U. S. Asked To Step Up Canning This Summer A nation-wide program to help provide urgently needed food for the hungry millions in war-devastated Europe has been launched in community canning centers, it is announced. The Community Canning Program for War Relief was organized by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration with the cooperation of three divisions of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Office of Home Food Supply, Federal and State Extension Services, and Nutrition Programs Branch; the United States Office of Education, Future Farmers of America, the Camp Fire Girls, and the Girl Scouts. The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration will ship the contributions.

Users of community canning centers have been urged to step up production ten per cent above all local needs, and to contribute this surplus for free distribution overseas. This plan to build a food pool for war relief will not lead to any reduction in the domestic civilian supply.
