

"Reflectorize To Stay Alive In '55" Slogan of Committee; Reflector Tape Sale To Feature Coos County 4-H Work

"Reflectorize to Stay Alive in '55" is the slogan adopted by the Coos County Rural Life Committee at a meeting on April 14 in the county courthouse.

This slogan will be used throughout the county to promote the use of reflector tape on farm equipment. A demonstration by Walter Schroeder showed the group the effectiveness of the reflective tape on model farm equipment and yellow rain slickers. 4-H Clubs throughout the county will be selling this tape as part of their safety work.

The committee decided to promote the use of the reflective tape by several methods. These include making the wearing of reflective tape on clothing a style among school children, presenting demonstrations at meetings of county organizations such as home Extension units, granges, and the farm bureau; and using mass eduational media such as newspapers and radio to present the importance of using the tape.

Mrs. John Devereux, chairman of the Rural Life Committee, conducted the meeting which was held to discuss problems of farm safety in Coos County. Mrs. T. J. Davis presented a resume of safety problems and Mrs. Mabel Mack, of the state Extension staff, led the group in a discussion of accident problems. Mrs. Mack stated that industry is doing a much better job with safety programs than agriculture.

The need for cattle passes on established highways was presented by George Jenkins, county agricultural agent, and Leander Panter of the Bandon Grange told of the work this group has been doing.

The meeting of the Rural Life Committee was open to the public and the following committee members attended: Mr. Jenkins, Mr. Schroeder, Carl Peterson, Mr. Burt Smith, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Devereux, and Miss Emma Lou Webster. Others attending were: Mr. Panter, Mrs. N. A. Garner and Mrs. R. C. Kaselstrom, Oceanacres Grange; Mrs. A. R. Smith and Mrs. Ray Kirkendall, Cooston Home Extension Unit; Able Grosen, North Bayside Grange; C. B. Holland, Myrtle Grange; E. C. Burcher, Coquille Grange; Ralph Witche, state Grange and Mrs. Mack.

Senior Advising Program At Coquille High School Helps Top Students Find Correct College Placement This Fall

"We know that we are lucky to learn so much about jobs and colleges here in high school," said one girl earnestly, "and we will try to take advantage of this knowledge." The group of a dozen high school seniors agreed with this statement as they talked with their advisor, Mrs. Thora Watson, and this reporter.

These students are the ones who have applied for scholarships in various colleges after having listened to representatives from each Oregon institution of higher education during this school year.

These weeks are anxious ones for the twelve whose scholarship applications are waiting approval or rejection. Some have applied for honor scholarships which grant no money or tuition, instead they permit exemption from certain subjects and a wider choice of subjects for the first college year.

Other students have applied for academic or athletic scholarships which grant tuition up to as much as a thousand dollars for the first year.

Most students will take their special college examinations next fall when they register. However, Bob Brooks, John Hunt and Jack Jacobsen will take college board tests in May.

Judy Anderson, who now teaches beginning band and coaches various instruments, has applied for a scholarship to Willamette U where she hopes to study elementary education to teach music. Evra Jensen would like to study nursing at the U of Oregon. David Morton hopes to major in civil engineering at Oregon State college. Louise Jenkins wishes to attend Oregon State to major in physical education. Virginia Cox hopes to study natural sciences at Oregon State college.

Judy Milne plans to attend U of Oregon where she will take education and major in language. Sandra George hopes to take elementary education at Oregon College of Education at Monmouth. Hester Wolgamott would like to teach math in high school and plans to attend U of Oregon. Darrell Atkinson wishes to take pre-medics and has applied to Oregon State college for a scholarship. Jack Jacobsen hopes to go to Lewis and Clark college to take business administration. Both Bob Brooks and John Hunt would like to become engineers and attend California Tech. Ferol Sunderland hopes to attend Willamette U to major in elementary education and music.

In Mrs. Watson's room, which is headquarters for the seniors in our high school, detailed information about all kinds of work and careers is available to the 78 seniors.

Mechanical skills and mental aptitude tests were given almost all of these young folks before Christmas and they each were given a report of their special abilities. These tests are given yearly by the State Department of Labor and the reports are used by the students in making plans for their future with Mrs. Watson, who does counseling and guidance besides her other teaching subjects.

Thus it is that those completing their education in Coquille's public schools may indeed consider themselves fortunate. For they learn about themselves and their abilities; about all kinds of work; and about opportunities for further education in colleges.

ATTEND SESSIONS

OF TIMBER BANQUET

Mayor George F. Burr took in the annual timber banquet for the Oregon State Legislators at Salem last Friday night and reports a fine time was had again. The annual affair is a real "timberjack" party and is put on each year by the logging and timber industry with senators and representatives and their wives as guests.
