

WHY GAS WAS UNRELIABLE LAST FALL

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an announcement by the Standard Oil Company explaining why the necessary production of gasoline for our fighting aeroplanes was responsible during the latter part of the war for the lack of easy starting qualities in ordinary motor gasoline.

Every oil company had more or less difficulty with gasoline during the last few months of 1918 and some complaint was heard among motorists. It was impossible until now, however, to offer any explanation, because it was a military fact which could not be made public.

Aviation gasoline must be highly volatile, or in other words, it must vaporize rapidly and this special fuel was furnished only at the sacrifice of the gasoline left for regular use. Gasoline is made up of constituents having boiling points ranging from low to high. That needed for aeroplanes took a large part of the low boiling point constituents from the crude oil and left the ordinary motor gasoline somewhat lacking in these low boiling points which are necessary for easy starting of the engine.

While aviation gasoline is exactly suited for engines operating in the extreme cold and rarefied atmosphere of high altitudes it would be unsuited for automobiles. It would lack the necessary power, would evaporate too quickly and would be expensive.

Immediately after the signing of the Armistice the need for this special aviation gasoline became less urgent and Red Crown gasoline regained its old high quality, due to a full, uniform chain of boiling points from the low to the high.

While it was an unfortunate fact that the ordinary motorist had to put up with a fuel which was not quite what he had been used to, yet he played an important part in winning the war by getting along with such gasoline as could be manufactured without interfering with the output of aviation gasoline. The Pacific Coast had a much easier time than the Eastern states. In the East a general shortage of gasoline forced the Fuel Administration to issue orders prohibiting the use of pleasure automobiles on Sunday.

The output of aviation gasoline by all the refineries east of the Rockies was not enough, so California was called upon to furnish a large part of the supply. At the request of the United States Government the Pacific Coast Petroleum War Service Committee apportioned California's quota among such of the large refiners as were able to make this special gasoline. The Standard Oil Company being the largest of these, naturally had the greatest quota to fill. They more than did their part in meeting this war need and exceeded their quota to a considerable extent.

It was only during a period of about six weeks in the late fall of 1918 that the lack of easy starting was evident. As soon as possible Red Crown gasoline was put back on its old high quality basis and it now has the full and continuous chain of boiling points from low to high which is necessary for easy starting, quick and smooth acceleration, high power and long mileage.

Club Leaders Notes

Emil R. Peterson, club leader in Coos county, is back from the Coquille valley, where he has been organizing clubs, and states that several clubs, including not a few poultry clubs, have been formed at the different schools.

At Coquille ex-Senator W. C. Chase is the poultry club leader and at his advice the club will raise Barred Plymouth Rocks. Mr. Chase is a poultry fancier, and has a flock of pure bred Plymouth Rocks, which will be used as an example for the club.

Pig clubs have been organized at Fairview, with Glen Barker as leader; McKinley, Arthur Brown leader; Sitkum, W. A. Nickerson leader. Mr. Peterson says so far every boy joining the pig club, but one, has had money with which to buy his own pig.

J. L. Allen, the pig club leader in the state, will be in the county soon to review the work done. The Dora and McKinley schools have combined in making a sewing club as there were not enough girls in either school to form a club. Mrs. C. Marcey and Mrs. Wilcox are leaders.

A food preparation club was organized at Fairview under the leadership of Miss Elsie Strang.—Coos Bay Times.

They are Coming Home

Among the soldiers awaiting demobilization at the army cantonment at Norfolk, Virginia, are ten Coos county men. On the list are: George Clausen, Coquille. Mack W. Gant, Powers. Harry C. Houser, of Bridge. Jacob L. White, of Langlois.

Anti-Tobacco Schools

An attempt to organize all schools in the county on an anti-tobacco basis failed, but the outcome of North Bend and Myrtle Point teaching an agreement to work together is quite satisfactory to North Bend at least.

The faculty of these two schools have agreed not to permit any boy who is known to smoke cigarettes or use tobacco in any form to participate in athletic contests. It is also agreed not to compete with any school in the county which does permit the use of tobacco.

While only these two schools have agreed to this unusual plan of breaking up a habit that is so harmful, it is believed that if the rule is rigidly enforced the effect will induce others to adopt the same plan. Supt. Goets has the full and complete sanction of the Board of Education in the enforcement of the rule and will see that its every provision is carried out to the letter.—Harbor.

Forget What He Needed

From the Republican, Mt. Gilead, Ohio: The editor had an interesting experience some time ago, when a young gentleman came to this office and asked for a copy of the Morrow County Republican. He scrutinized it carefully when a copy was handed him, and then said: "Now I know!" "What is it you are looking for?" we inquired. "My wife sent me after a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I forgot the name. I went to several stores and the clerks named over everything on the shelf except Chamberlain's. I'll try again, and I'll never go home without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." The Republican would suggest to the proprietors of stores, that they post their clerks, and never let them substitute. Customers lose faith in stores where substituting is permitted, to say nothing of the injustice to makers of good goods and the disappointment of customers.
