Talking About People and Events in the City and County.

R. K. Booth and R. A. Wernick went to Marshfield Tuesday.

Mrs. F. A. Alford, of Sitka, was a Coquille visitor today.

Hon. A. K. Peck was a caller at the Sentinel office Wednesday morning.

Louis Kohlhaugen, of Roseburg, was in the city Wednesday on business.

Mrs. Win. Cotton has just moved in from Fairview and will make her home in town.

Remember that the Sentinel and the Oregon Farmer each for one year cost only $1.65 now.

The hearing of pending naturalization cases in this county is set for next Friday, Nov. 8.

You can't can any more fruit this year unless you have the sugar on hand. The bars are up today.

Archibald Philip proved to be immune to the recall, but not to the Spanish Flu, which has just attacked him.

The short sermon on the 6th page is a very practical one and one that many a Coquille parent would do well to take to heart.

The Sentinel presents a full page advertisement this week for the war charities drive, as its own contribution to the cause.

Judge Watson has been sick this week for several days and unable to be at his office—not a victim of the influenza, however.

Geo. S. Davis is moving to town this week from his ranch up the river. He will occupy his own house next north of Treasurer Dimmick's.

After two or three days in bed with a bilious attack Judge Watson was able to get to the court house and attend to business this morning.

The Flu appears to have stopped the issue of marriage licenses, but it will take something more than that to put the divorce mill out of business.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. N. Battey are now living out the County infirmary where George is assisting Mr. Landreth in running the farm.

George S. Davis, of the Glen Alken neighborhood, is going to quit the dairy business, and elsewhere in this issue advertises his cows for sale.

V. R. Wilson, Optician and Optometrist, will be at his office on Taylor street, Coquille, every day in the week. Glasses fitted. 4219

Mrs. A. N. Gould, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at Grayce hospital about two weeks ago was able to return home on Tuesday.

J. E. Conway has contracted to build a bungalow residences at the corner of Eleventh and Flanagan streets, Marshfield, for J. Stewart Lyons.

That cheap lot advertised elsewhere in this issue is worth looking after if you think of building "after the war." You won't be able to secure any such bargain then.

The first frost we saw this fall occurred last Saturday morning, and was very conspicuous on board walks and bridges, but apparently did no damage to vegetation.

Dr. Richmond says it usually takes six weeks for an epidemic like the prevailing influenza to run its course. If the rule holds good in this case we are nearly half way through.

The pouring of the concrete for the basement walls of the new Machon building, adjoining the opera house, has been in progress this week, and work on the upper walls will begin next.

Charles Hall, president of the Coos Curry Telephone company, was a caller yesterday afternoon. He has become optimistic enough to believe that that trouble in Europe will be settled by Christmas.

Another down-town improvement this week was the removal of the dilapidated bill boards at the rear of the Baxter on Taylor street, and the erection of a high board fence, nicely stained, in their place.

Butter Wrappers and Trussars Signs at the Sentinel office.

Now that we have the conditions for mayor on the table everybody will want to vote at the city election next Tuesday, which is held in connection with the state and county election at the same polling places.

This noon we met Leo J. Cary on the First street bridge marshalling a herd of 200 big fat sheep. He had brought them up from the Lampa ranch and will take them up to Portland to market tomorrow morning.

The golden wedding of Gus Schroeder was celebrated at Norway last Sunday with about 80 guests present, among whom was his brother, J. F. Schroeder, of this city. Only three of the guests were at the original wedding in 1868.

E. E. Johnson was unable to start his mill last Monday as announced, and is now proposing to set the wheels turning next Monday. He is not sure he can make it then, however, but says if not then it will be only a day or two later than that.

Wednesday the local military board here began sending out questionnaires to the young men of 18, and those from 37 to 45 inclusive. There are 2100 such registrants in Coos county and the questionnaires are going out at the rate of 200 per day.

Rev. W. S. Smith, of Bandon, was a caller this afternoon on his way to Myrtle Point. He could not tell us how many cases of the Flu there had been there, but as one physician reported 25 several days ago, it is evident that there are many more there than here in Coquille.

The number of voters registered in this county for the primary election last June was 9,148, and the clerks at the court house inform us that there have been very few registered since. The democrats numbered 2472 and the republicans 6681, a total of 9,153, leaving 1,015 scattering.

James Nealer had trouble with the flag at the Court House last Sunday and could not make the halyards work as they should. The result was that the flag lay partly drooped and partly prone on the roof in a worse than half masted condition and people began to wonder what had happened.

Housekeepers will be glad to learn that sugar rations have been increased and that it is now possible to secure three pounds per month per person and that the family supply can all be obtained at one purchase. Our folks tell us that is as much as our average consumption, so we shall no longer have to "scrimp on sweets."

J. L. Smith has been busy getting out his annual report this week, but expects to have his monthly Bulletin ready by the first of next week. Although the prevailing influenza will make it necessary to postpone the corn show, he is still confident that it will be held later and is steadily accumulating specimens that look pretty good.

Dr. Richmond received a circular last week from the state board of health informing him that they had received a supply of serum for the prevailing Spanish influenza, and asking if he wanted some of it, but suggesting that the supply was very limited. He requested to be furnished with a little of it and received a supply last night.

Organization of "do without it" clubs in America, as a means of aiding the United War Work campaign, which open November 11, was recommended by James F. Pershing, brother of General Pershing, in an address delivered recently in Portland in behalf of the drive. He urged the American people to make some sacrifices in order to help "carry on" the great undertaking that is to furnish money for war work in the battle zone during the coming year. A great percentage of American people, he said, do not know, from any sacrifices made thus far, that a war is in progress. Relaxation of activities because of peace proposals, he declared, should not be tolerated, and asked people of the country to throw their whole energy and co-operation behind this latest drive for securing funds for the seven big war-working agencies consolidated in the campaign.

