Juice Off Again Wednesday

The Sentinel was bothered again Wednesday by lack of the electric current that runs its linotype so that work in setting the paper was delayed for several hours. During the furious windstorm which prevailed the previous night for several hours a tree was blown across the power line near the Watson ranch at Coos City breaking the connection. So people in Coquille who, like the writer, usually rise early, found it wasn't much use to try to do anything until daylight came. Lineman Medley was out all the morning hunting for the break and didn't get it repaired until after noon.

It seems that we have been facing an even greater danger of going dark, too, as well as a power shortage owing to the shutting down of the Smith mill at Marshfield, where the sawdust has furnished the fuel for the engines that run the motors, ever since the high tension line was put in.

Manager Martin of the Power company was informed that owing to a shortage of logs at the mill, due to diminished production at Powers, since the soldier loggers there went out for demobilization, the mill might have to shut down for a few weeks and would be unable to furnish power for the company.

As it would require a hundred cords of wood to keep the power plant going Mr. Martin ordered a cargo of oil from San Francisco, and received word that the oil tanker Whittier was to sail from there with 10,000 barrels either Wednesday or yesterday.

Fuel oil is now $2 a barrel where it used to be 60 cents, and its use while the Smith mill is shut down is expected to increase the Power company's expenses $7,000 per month.

On learning these facts and that it was uncertain whether the Smith mill would be running today we became somewhat uncertain as to whether juice would be available to finish the typesetting for the Sentinel this morning. Inquiring of Miss Harlocker, who is in charge of the office here, elicited the information that the company was already provided with oil fuel for such emergencies and that barring accidents there would be no interruption of light or power service.

Big Fish Season at Reedsport

Over $100,000 in cash was the sum of money paid by the Reedsport Fish Company alone to fishermen of the lower Umpqua river during the fishing season of 1918, says the Port Umpqua Courier. This money was distributed among about 100 fishermen. There are from 150 to 175 men engaged in the business on the river at the height of the season but some sell their catches to the cannery and some others to the plant at East Gardiner.

All of this money, or practically all of it went to the Umpqua river fishermen, while more was expended in purchasing fish from Lakeside, Twomile and the Coquille river.

The fish were all sent out in ice in the shape of fresh fish to the markets of the big cities of the United States.

During the year the Reedsport Fish Company shipped by express in refrigerator cars a total of about 1,500,000 pounds of salmon, including chinooks, steelheads and silversides. The express bill for the year was $20,000.

The magnitude of this amount of fish may be realized when the fact is stated that the amount of fish shipped by this company from Reedsport would make 2,000,000 ordinary meals. In other words, it would give the main portion of one meal for everybody in Chicago, or it would furnish the food equivalent for one day for everybody in Washington, D. C., and Denver, Colo.

Allowing three good meals a day, for 365 days, the product shipped from Reedsport would furnish the main basis of food for 1830 persons for one year.

Children of "Flu" Victims

Last Monday a petition was filed in the Probate Court here by Attorney N. C. McLeod, of North Bend, for the appointment of a guardian for Earl Raynor Fox, Anita Fox, Hazel Fox and an unnamed baby girl Fox.

This is the sad case in which both parents died of the influenza, and the baby girl mentioned, who was born while the mother was ill with that disease, has since died of it.

Notice to Water Consumers

All water rents must be paid between the first and 12th of each month. The city officials cannot take the time to go over the city and collect these rents. Water will be shut off in every case where the rent is not paid by the 12th, and will not be turned on again until a fee of $1 has been paid for that service.

Many Relatives in the War.

The following will be of interest to the many people here and at Myrtle Point, who knew Mr. and Mrs. Cavers during the two years he was engaged on bridge and road work in this valley:

Mrs. James K. Cavers, wife of the manager of the Reedsport Fish Company, is rejoicing that the war has ended and that she has been spared all three of her brothers who served in the British army. They were each of them in active fighting but all escaped serious injury or death.

One brother, First Lieutenant John Hunter, entered the army of England in the infantry in the fall of 1914. In 1917 he was transferred to the air service and received a commission. Like the other airmen, he went through great dangers and took desperate risks. The British airmen had a way of making up a pot of money before going into action. Each would put a certain amount in the pot and the one that got back with the greatest number of hits on his machine took the pot. Lieut. Hunter was the winner of one of these purses when he came back with his machine showing that it had been struck twenty-six times by Hun bullets. Yet he escaped with his own life.

Another brother of Mrs. Cavers was private Walter Hunter, who served in the infantry, since January, 1917, and who was in great danger at St. Quentin when the big German drive occurred, but he got through safely.

Still another brother was Sergeant Joseph Hunter, who drove a British auto transport since early in 1917, and although at the front up until the close of the war, was also spared.

Mr. Cavers was not so fortunate. Four of his first cousins were killed in the war while in the British army, and one first cousin of Mrs. Cavers was lost.

With so many of their relatives engaged, Mr. and Mrs. Cavers are naturally much relieved that the war is over and that the sacrifice of the lives of the fighting men is at an end.

Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lett, of Myrtle Point, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Friday, January 10. Grandpa and Grandma Lett as they are generally known, have lived near Myrtle Point for many years and have a wide circle of friends who wish to see them live to enjoy many more wedding anniversaries.

They received several nice gifts and the day, which ended all too soon, included a luscious turkey dinner with all the trimmings and goodies, besides a fine wedding cake to which all did ample justice.

The day will long be remembered by the twenty-five present, including all their children and all except four grand children, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Whitmer, of Iowa, and Mrs. Frank and Miss Wilma Lett, of Portland, Ore.

Those present were: Grandpa and Grandma Lett, Mrs. Sarah Williams and children, Arthur, Lottie, Mary and Norman, of Norway; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lett and children, Flossie and Orland, of Bridge; Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Root and children, Perna and Gracie, of Arago; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lett and children Leslie and Dorna, of Norway; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Williams, of Arago; also Mr. and Mrs. Frank Langlois and grandson, Rex Pemberton, of Myrtle Point, friends of the old couple.

Two Coquille Men in Bank

In recording the establishment of a bank at Reedsport which has just been incorporated as the First National Bank of Reedsport, with a capital of $25,000, the Courier thus mentions two former Coquille people who are among the stockholders:

C. McC. Johnson is a well known lumberman, formerly of the Coquille Valley section of Coos county, who built in Reedsport the Johnson mill which he operates here. Mr. Johnson selected this place as a location for his mill because he has faith in the future of the harbor and the Umpqua as a great lumber shipping point. J. W. Noblet is office manager at the Johnson mill and is also formerly of the Coquille section.

Soldier Loggers Coming Back

The applications made to Al Powers by many of the soldier workers in the camps for jobs after they had been discharged from the army is bringing many of the men back. Tuesday Sergeant Hoerler, Sergeant Farley, Sergeant Carter and Douglas Hillis arrived from Portland and went on to Powers to work in the camps. They have just been discharged at Vancouver. One of the boys is a Minneapolis man and is planning on spending the rest of the winter anyway in the west. The camps are in need of 150 men, it is said.—Times.

The Last Kinney Tax Case

L. A. Liljeqvist, who recently returned from Portland where he had appealed in Judge Wolverton's court as attorney for Coos county in the Kinney tax foreclosure proceedings is reported in the Coos Bay Times as saying in reference to that case:

The questions raised by Attorney Bristol in behalf of the Title Guarantee & Trust company and Attorney Winters in behalf of the syndicate which Frank Waite was forming, are briefly:

Claim that the properties since January, 1907, when a federal receiver was appointed for the Tittle Guarantee & Abstract company, placed the Kinney property under the jurisdiction of the federal court and that consequently all subsequent legal actions, including the Coos county tax foreclosure, the Waite, Shahan and Kinney foreclosure suits the Isaacs and Hollister proceedings are invalid. To offset this, Mr. Liljeqvist contended that the titles to the Kinney properties were held by he courts as vested in John K. Kollock personally and that the Title Guarantee & Abstract could only be interested in the proceeds from the sale of the property.

Attorney Bristol also contended that the whole Oregon tax foreclosure law was invalid.

Also that the property in question must be sold under tax foreclosure within six years or the taxes become invalid.

The last question was cured by the action of the Oregon legislature last year by the enactment of a bill prepared by Mr. Liljeqvist and which Attorneys Winters and Bristol attacked.

Mr. Liljeqvist says that the delays in the Kinney tax foreclosure are entirely due to the mixup that Kinney and the other claimants got the property into and is not due in any way to the procedure by the county.

He further points out that a victory for the county will not only gain the taxes for the county, but will straighten out the titles to the Kinney properties so that they can be sold and become available for improvement, a matter that can probably not be accomplished within many years except by means of a tax title. Consequently others interested in the Kinney properties and their development will share in the personal benefit in addition to the indirect benefit of the collection of the back taxes by Coos county.

Another Mill at Reedsport

There is a rumor going the rounds that Mrs. L. S. Dewar had had an offer made her of $30,000 for the Bone Island farm, across the river from Reedsport. The report is that another large sawmill will be erected on this property. If this is true, it will mean another large asset for Reedsport.—Courier.

The New Income Tax Law

Collector of Internal Revenue, Milton A. Miller, is receiving many inquiries concerning the provisions of the new Revenue bill providing for income and other taxes, and numerous requests are being made for forms on which to make returns.

Collector Miller says that no definite information can be given, or forms furnished, until the Bill has finally passed Congress and becomes a law. It will then take some little time to have forms printed and ready for distribution. He has made arrangements to send out a general notification from his office so that all taxpayers may be informed promptly of the provisions of the proposed law. The organization of his field force will be such as to render every possible assistance to taxpayers throughout the state of Oregon, and deputies will be located at many advantageous points so that information may be secured direct to guide them in making returns when the proper time arrives.

The basic principles of the old Income Tax law will no doubt be applied to the provisions of the new law, and it would be well for every individual and corporation to prepare figures and ascertain the exact amount of income so as to be ready to make returns with as little delay as possible.
