Studebaker Turns Out 100,000 Car From Coast Plant

Studebaker's West Coast assembly plant in Vernon, California, just outside of Los Angeles, is now well past the 100,000 mark in production, it is announced by Ralph Menning, local dealer.

It is disclosed that the Studebaker Corporation factory, which turned out its first made-in-the-West motorcar on November 23, 1935, finished car No. 100,000 on March 28, 1949.

Car No. 100,000, a Studebaker Commander Regal De Luxe Starlight Coupe, has been lettered with signs telling the tale of this production "milestone" and is being driven by district managers throughout the territory in visits to retail establishments.