These Christmas Boxes. The boxes in which Christmas gifts may be shipped to the boys in France are expected to be here by the first of the week and the Red Cross will keep the Liberty Bells open every week day afternoon from 3 to 4:30 in order that those who desire to send gifts may receive the boxes. As heretofore announced, it is absolutely necessary that shipment be made in these boxes secured from the Red Cross.

The year for which the Red Cross has been waiting for some time came to hand this morning and those who knit may now secure a supply from Mrs. J. B. Lawrence.

Hallowe'en Last Night. There was not very much of the old-time Hallowe'en deprecations last night, although one of W. H. Mansell's wagons was run over the sidewalk and into the gulch below his barn, luckily without breaking anything. The worst offenders were the soap brigades which marked up show windows.

About four o'clock this morning Marshal Miller was called out to look after a crowd which was indulging in loud talk and profanity on the Henry street bridge, but they quickly convinced him that they were just returning from work at the Sitka and were not all-night celebrators. He warned them to make themselves scarce, and they did.

Machine is Almost Human. A machine which refuses to post an overdraft is an innovation in banking equipment which has just been installed by the First National Bank here. It is a Burroughs product and while it can be used as an adding machine, its chief function will be the posting of customers' accounts. Starting with the balance on the left hand side of the sheet, the listing of checks is then made by simply pressing the proper figure keys, the machine being set for subtraction. When the last check has been posted the machine automatically switches to addition and the deposits are struck, the final showing the customer's account at the close of business. It requires a separate key to permit the posting of an overdraft which shows up on the ledger sheet in red.

The machine operates by electricity and Mr. Hazard says it is saving much valuable time for the bank force.

One Year's Changes. Only one short year ago when the Hun and their allies had taken 200,000 Italian prisoners and were pounding them to vary near the breaking point, any one who predicted that within twelve months the Austrian empire would have gone to pieces and the Vienna government have been begging for a chance to surrender unconditionally, while the Italian armies were capturing its troops at the rate of 30,000 a day would have been laughed at as a pipe dreamer, yet that is just what is happening now. Austria is going to be out of the war in a few days, as Bulgaria and Turkey already are, and her railroads will then be at the service of the Allies to take troops to Berlin's back door along the Bohemian line. And the present Italian front is as near Berlin as the American front in France north of Verdun, with no fortifications or trenches on the way either. The front door is not always the readiest place to get into a house.

Miss Dora Suddaby. Mrs. E. E. Padden has just received word that her niece, Miss Dora Suddaby, died very suddenly of heart failure at Santa Rosa, Cal., Oct. 14. Miss Suddaby was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Wheeler, formerly of this city.

One very odd feature was that only two members of the family were able to be present at the funeral, the rest being ill with the influenza.

F. C. Parsley Goes to Camp. F. C. Parsley started by Wednesday morning's train for Camp Fremont at Palo Alto, California, where he is to take a special course as a Y. M. C. A. secretary, a position to which he was recently appointed. The course will consist of lectures at Stanford University and will also include some strenuous physical training at the camp. After about a month there Mr. Parsley will go to work in the spruce production division, and may very likely be assigned to work here in Coos county.

Honor Guard Notes. The Salvage Shop has moved in the building just one door east of Rose's dry goods store. Donations of all kinds will be appreciated, jams and jellies especially. See the girls Saturday in their new shop.

The Honor Guard girls wish to express their thanks to Mr. Ed Johnson and Mrs. M. H. Hersey for the use of their building in the past; and to all others who have helped them in any way.

Business Affected by Flu. The quarantine for Spanish influenza is beginning to seriously affect business in many lines. The pool halls and moving picture show are far from being the only ones affected. Indeed, the stay-at-home suggestion has dried up many of the usual sources of news and the Sentinel has never before found it so difficult to secure its local news. The fact that our correspondents have with a couple of exceptions, taken a vacation, and that the neighbors have brought in nothing makes it even more difficult to set the table.

Few Will "Vote Her Straight." Admonitions to "vote the straight ticket" are no longer heard in its section, and party lines are going to be pretty nearly obliterated when Coos county goes to the polls next Tuesday. Whether a man is labelled a democrat or a republican has little relation to his efficiency as a public official. Indeed, the only positions on the county ticket for which there are more than a single candidate are those of sheriff and county clerk, and were it not that the republican majority in the county is large, there might be no more for those. For such positions it is well to vote for the man one believes will best fulfill the duties of the office, rather than be governed chiefly by the party label.

You Can't Always Tell. One can't always be sure what it is best to do in an emergency. Had the 843 people who perished in the wreck of the St. Sophia on Vanderbilt reef near Skagway, Alaska, last week left that doomed vessel when relief was at hand Friday morning, probably not a life would have been lost. On the other hand had the people on the Santa Clara at Bartendorf beach three years ago this week "staid by the ship" instead of taking to the boats the dozen lives lost there would all have been saved. Of course, a reef far from shore was a much more risky resting place for a ship than the sandy bottom on which the Santa Clara rested, but no one could have known in advance which of the two a storm was going to destroy.

Justice F. A. Moore of the Supreme Court died last month, too late for the name of any candidate to succeed him to be placed on the Ballot. This condition makes it necessary to write in the name of your candidate.
