Huge Screen Is

pictures is brought directly into the cars, the porous screens are no longer necessary.

The screen that is used more nearly resembles the old silver screen than any other. But instead of the paint being applied to the special canvas, paint for a drive-in screen is applied.

Erection of an adequate surface on which to project a motion picture image is no simple process. The screen tower is huge, standing 54 feet high and 62 feet wide.

It is designed to withstand a 100-mile-an-hour wind. Chances of such a wind in the Coquille area, where 30-mile winds are an exception, are considered very unlikely.

The screen tower support consists of six poles, set in concrete, with cross braces to the rear.

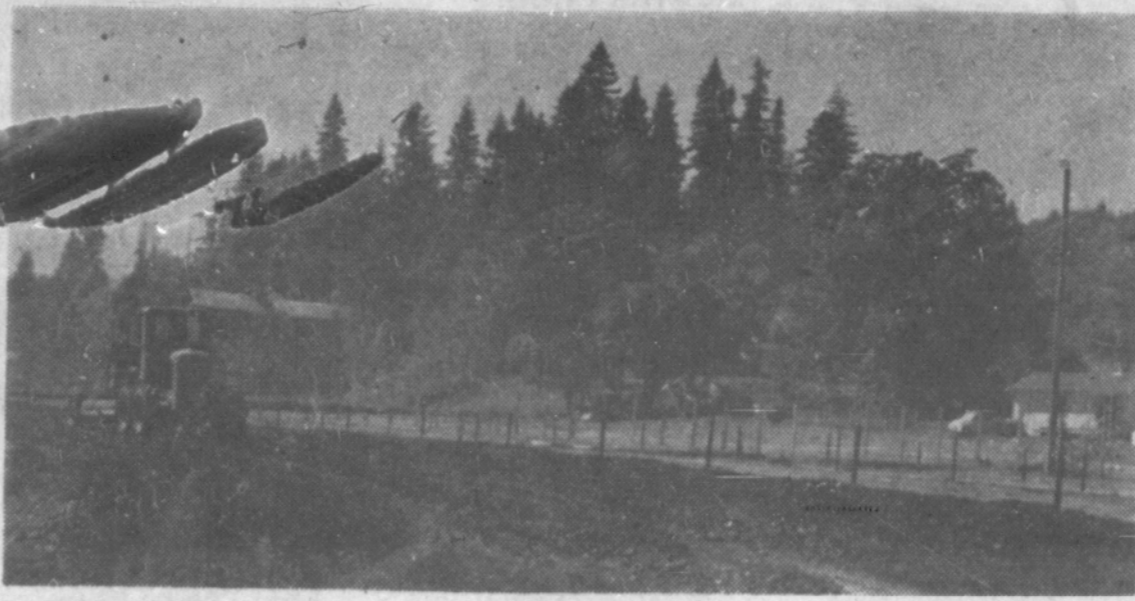

Myrtle Lane Staff Named By Theatre

Staff of the new Myrtle Lane theatre drive-in has been named and will be headed by Harry Godard, veteran motion picture projection operator who has been with the Roxy and Liberty theatres for the past ten years.

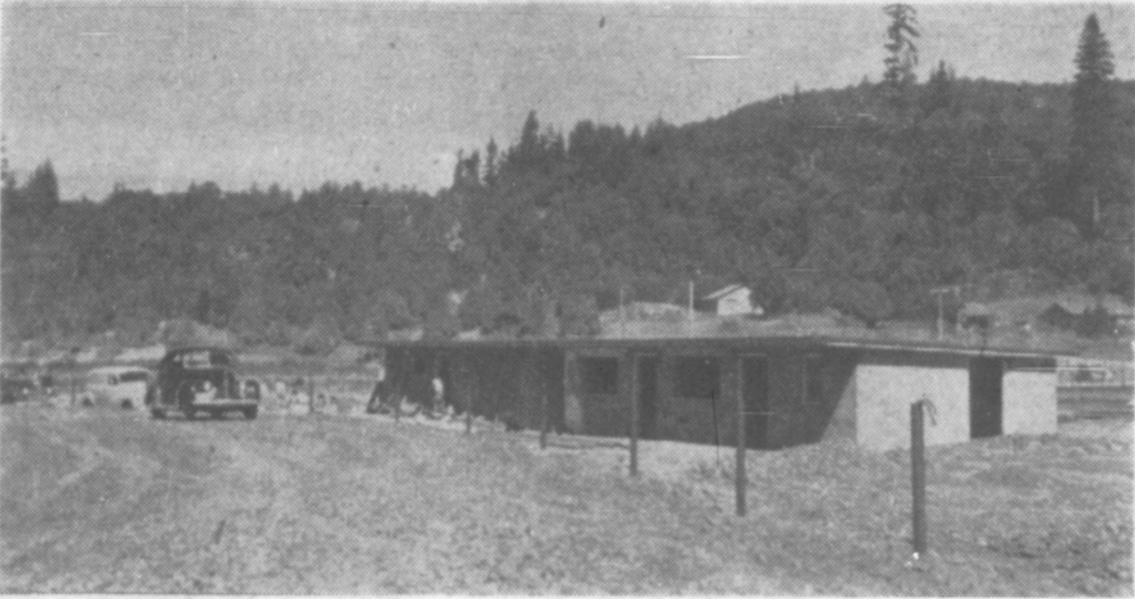

As traffic manager, George Case, principal of Lincoln school, will maintain order and be on hand at all times to see that people are able to enjoy the movies.

