Bank Asks That Saving Account Funds Be Invested In War Bonds

Savings depositors of the First National Bank of Portland have been given an added incentive to make additional purchases of War Bonds before the end of the current Seventh War Loan drive, according to an announcement by Lewis Wiltshire, manager of the Coquille branch.

"Depositors of our bank who withdraw funds from their savings accounts between now and the 30th of June for the purchase of War Bonds will be paid full interest on their deposits through the end of June, even though the money is withdrawn before that time, which is the normal interest payment date," stated Manager Wiltshire.

"It is the sincere desire of the First National Bank to do everything in its power to assist Oregon to maintain its leadership in War Bond buying. We hope our depositors who have idle money in savings accounts will put that money to work for their country by buying War Bonds during the current drive. This allowance of full interest on their deposits through June 30 should encourage many to invest their funds in War Bonds," declared Mr. Wiltshire in making this announcement. War Bond application blanks should be presented to savings window tellers upon withdrawal of funds so that full credit for interest earned may be credited to savings accounts by the First National, according to the announcement.
