Pastime Tavern—A Hometown Business

An event of the New Year week-end in Coquille was the opening of the new Pastime Tavern on Front street. The lavishly equipped bar is operated by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Brannon, who since 1944 owned the old Pastime Tavern on First street.

The new tavern with its light mahogany bar, plastic leather booths, effective indirect lighting and asphalt tile flooring, features the very finest in modern refrigeration, a four-compartment sink, and a new heating plant. The redecoration job, with the exception of the bar, was done locally, and a very fine job it is.

Glen Brannon has been a resident of Coos county since 1924. A native of Arkansas, he came west with his parents as a small boy, residing for a time in Salem and in Centralia, Washington, where he received his schooling. His father died in Salem in 1918 and his mother passed away several years later at Centralia. So at the early age of fifteen Glen was on his own. He worked in logging camps and sawmills in Washington and later in Coos county.

For several years, in addition to running the tavern, Glen has done contract logging. For the past two years he has logged in the Fishtrap area for the Walker Lumber Company. Mrs. Brannon has assisted at the tavern meanwhile, and during the time that Glen was in the army in 1949, she took complete charge of the business.

The Brannon's own a 128-acre ranch six miles up the North Bank road, and Glen's future plans are to concentrate on the operation of the new tavern and the ranch.

For their opening on Friday, the Brannon's received quantities of beautiful flowers, which completely covered the bar, indicative of the congratulatory wishes of their friends and customers.
