S.I.A.C. Man Talks To Rotarians Wed.

Charles Bollinger, of the State Industrial Accident Commission of Salem, made a splendid talk on the prevention of accidents and the work of the commission before the Rotary club at their noon meeting in the I.O.O.F. banquet hall on Wednesday. Mr. Bollinger is an able speaker and his talk was given the closest attention by members and guests present.

Rodney Finney, who is here in the interest of speeding up the salvage of paper, tin and fats, gave a brief talk on the urgent need for saving these articles. At the close of the regular meeting he met with George Burr and the members of his salvage committee.

The club voted to ratify the action of the directors taken last week relative to splitting district 101 up into several smaller districts as proposed at a recent meeting of delegates from all over the district.

Rotarian guests present were Lou Pearce, Bert Pearson and Jess Clinton, of Myrtle Point. Out-of-town guests were Jacob B. Moomaw, of Arago, and H. E. Morrill, of Curry county.

Members of George Burr's salvage committee, as follows, were also guests: County School Superintendent Mrs. Martha Mulkey, Mrs. Gep. H. Chaney, Dr. J. R. Bunch, County Agent Geo. Jenkins, Evan Alborn, Stan Sherwood, Leland Waterman, Bob Simpson, Burton Dugn, Craig Perrott and Amzy Mintonye.

Geo. A. Ulett, of Smith Wood-Products, Inc., was also a guest and our service man guest for the week was Lieut. Preston Moy of the U. S. Air Corps, who is home on furlough from active duty in China, Burma and India.

Calling cards, 50 for $1.00.

Marcus Meets Marcus On A Vessel In The Pacific

Word has been received from Charles Grant Hartwell, S2/c, U.S.S. Rockbridge, somewhere in the Pacific, that Marcus Shelley, who formerly owned and operated the "Igloo" cold storage plant here in Coquille, had come aboard his ship on March 14 to visit with his father, the senior Marcus Shelley, who is a ship's carpenter on board the Rockbridge. Grant writes that the father and son got to spend the entire afternoon together on his ship and that "Dad" Shelley was about the happiest man he ever saw. He wrote that he, himself, enjoyed seeing a boy from away back home, too, but didn't have much time to visit with Marcus.

Miles Hartwell Had A Short Visit At Home

The officer in charge of the U. S. Naval Air Station at Klamath Falls sent an airplane motor over to the North Bend Air Station in a huge Naval truck last Wednesday. Miles M. Hartwell, Mo.M.M. 2/c, U.S.N.R., a local boy who has been stationed at the Klamath Falls station since last July, was sent in charge of the safe delivery of the motor to North Bend. He passed through here with it late Wednesday night and, after its delivery to the officers at the base on Coos Bay, returned to Riverton, where he spent the night with his mother there. The following day he returned to the North Bend base to supervise the unloading of the motor and to pick up a high-powered naval motor boat which he hauled on the truck over to the Klamath Falls station that day.

He was awarded the Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters for 37 combat missions completed while he was a member of the 5th Air Force.

He was taken to a station hospital in Belgium first, then to the General Hospital in France. Rogers has been overseas since December. Before entering the service he was employed in the plywood plant here.

Bruce A. Bishop, of the Army Air Corps, stopped here this week during a delay en route to Lincoln, Nebraska, to visit his uncle, Bill Ferbrache, of the O. K. Barber Shop.
