

MINOR MENTION

Talking About People and Events in the City and County.

F. B. Phillips went out to Cottage Grove Tuesday morning on business.

J. T. Brand, city attorney at Marshfield, was a caller at the Sentinel office yesterday.

Have you lost a cavalier? If you have the Sentinel may be able to tell you where to find it.

At the road election held week before last Lee voted a $1200 tax for road improvements.

Hinds & Lawson, Coos river farmers, have marketed a honey crop of two tons this season.

An equity term of the Circuit court will convene here next Monday with Judge Cole on the bench.

Mrs. H. E. Folsom came over from the Bay yesterday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Tuttle.

It is reported that even the rails are to be removed from the new logging railroad in the Beaver Hill section.

Only four boarders at the jail now Turnkey Ward reports. It's a long time since he has had a full house there.

Next week all those Sentinel subscribers whose subscriptions expire Dec. 1, may expect to see a blue cross on their labels.

Mrs. Oran Haberly and Miss Olive Moore, of Marshfield, were visiting in Coquille Wednesday and made the Sentinel a call.

O. P. Ellingsen, of Parkersburg, came up here last Saturday and left Monday morning for a two week visit at Portland.

We are expecting some splendid new Georgette and Crepe de Chine waists the last of this week. Watch for them. The Ladies Bazaar.

Dr. C. W. Endicott and family arrived home Wednesday evening after a two months' visit with Mrs. Endicott's father, T. J. Walker, at Fort Ransom, North Dakota.

This week Coos county has been getting some of its long overdue averages of rain. At the rate it has been coming lately the account will be squared before Spring.

T. P. Hanley, of Lampa, and C. M. Spencer, of Bandon, were in town Tuesday to attend the meeting of the Commission of the Port of Bandon, and made the Sentinel a call.

The glass fell so fast Wednesday that the Lizzie wouldn't venture out of Bandon harbor, and probably when yesterday afternoon's gale came the old gal was glad she didn't.

V. B. Wilson, Optician and Optometrist, will be at his office on Taylor street, Coquille, every day in the week. Glasses fitted. 4219

We've been getting thunder and lightning enough in the past two days to imagine we had gone back East. Something about our Oregon weather seems to have slipped a cog.

I. T. Weekly reports that his son, Vance, who was last week reported very low with the "flu" has fully recovered but is now quarantined on account of the prevalence of measles at Camp Lewis.

The local board had sent out 2800 questionnaires to the registrants between 18 and 21 and between 36 and 46 years, before the lid went on. There remained 500 to send out which will never go, now that no more soldiers are needed.

The quarantine as to the churches, theater, pool halls and all public gatherings is still in force by order of the city and district authorities now, Dr. Richmond, county health officer, having left it to them to decide what should be done.

W. H. Carlile, of Myrtle Point, came down here to be examined for military service this morning as he had been previously notified to do; but when he got here found that examinations had been passed up, since Uncle Sam needs no more doughboys.

Writing from Earlmar, California, to remit a year's subscription a former Coquille valley rancher says, "Your paper is like a letter from Home." That is exactly what we try to make the Sentinel for every one who has ever enjoyed life in this Eden-like section.

Did you see that arching rainbow brightening the northern sky at high noon today. We never saw a complete one in that quarter before and it appeared to us like one in olden times, a sign of promise, not that the earth should never again be swept with a universal flood, but that war should be no more.

The Port Orford Tribune says that although J. U. Campbell, of Oregon

City, advertised his candidacy for Supreme Court Justice in both the Coos county papers he received only one vote in the entire county. They were all sold for Cole down there.

At the city election in Eugene last week, most wary as snakes that they elected two women to the city council. They were Mrs. Jane Morgan and Mrs. T. J. Macgown. It is reported, however, that the latter will be unable to qualify, owing to some defect in her husband's naturalization papers.

Coquille's celebration of the real ending of the war last Monday evening, was not up to the affair of last week in point of noise nor enthusiasm. For one thing the soldiers had strict orders to stay out of it and they obeyed. A parade in the afternoon and a big bonfire at night were the features.

Looking toward state recognition and equipment of the Oregon Volunteer Guard, the six regimental commanders of that organization met last week in Portland with E. C. DeBlin, chairman of the organization and its general commander. Plans for putting the guard in state service have been outlined and are to be presented to the officials at Salem.

Says It's Not Four Pennies Yet.

