

PRIZE FOR THRIFT IN THE SCHOOLS

At the coming State Teachers' Convention in Portland, December 26-29, much thought will be given to the subject of the $50.00 prize, which was offered last June by the Oregon Bankers Association to the county whose schools evidence the best showing in the promotion of thrift.

The prize of $50.00 was donated by the Bankers Association at a meeting last summer in Marshfield.

During the teachers' convention the details will be put before the teachers in anticipation of interesting all the children in Oregon. A score card will be sent to each school in the state, through the County Superintendents, on which is to be reported the enrollment of the county, and the following questions are to be used as a basis for making the award:

1. How many pupils in the schools of your county have saved and deposited in a bank, an average of ten cents a week during the school year?
2. How many pupils have devoted an average of three hours a week to home industry, including food production or preparation, such as gardening, poultry raising, pig raising, fruit packing, cooking, canning, sewing or carpentry?
3. How many pupils have prepared, during the school year, written work on Thrift and submitted same to their teachers, County Superintendent or to some newspaper for publication?
4. How many persons have participated in Thrift programs, including readings, recitations, debates or addresses, conducted by the schools of your county during the school year?

From the score cards the ratio of activities to the number of pupils in each county will be determined and the award made on this basis.

With our country becoming more and more engrossed in the war, thrift stands out as one of the essential qualifications necessary to lead our armies to victory.

Realizing that the children in the homes form a most important factor in the morale of every day life, the Bankers Association considered the matter of getting the thrift movement properly before them one of the vital points in the entire thrift campaign.

If every child in the state of Oregon could be interested to the extent of saving at least one dime a week during the year, it is thought that a foundation would be laid which would inevitably lead to the more important features of thrift, such as home preparations of food, conservation and talking and even writing on the subject. Thoughtful saving and careful expenditure constitute the basis upon which this award will be made.

Referring to the above it seems to the Sentinel that if the Oregon Bankers had offered a dozen prizes instead of $50 they would have been sowing to reap many fold by inculcating habits of thrift in the rising generation which would be in evidence in increased bank deposits—not one but many generations to come.

Boosting Oregon Cheese.

An urgent appeal is being made by W. B. Ayer, Federal Food Administrator for Oregon, for Oregon people to eat Oregon cheese.

"The United States Food Administration is making an effort to have cheese used more liberally throughout the nation, in the diet of the American people," said Mr. Ayer, "and the Administration here in Oregon is making a special effort to bring about a greater consumption of cheese in this state, for special reasons.

"There are three reasons why Oregon people should eat Oregon cheese as a regular feature of their diet. First, because cheese used as a substitute will conserve meat products for our Armies and our Allies. Second, support will be given to the Oregon industry of cheese manufacture, and through it to the dairying industry, which is now greatly hampered by the high cost of food and other difficulties. Third, because the utilization of a food commodity already at hand will release additional railroad facilities for the transportation of other greatly needed commodities.

"Cheese is one of the chief tissue-building foods and contains high nutritive values in compact form. It may be prepared in many appetizing ways and should be a very popular meat substitute. Let every Oregon family make a point of having cheese in the house, and let every Oregon housewife exercise her ingenuity in preparing it in tempting dishes that will bring about a proper appreciation of this fine Oregon product."

One of the registrants at Marshfield sent in his questionnaire to the board here stating that in his present business he is a shoemaker. Answering the question what business he had been in for several years past he naively remarked, "I keep that to myself." The officers are wondering if that means he had been doing some bootlegging on the sly.

Red Cross Proclamation.

President Wilson has issued a proclamation in which he urged everyone, not already a member, to join the Red Cross during the membership campaign which started last Sunday and will continue until Christmas eve. The president's appeal follows:

"To the people of the United States: Ten million Americans are invited to join the American Red Cross during the week ending with Christmas eve. The times require that every branch of our great national effort shall be loyally upheld, and it is peculiarly fitting that at Christmas season the Red Cross should be the branch through which your willingness to help is expressed.

"You should join the American Red Cross because it alone can carry the pledges of Christmas good will to those who are suffering for us the real burdens of the world war, both in our army and navy and in the nation, upon whose territory the issues of the world war are being fought out. Your evidence of faith in this work is necessary for their heartening and cheer.

"You should join the Red Cross because this army of the national service is steadfastly and efficiently maintaining the overseas relief in every suffering land, administering our millions wisely and well, and awakening the gratitude of every people. Our conscience will not let us enjoy the Christmas season if this pledge of support to our cause and the world's weal is left unfulfilled. Red Cross membership is the Christmas spirit in terms of action.

WOODROW WILSON,
"President of the American Cross."

Strictly Limited Insurance.

The following is from a recent issue of the Portland Telegram:

That considerable misapprehension exists among the enlisted men and officers of the military and naval forces of the United States regarding the provisions of the act granting them an opportunity of carrying war risk insurance in the maximum sum of $10,000 upon monthly payments from their salaries, is indicated by a letter received by A. Bradshaw, 463 East Eighth street North, whose nephew, Second Lieutenant Bradshaw, of the 149th field artillery, died last month at Camp Mills, L. I.

The communication is from the division of military and naval insurance of the bureau of war risk insurance and regarding the claim for compensation reads as follows:

"The act provides that no insurance shall be payable unless the deceased leaves surviving a widow, child or widowed mother, and that no compensation shall be payable unless the deceased leaves surviving a widow, child or dependent widowed mother. The mother's widowhood, with reference to compensation only, may arise before or after the death of the enlisted person, and compensation shall be payable whenever her condition is such that if the person were living she would have been dependent upon him for support. Only the specified relatives above mentioned have any title.

From this it would appear that the soldiers who can take out insurance, with any surety of its being paid by the government, are those who leave wives or children. If the soldier's mother is not dependent on him for support, the money he pays to insure his life in her interest will have been thrown away, so far as he is concerned. From the above it would not appear that there is any question about the insurance being good in the case of wife and children, however.

Clarence Gould Sells Ranch.

Herbert Murphy and John C. Kendall have purchased the Clarence Gould ranch of 80 acres, three miles above Allegany and intend securing other land in that vicinity, to make a stock ranch where cattle can be raised. The original place has 15 acres of bottom land and an $800 house. The consideration is said to have been around $2000.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould are now in Arizona, where they are buying an orange orchard in the vicinity of Phoenix. Mrs. Gould's health became of such a nature it was thought best to seek a different climate.—Record.

Clarence Gould is a brother of A. N. Gould, of this city, and well known here.

How to Prevent Croup.

In a child that is subject to attacks of croup, the first indication of the disease is hoarseness. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the child becomes hoarse and the attack may be warded off and all danger and anxiety avoided.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This is not only one of the best and most efficient medicines for coughs, colds and croup, but is also pleasant and safe to take, which is important when medicine must be given to children. Many mothers have given it their unqualified endorsement.
