Interchurch Group Meet Tuesday At Methodist Church

By the Rev. Menno D. Rempel

Well over a hundred people gathered in the social parlors of the Methodist church Tuesday evening, January 29, for the quarterly interchurch fellowship supper. The potluck supper took on banquet proportions, both in quantity and quality. The tables were artfully decorated with little island settings of moss and fern interspersed with spring flowers. The Methodist Women's society served the tables.

In the program which followed, Noble Chowning led in group singing, with Olivia Olson at the piano.

Miss Aileen Wilson sang a solo, accompanied by Bobby Burns, while Geraldine Oerding very acceptably brought a violin solo, with Leona Ingman at the piano.

C. E. Hudson, Christian business man from Portland and a Gideon executive, was the speaker of the evening. He introduced A. D. Short, Nebraska chairman of the Gideons, who told of the plans to give every boy and girl in grades five to eight a New Testament. Five million have been ordered, which is the largest single printing order ever given.

Mr. Hudson then told of the "Youth for Christ" movement and illustrated his talk with many moving stories out of his own experience. The group listened, spellbound, and, after many questions, resolved to see about starting such a movement here. The meetings are held Saturday nights and are a constructive approach toward our young people. Voluntary contributions poured in after the meeting.