County Food Administrator Liljeqvist says there has been no change yet in the sugar rules and the three pounds a month per person still goes. However, we can read between the lines that there is going to be a change Dec. 1, and probably the extra pound will be allowed after that date. The announcement was like the United Press peace story, only a little premature.

Coos Bay Woman Makes a Kick

After eating six eggs, three stacks of hot cakes and drinking seven or eight cups of coffee at a local restaurant last Saturday morning, a Bay woman was taken sick at the depot on her way home and telephoned the restaurant that the cakes had poisoned her. Later she said it was the bacon, but as she had eaten no bacon at his place, Mr. Miller concluded that she was not responsible. She left town that afternoon.

Holds Court at Marshfield.

Judge Watson went over to Marshfield yesterday to look after juvenile cases. He had before him the case of Walter Snedden aged 12; Halder Olson, aged 12; and Harold Duncan, aged 12. They were charged with stealing money from Wm. Cox's till and various other articles such as a shot gun, fishing tackle, etc. The boys and their parents were roundly lectured by the judge and told that a repetition of such offenses would result in their being sent to Salem. They were paroled in care of their parents.

Corn Husking at Norway

Grover C. Gouthier had another husking bee at his big barn at Norway last Saturday evening, for which a large crowd turned out. There were lots of red ears—enough to go round, in fact—but some of them were used again and again. As usual some of the blushing damsels objected to paying the forfeit entailed by the finding of a red ear, and it is said the champion husker of the evening went home with deep scratches down his face that made one think he had been mixed up with a wild cat.

County Court Items.

The widow's pension of $10 a month to Mrs. Bessie K. Lennan has been discontinued because she has left the state.

That of Mrs. May Binkey at $32.50 a month was cut off because she has remarried.

The application of Mrs. Maude Davis, of North Bend, whose husband was killed on Tenmile Lake, for a pension, was continued for further proof-certificates of birth and death.

The similar application of Mrs. Effie Gray for a pension was continued for the same reason.

Dyer & Plymale were given an extension of time from December 1, 1918, to Dec. 1, 1919, to complete their contract for gravelling the Bandon South section of the coast highway.

The appointment of Mrs. Sadie Prince, wife of one of the men in the Spruce division at the Sitka, as typist in the Sheriff's office at $3 per day was confirmed.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Before using this preparation for a cough or cold you may wish to know what it has done for others. Mrs. O. Cook, Macon, Ill., writes, "I have found it gives the quickest relief of any cough remedy I have ever used." Mrs. James A. Knott, Chillicothe, Mo., says "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cannot be best for coughs and colds." H. F. Moore, Oval, Pa., says "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy on several occasions when I was suffering with a settled cold upon the chest and it has always brought about a cure."

That Engineer May Not Be So Bold

Not long ago in talking with one of the leading business men of the city we stated that he was opposed to see a through railroad line built directly east from the Bay to connect with the railroad system of the country without going via Portland. We were surprised to learn that he was not only inclined to think such an undertaking possible but even probable.

One of the reasons he advanced for the faith that was in him was that since our recent experience in raising two and a half millions of dollars in Coos county in a year and a half for war activities the financing of a great project like that at home did not seem so entirely out of the question as it used to. Indeed with the right kind of a man at the helm in promoting such an enterprise he was sure it could be put over. He said the grades over the two mountain ranges between the coast and eastern Oregon were moderate, especially between here and the Umpqua valley, the Rock creek canyon above Bridge actually following a water grade into Camas valley.

That portion of the road from the main line of the Southern Pacific down the Middle Fork to Myrtle Point, Coquille and probably Bandon, we have always felt certain would be built but we had never before thought of it as part of a transcontinental system reaching on through the Cascades over into the Snake river valley and on to Salt Lake. Still even that may be entirely feasible; and we are, of course, glad to know that in thinking of a through line directly east from Coos Bay no other route looks so good as the one by way of Coquille.

Costs Two Bits a Yard.

Judge Watson furnishes us exact figures on the cost of transporting gravel by the new county truck, compared with the old methods. By horse power it used to cost 60 cents to haul a yard of gravel one mile, without making any allowance for wear and tear, and as the county rarely had to stand that, it should be figured that way. With the four ton truck the county is using the operating expense in hauling is 12.50—practically 12.50 cents per yard mile. To that he adds 12.05 cents for interest on the investment and depreciation. That is probably somewhat of an overestimate as it contemplates a life of only five years for the truck. So the entire expense of moving gravel by truck figure less than 25 cents per yard mile, or at the rate of 55 where it cost 112 before, a saving of 55 per cent.