Cashier and teller will be Jerry McEldowney and cashier and parking attendant will be Fabian "Bud" Nelson, new intramural athletic director at the high school.

Caretaker and night watchman will be Al Edwards who will live in a specially built cottage on the drive-in property.

BUSY AT WORK—A regular grader was busy preparing the roadways and parking ramps for the 400 cars which will use the Myrtle Lane Drive-In theatre when it opens Tuesday night. When completed the theatre grounds will be smooth and easy to drive and walk on. (Sentinel Photo)

A PLACE TO EAT TOO—Here is a picture of the snack bar, taken before its completion of course, where you can get refreshments while still viewing a show under the stars in the new Myrtle Lane Drive-In theatre. When completed this week-end, the snack bar will be one of the most modern in any drive-in theatre. (Sentinel Photo)

The Myrtle Lane Drive-In Theatre

May every good fortune attend your opening Tuesday, July 18th and all the days that follow!

The addition of a SNACK BAR to your Drive-In should prove a real boon to all your patrons.

CIVIL DEFENSE TO CLICK

Five members of the state emergency board responded to the call of Governor Douglas McKay last week to learn of the defense emergency.

Jack A. Hayes, deputy director of Oregon Civilian Defense, gave a clarifying presentation of the situation and detailed a request for $25,840 which the board allowed in full after a cross-hackle on the necessity of each item.

Senator Dean Walker questioned the workings and results of C. D. during World War II. Hayes assured the board it would be different.

Oregon C. D. has been operating on funds "bummed" from various state departments, Hayes stated, as we were waiting for federal guidance.

A textbook of C. D. produced by the Atomic Energy commission and the Department of National Defense will be distributed by the Office of Civilian Mobilization to governors, mayors and C. D. officers in a few days. A copy of the book may be reproduced for civilians by the Oregon C. D.

NO BUYING BULGE

Rumors of a buyers bulge come to the state purchasing department from all over Oregon. Example: "There is not a dealer in town that has a new car for sale." Such statements evoke war shortage memories.

A check made at key cities of the state reveals there has been little buying increase of sugar, tires, cars or other items that were hard to get during most of World War II. Only a small part of the accelerated retail buying during the past ten days was due to the Korean situation or the apprehension of World War II. It all adds up that post war production in many lines has not yet caught up.

WANT A FORESTRY BOOK?

Oregon State College forestry specialists believe the new booklet "Your Trees a Crop" will become a forest "bible" for farmers throughout Oregon's Douglas fir belt.

"It brings to every woodlot owner, whether he has 10 or 10,000 acres, an opportunity to grow and market trees on a far more intensive scale than he has ever dreamed of before," says Col. William B. Greeley, vice-president of the West Coast Lumbermen's association.

The 62-page booklet explains "how to do it," if you want to grow timber.

Want a copy? A postcard to George Spaur, State Forester, Salem, Oregon, will start a copy of this valuable booklet to your address—for free.

HELPING ALCOHOLICS

"The Oregon state hospital is doing the best job in the United States in dealing with alcoholics," said Cecil Farnes at the capital this week.

Farnes, who has been active in dealing with alcoholism, said that alcoholics do not change until they realize they are suffering from a disease and need help. He said psychiatry, physical treatment and the services of Alcoholics Anonymous were used at the Salem institution to help inmates recover.

Add a couple of ripe olives as the finishing touch for any summer sandwich or salad. Ripe olives come both plain and pitted these days.

You'll like this super special sundae. Take a large golden canned cling peach half, fill with a scoop of vanilla ice cream and top with sweetened fresh raspberries. Try it with chocolate sauce instead of the berries, too.

Fresh fruit and raisin-peanut butter cookies make a good picnic dessert. The cookies pack easily and the fruit may be taken along as purchased.

DAUGHTER'S DAY—A cedar chest is little Jody's Daughter's Day present from her parents, film stars Barbara Hale and Bill Williams, and here they are teaching the little girl to take good care of her little sweaters and blankets by carefully folding them and storing them in her new chest. The Williams' are among many families in Hollywood taking part in Daughter's Day observances.
