Bare Facts From Bear Creek

"The Column (that's Different)"
(By Lans Leneva)

It is a noticeable fact that exactly the same factions that slipped over prohibition and made such a fizzle of the job are the ones which are beating the Hood River Post of The American Legion for their stand on the Japanese question and which wish to welcome the Japs back on the coast with open arms. Why can't such persons redouble their efforts in behalf of our own American boys in uniform, instead of spending their time in behalf of the questionable yellow rats?

Those cigarette commercials that come over the air advertising leading brands of cigarettes are really something to marvel at. It appears to be a waste of time and money. What the public wants to know is where they can purchase cigarettes and it is not necessary for the makers of cigarettes to advertise the merits of any particular brand.

The tobacco situation looks rather smokeless at the present writing. One of the largest distributing houses for Coos county has had its quota of 29 cases per week cut to six cases. Bull Durham is about a thing of the past and other smoking tobacco is growing scarcer on the shelves of the merchant. Persons who never smoked a cigarette in their lives have taken up the habit. Perhaps now the cigarette smoker who laughed at the cigar shortage can sympathize with the poor cigar smoker who has been suffering for eons it seems.

We are somewhat astonished concerning the fact that the name, "Myrtle Lane," which has been adopted for the proposed stretch of road to be bordered by myrtle between Coquille and Myrtle Point, meets the approval of The Coos Bay Times and Portland dailies. Shouldn't it be called "Coos Bay Lane?"

"A fly in the ointment" is in no ways comparable to a fly in your soup. We always live in dread of the time those "dead end" pests start dropping from the ceiling.

Why not end the war before holding conferences regarding the dividing up of the world after the end of the conflict?

Following we quote a paragraph from a public official's letter from another county in this state: "I am glad to note your continued use of the phrase regarding the Japs, appearing at the end of your column in The Sentinel. The smarter we are in some particulars, the more stupid we seem to become in others. I have argued with a lot of people who thought that the war would be over in 1943. Most of the same people continued to argue that the war would be over in 1944. Most of the same hopeful optimists had already forgotten Pearl Harbor and Bataan by 1943. Their forgetfulness increased in 1944. It is pretty hard to tell what it will be in 1945, except that when one is pinned down, he still reluctantly admits that it is impossible to assimilate any of the Jap monkeys. I have yet to talk with a service man who has been in any engagement in the Pacific, who does not express the same attitude as denoted by your phrase at the end of your column. Our service men are the ones to be heard. Their voices will increase, living or dead, as the struggle is prolonged. It might not be a bad idea to give a little more stress to the service man's viewpoint and his right to be heard."

There's a lot of thought in the above expressions and they come from a real American citizen and a veteran of World War number one.

Perhaps to some we may appear radical on the Japanese question but, regardless of the opinions of others, we will stick to our guns and never cease firing verbal bombs at those American born monkeys whom some persons would have us love, respect and admire. In plain language, we will always hate them regardless of the fact whether they hail from America or elsewhere. We should like to see a race hatred stirred up that would endure forever between the yellow rats and our own superior white race. We have our honest opinion of a white person who will stoop to the level of association with a buck-toothed monkey.

Guido Domenighini, recently returned from Frisco, left last week for Portland to enlist in The Marines. Guido, whose home is on Bear Creek, is enlisting with the consent of his parents, he being under enlistment age. Our good wishes go with this swell kid. "Don't Be Saps—Deport The Japs."

Transportation First the Covered Wagon and the Pony Express. Then the Golden Spike of the first transcontinental railroads, the billowing sails of full rigged schooners, and the churning of stern-wheelers in bays and rivers. . . Now what was once the "Far West" is linked to remote corners of the world by the miracle of modern transportation. Hard-surfaced highways, fleet trucks, and superb motor coach systems cover the nation and make next door neighbors of city and farm. Stream-lined railway transportation dwarfs a continent and giant air transports circle the world with the speed of the sun. Today these marvels of transportation, many of them western-produced, are the darlings of the nation's war effort. When peace returns they will put the markets of the world at the very door step of our glorious West.
