Bearers.

During last year 9,716,896 posters were distributed by cubs and scouts for the government. In addition 13,586,964 government circulars were distributed as a part of the dispatch bearer program. A total of nearly 90 million pieces of government information and material have been distributed in the last two years, the report indicated.

Among the collection drives which Boy Scouts and Cubs participated in were those for scrap rubber, scrap metal, tin cans, and waste paper. The national report shows that Boy Scouts, upon government request, have collected 5,894,294 pounds of scrap rubber working in co-operation with local salvage committee; 87,885,914 pounds of scrap metal as part of the scrap bank campaign to build up the stock piles so that mills would have adequate material; 14,154,107 pounds of tin cans; and 144, 383,356 pounds of waste paper which were collected during the last few months of 1943.

The second major war service was that of "Food for Freedom." During the year more than 108 million hours of service were given by boys including several thousand troops which conducted their own victory gardens or assisted with school or community gardens.

At the present time the Boy Scouts in the Oregon Trail Council are participating in the nation-wide waste paper program which was requested by the War Production Board in an effort to collect 100,000 tons of waste paper during the months of August and September. Following the close of the campaign on September 30 awards will be made to each Scout and Cub who has collected 1,000 pounds or more of paper and to each scout troop, cub pack, or senior unit which collects an average of 1000 pounds of paper per member.

Enough West Coast Wood

to Rebuild Every Home in America!

Today in the Douglas Fir region there stands 490 billion feet of saw timber—ready for harvest . . . enough to build 37,000,000 homes . . . to literally replace every home in America. Beside this mature stand, there are 8,000,000 acres of junior forests, which are growing three billion feet more every year.

The war has made huge demands upon our forests—lumber is desperately needed by our fighting men 'round the world. But we still have enough timber in the Pacific Northwest for many years of Peace, and we are growing more trees all the time.

The combined efforts of the government and private forest owners will make the West Coast America's permanent timber supply. Over two million acres of West Coast forests are now in well managed tree farms. Seed trees are left in most of today's logging. The industry's forest nursery is growing five million seedlings a year for planting burnt spots. The gap between final drain and regrowth is gradually closing.

There will always be West Coast lumber for building homes!