Need Not Fill Them Out.

J. P. Beyers, of the Local Board, received the following from the adjutant general on Tuesday, the day after hostilities ceased:

The President directs that registrants who on September 12th, 1918, had attained their thirty-seventh birthday and who have received questionnaires but they are immediately to return these documents to their local boards. No charges of delinquency will be entered against any such registrant for his failure heretofore to fill out and return his questionnaire even though the time set for such return is now past, and all charges of delinquency heretofore entered against such registrants of such age who have failed to return their questionnaires within the time limit set therefore will be cancelled.

Relatives Victims of the Flu

The first of the week Mrs. E. B. Rogers received the sad intelligence of the death of her brother's wife at Mason City, Iowa, Nov. 10th, of influenza, and that her brother and eldest daughter were also seriously ill. Yesterday Mrs. Rogers received news that a cousin's son, had died of influenza Oct. 29th at Camp Sheridan, Montgomery, Alabama. His parents happened to go there to visit him (their only son), arriving there several days before he was taken ill, so were at his bedside when death came. He was buried on his 27th birthday at the family home, Belvidere, Illinois.

Nature of Fatigue.

Fatigue is the presence in the blood of poisonous by-products of life combustion. While we are awake the poisons accumulate faster than the system can remove them. When we are asleep, when the life combustion is slowed down, the system removes them faster than they accumulate. It is as though ashes accumulate in a stove at such a rate that the fire had to be put out every so often to allow a chance to remove them.

Whale Eaten by Many.

The Indians of the Pacific coast before the white man came hunted the whale in their swift, high-proved narrow canoes, killing it with light harpoons. For many years whale meat was used largely by them. The Japanese for centuries have eaten whale beef. Among the nations of Europe it has been common food in the past.

Just Couldn't Help It.

Last Monday morning some one asked the Sentinel over the phone if that great expert was "another hoax." On being assured this time it was again he volunteered the following astonishing information: "All right, I'm going out and get drunk right away!" We couldn't tell who the fellow was if we would, and we wouldn't if we could.

Prices Tending Downward.

The tendency of staples to drop in price as a result of the ending of the war is more marked than we had expected. Here, for instance, the Sanitary Market is this week advertising a ton of bacon and cured side meat at 40 and 25 cents. It's for one day only as you will see on reading the advertisement on the second page of this issue, but it is another of the many straws indicating that war prices are bound to drop, and along with them the high cost of living.

Some Mammoth Potatoes.

Last Saturday J. B. Shelton brought in three mammoth potatoes about 11 inches long that weighed eight pounds and 5 ounces. He says he placed nine of the same sort end to end and they measured 96 inches. Those potatoes could be sold by the yard. Despite the prejudice of the show men against big potatoes, we could not see but that these heavy weights eat as well as any.

Harvey Pierce War Victim

Mrs. Augustino informs us that she has just learned of the death of her nephew, Harvey Pierce, of Bandon, on the battlefields in France Sept. 18. He was 27 years of age and left here last October a year ago to enter the service. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. H. A. Dooley, of Bandon. It is peculiarly afflicting to learn, now that the war is over, of the death of dear ones over there; but it is something to know that they were to save the world and that their great gift has not been in vain.

Why We Have Chosen The Pathé

Pathophones to Offer Our Customers

THE international fame of the Pathophone will immediately suggest many reasons. But the big outstanding reason is this:

Pathé Supraphone Ball—a ball-shaped jewel used in place of metal needles. It means:

- No Needles to Change
- More Important still, the Pathé Supraphone Ball means:
- Long Life to the Record
- It cannot cut, dig into, groove or rip the record surface. Pathé Records are guaranteed to play 1000 times without showing perceptible wear.
- The Pathé Library of Records opens to you a glorious world of music. Not only the greatest singers now in America, but celebrated foreign artists who have never been here. Famous foreign orchestras and bands; and a host of delightful musical novelties.
- Come in today and hear your favorite selections played the Pathé way.

Credit Where Due. A student, coming to a hard question on his examination paper, wrote for his answer: "God only knows, I don't." The paper came back with the following correction in the professor's handwriting: "God gets the credit you don't."—Boston Transcript.

The Doing of It. No honest work can degrade us; only the way in which we perform it can do that. The humblest task, well and painstakingly accomplished, is honorable. The highest undertaking, carelessly and poorly pushed through, is a disgrace to us.
