

UNITED CLOTHING DRIVE April 1st to April 30th

This little Chinese teller has a friend—his not-much bigger sister. Orphaned by war and left destitute, he and she need other friends—friends with spare clothing for the girl and something more suitable than that mitting old coat for her brother. Millions more of innocent men, women and children are in tragic need in war-devastated lands abroad. You can be their friends by contributing serviceable used clothing, shoes and bedding to the United National Clothing Collection.

UNITED CLOTHING DRIVE April 1st to April 30th

"Somewhere in Poland" the photographer came upon this barefooted mother and her baby, wrapped in an old curtain to keep warm. Millions are worse clad in war-devastated lands abroad. You can help save them from sickness and death by giving serviceable used clothing, shoes, and bedding to the United National Clothing Collection.

UNITED CLOTHING DRIVE APRIL, 1st to APRIL 30th

Wearing shirts, instead of real pants, and no shoes, stockings or underwear is the war-imposed style for this homeless Greek boy and thousands like him. To help protect these war victims against cold and disease, round up all your serviceable used clothing, shoes and bedding for the United National Clothing Collection.

May the above scene make you mindful of the needs and wants of others.

Dick Anderson Says Hello To All His Coquille Friends

Dear Editor: This is about the quickest way that I can say "hello" to all the folks in good old Coquille.

It has been 13 months since I left Coquille and it seems like years and I can't wait till I get back. It may sound foolish but one does not realize how one misses something and the place you call home until you are away for quite some time.

Yes, I am in the Paratroops and like it fine. I think that it is the best branch of the service. Lorin Simmons, also of Coquille, is in the same regiment. I have seen and talked to him several times; he is in a service company and I am in the Hq. Co. 1st Bn. I have been in the troop for the past seven months.

We are all looking forward to going overseas soon. Three weeks ago we had a Blue Shipment from our regiment of 1,000 men and the boys who were left all received furloughs, with the exception of a few who had to stay and take care of the details and get things in preparation for shipment. I am looking forward to either a furlough or delay enroute to the P.O.E.

I have kicked myself several times for not sending for a subscription to the Coquille Valley Sentinel but the main reason was that I did not expect to be in the States as long as I have been.

My present occupation in the armed service of the U. S. is Armor Artillery and it keeps one busy keeping all the weapons in A-I shape.

Here is hoping that I see all the Coquille folks on my furlough. As ever, Dick.

My present address is: T/S Richard A. Anderson A.S.N. 39343116 Hq. Co. 1st Bn. 541 Prcht. Inf. Camp Mackall, N. C.

"Silas Marner" To Be Senior Class Play

The art of weaving dates back to time immemorial. Even primitive man had conceived the idea of interlacing two sets of grasses or fibers at right angles to meet his crude requirements for dress. Up through the ages the craft evolved until, in the 18th century, by the invention of the flyshuttle, it received its greatest impetus. At that period, it was the general custom for house-wives to give their spun thread to a local itinerant weaver to be converted on his loom into the necessary fabrics. Mystery clung easily around any uncommon thing or person, at that time, and it was the superstitious belief that the trade of weaving, indispensable though it was, could not be carried on entirely without the help of the Evil One. Accordingly a weaver was looked upon with unaccountable fear and deep distrust, and tolerated only through sheer necessity.

Such a weaver was Silas Marner—as portrayed in George Eliot's book of that title—a victim of blind prejudice and ignorance. But Marner, as he toiled away unremittently, did not dream that Fate, the greatest Weaver of all, was even then weaving on her mystic loom a dramatic and momentous tapestry in which he himself was destined to form the principal pattern. It is this vivid design of love, deception and spiritual regeneration which threads its way glowingly through the immortal story of "Silas Marner."

And now, at last, you have the privilege of seeing the fascinating characters of this great book come to life behind the footlights in a gripping dramatic adaptation to be given by the Senior Class of C.H.S. Wednesday, April 18, at 7:45 p. m. in the High School gymnasium.

Ordering Completes Deal On Coquille and Coast Properties

The deal for the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dey, located at 109 N. Moulton street, was completed by George Oerding when he sold the property to Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Hendricks, who have been living in the house for several months. Mr. Dey is in the service and Mrs. Dey is staying with relatives in Coquille.

The following two sales were completed through the new branch office of Mr. Oerding, located south of Bandon: The property, consisting of 14 acres, known as the T. T. From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

America and her "Underground"

We were sitting around after chorus the other night talking about the progress of the war. Chad Davis was saying how, in spite of Germany's defeat, there was still the German underground to cope with.

"I don't worry about them," says Sober Hoskins. "So long as we got our own underground in working order."

"What do you mean—our underground?" says Chad. And Sober points out to the field. "There it is," he says, "under that soil lies the most important weapon that we've got. American crops—from American fields—strengthening our position overseas in a way no other underground can shake. From where I sit, Chad's absolutely right. Whether it's for the glass of beer that cheers a tired soldier's spirits, or the bread that feeds our armies and our allies, every bit of grain that American farmers harvest is a part of America's great strength.
